

NEW YORKERS READY TO LYNCH MAN WHO MURDERED LITTLE BOYLAN GIRL

Mother of Child Follows a Clue and Will Identify Assassin.

NEIGHBORS THREATEN TO ATTACK ITALIANS

Nine-Year-Old Daughter of Respected Woman Is Assaulted and Killed by a Wineshop Loafers of Upper East Side.

(Journal Special Service.)

New York, July 6.—Residents of the upper east side district of New York are aroused to the lynching point by the brutal murder of little 9-year-old Viola Boylan by an unknown Italian last week. The outraging and strangling of the child threatens to start a race war which will result in the deportation of all of the sons of Italy who reside in that district.

Although the mother of the murdered child has seen the murderer of her daughter and a large force of detectives are working on the case, his hiding place cannot be learned. Several suspects have been arrested, but each has been liberated upon the declaration of the mother that the man had not yet been found who killed her child.

Favorite in Neighborhood.

Viola Boylan was one of eight children living with their parents on the fourth floor of 2290 Second avenue. Her father, Thomas Boylan, is a painter, but has been unable to work for some time because of illness. His wife and the older children were the bread-winners. Viola attended public school No. 59, in East One Hundred and Nineteenth street. She was an unusually attractive child, with blue eyes and light hair, and a favorite in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Nora Boylan sent word to buy a loaf of bread Monday afternoon. When the child had not returned at 6 o'clock the parents became alarmed, and a few hours later notified the police of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station. They believed it was a "lost child" and made the usual search, but without result.

Mrs. Boylan was well-nigh heart-broken. She was questioning her daughter Bessie, aged 11, again Wednesday when the later recounted a hitherto untold incident. Bessie said she was walking through One Hundred and Seventeenth street a week ago with Viola when two Italians loitering in front of a wine cellar near Second avenue reached forward as if to seize Viola. She cried to her sister and they ran for home.

Mother Follows Clue.

Immediately upon learning this Mrs. Boylan accompanied Bessie to the wine shop, which is in a basement. They entered, and Mrs. Boylan asked the price of wine to gain time while she surveyed several men who were in the place.

Bessie had been instructed to press her mother's hand if she recognized either of the men who had attempted to seize Viola. Mrs. Boylan felt the signal and left the wine shop. She sent Bessie for a policeman. One was found and accompanied Mrs. Boylan and Bessie to the basement. The man whom Bessie recognized had disappeared.

This clue was discussed by the family Wednesday night, and Mrs. Boylan planned to follow it up yesterday morning. Frederick Schoepel, who lives on the top floor of No. 2290 Second avenue, went to the cellar at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Each tenant in the house has a narrow compartment for storage in the cellar. Schoepel moved into the flat a week ago, and had not locked the door of his compartment. It was partly open when he reached the cellar yesterday morning carrying a candle.

Its light revealed a little form on the floor and against the rear wall of the compartment. Schoepel advanced a step and then darted back. He recognized instantly the face of Viola. The Boylan family was aroused and Schoepel summoned Policeman Vetter. Dr. Fisher was called from Harlem hospital and after an examination said the child apparently had been dead three days. Captain Walsh and six detectives hurried to the scene and a drag-net was extended through the Italian colony.

Following the arrival of Coroner Harburger the body was carried into the light. Crimson stains covered the face and the clothing was torn. The parents were not permitted to view the body.

"This is the most dastardly outrage I have ever had anything to do with," Coroner Harburger said. Search of the cellar revealed a white ribbon which Viola had worn on her hair. It was found on the floor near the stairway and a dozen feet from where the body lay. There were no signs of struggle in the cellar and the police are working on the theory that the child was not murdered on the premises.

Baker City Boy Lieutenant-Commander in United States Navy.

FORMER HYDROGRAPHIC OFFICER AT PORTLAND

Oregon Man Who Made Good Record in Spanish-American War Is Advanced as Result of Retirement of Older Officers.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, July 6.—An Oregon boy, Percy Napier Olmstead, gains promotion from lieutenant to lieutenant-commander by reason of the enforced retirement of older officers just made by the navy department. Lieutenant Olmstead, the son of Judge M. L. Olmstead of Baker City, heretofore will be qualified to command vessels of lesser grade and needs only one forward step to commander, to command warships of the larger class.

Olmstead entered Annapolis academy in 1889 and on graduation in 1893 was assigned to duty on the Philadelphia. He was promoted to ensign in 1895 and lieutenant in 1899. He served on the Vermont, Lancaster, Iowa, Indiana, Independence, Adams, Brooklyn, Yorktown, Solace, Pensacola and Boston. He was hydrographic officer at Portland as well as inspector at Seattle and was assigned to the trial trips of the Nebraska, Milwaukee and South Dakota. He has lately been on the Albany. His salary at the beginning was $600 as cadet, $1,600 as lieutenant and $2,500 as lieutenant-commander. Olmstead's record during the Spanish war was among the best.

SUMMER SCHOOL IN PLAY DAYS

Teachers at Newport Enjoy University's Intellectual Bounty.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Newport, Or., July 6.—During the past week Camp Willamette has been formally opened and bids fair to become one of the most popular of the many at this summer resort. It has an ideal situation at Nye creek, midway between the beach and the High School building, where the sessions of the summer school are held. The communistic principle of the camp is enjoyed by students and members of the faculty who are tenting and problems in distribution and consumption are worked out with amazing rapidity.

This is the first year Willamette university has offered the teachers of the state the opportunity for combining earnest study with profitable recreation by conducting a summer school at such a favorable spot as Yaquina Bay. The mornings are given to recreation and the afternoons to seaside or woodland excursions. A lecture course of five numbers is to be given during the season. The camp is under the direction of Professor W. E. Kirk and the faculty numbers eight.

Dr. P. S. Byrne, former mayor of Spokane, Washington, has arrived and will remain with his family at their cottage for a few weeks' rest.

Lloyd Sisters in Portland.

Two eastern people, the Lloyd sisters, need no introduction. They are commonly called throughout the United States the Lloyd sisters. They got the name because they cater to women only, but instead of being sisters they are two gentlemen representatives of the Loom End manufacturers. They come to Portland to connect themselves with the Golden Eagle department store, the fastest growing store on the Pacific coast. Mr. Lovitt grasped the opportunity of securing the services of these two gentlemen for the period of one week. Their doings with Loom End start Tuesday morning at the Golden Eagle.

"ACTINA" A BLESSING

To Those Afflicted With Eye Troubles

Every person with impaired eyesight or suffering from weak or diseased eyes should write for our latest, free booklet entitled "Positive Evidence." The records of phenomenal "cures" by the "Actina" treatment, as described therein, gratify patients themselves—names and addresses given—will satisfy the most skeptical that "Actina" is not only a remarkable, simple and harmless invention, but restores eyesight even after specialists have pronounced cases incurable.

Following are a few of the successes, provided by "Actina," more fully described in our free booklet. A Chicago gentleman, after suffering 42 months with inflammation of the eyes, was cured in a few weeks. He says he can now see as well as and as far as anybody.

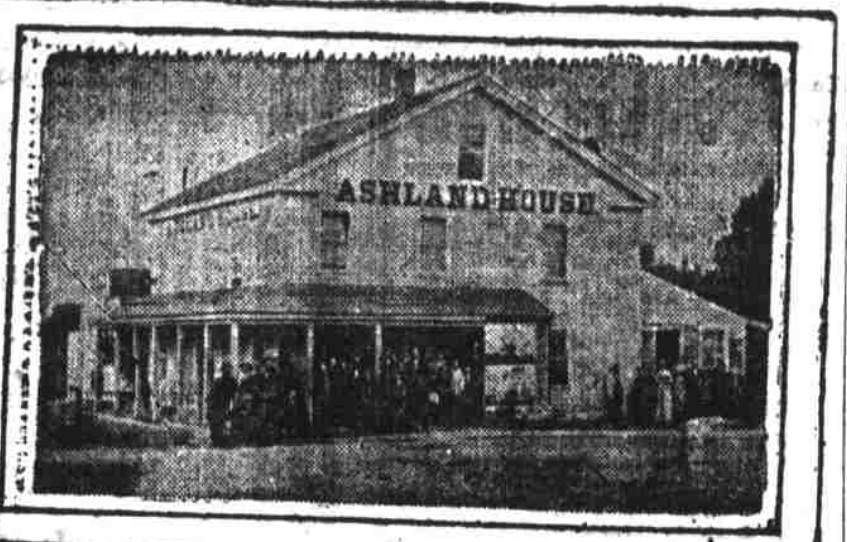

An Iowa lady, who, after being under treatment of specialists for 15 years, "Actina" completely restored her eyesight and she no longer uses glasses. Astigmatism and granulated lids impaired the eyesight of a Hartford, (Conn.) lady. Specialists failed, as she writes, "I was advised to use 'Actina.' It was a blessing. I had written daily without glasses to meet the demands of my eyes and drooping eyelids is restored."

"Actina" removed a cataract from the eye of an Oklahoma lady, relieved the closure of a tear duct for a well-known Chicago lady, and in scores of instances people have been able to discard eyeglasses through the faithful use of "Actina." To get an idea of the enthusiasm of our patients, the entire letters as printed in our booklet, be read. "Actina" is made on common sense principles. Its simplicity, effectiveness and lasting qualities will appeal to any one that will investigate. Let us send you one of our free trials. Use it as often as you please and if you are not satisfied, send it back and no charge will be made. Write today. Address Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 524, 211 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

OREGON'S OLDEST REBEKAH HAS SEEN HISTORY MADE

MRS. SOPHIA EMERY

ASHLAND HOUSE, ASHLAND, ORE., BUILT BY BARR EMERY

Gold Hill, Or., July 6.—Mrs. Sophia Emery of Gold Hill is the oldest member of the order of Rebekahs in the state. She was born in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, March 8, 1820, and is therefore now nearly 88 years old. When a young woman she removed to Ashland county, Ohio. She was then Miss Sophia Hoover, and it was while in Ohio she met Eben Emery, to whom she was married in 1841. They emigrated to Oregon in 1853.

There was nothing out of the ordinary in the life of the young couple until they came to this state, by way of the Isthmus of Panama, which route was then beginning to be used. They were, however, destined to become actively instrumental in the upbuilding of southern Oregon.

Mr. Emery built mills, as well as a first-class miller, located on the present site of Ashland, Oregon, and commenced the erection of a flouring mill. He was possessed of considerable means and was counted among the influential citizens in this then decidedly new country. He gave to the settlement which sprang up around his mill the name of Ashland, from his home county in Ohio. At that time little was thought of the prosperous town which would afterwards occupy the present site of Ashland, and while many of the present facilities which are enjoyed by the residents were hoped for they were so remote as to occupy the thoughts but for a moment.

Indiana Fighters Trained There. Mr. Emery afterward erected the Ashland house, which has since been enlarged to a hostelry of no mean proportions, and it, with the old mill which still stands and is operated successfully, is a lasting monument to the foresight of this plain couple, who were imbued with that spirit of adventure which has actuated so many American citizens. During the Indian wars companies of cavalry were wont to assemble around the old mill and there train for service.

Induced Others to Come. After Mr. and Mrs. Emery had been in Oregon but a few months they paid a visit to their old home in Ohio, and through their reports of the territory others were induced to visit the new land. Mr. Emery did not stop with the erection of the mill at Ashland, but later sold his possessions at Ashland and removed to Eagle Point, where he erected the flouring mill which is still in active operation there. In 1891 Mr. Emery died. They had, however, previously removed to the present site of Gold Hill, which was then only a way station on the Southern Pacific line.

Sprightly Despite Her Years. During the past winter Mrs. Emery has passed through two severe spells of sickness. She is now active in her household duties, attending to some extent to her garden and to the rearing of chickens. She frequently attends the Rebekah lodge and at times remains to the banquet which the Gold Hill branch gives when new members are invited. Mr. and Mrs. Emery had no children of their own, but reared several adopted children, among them being Mrs. James Davis, who with her husband resides near Gold Hill.

To a very large audience here on the Fourth. His hearers were charmed and his remarks were highly applauded. He day he and Father B. Fensie of Klamath Falls consummated the purchase of a lot 100x200 feet, where a splendid church will be erected. It will be the only Catholic church in this entire section of 200 miles square. Scores of young Irishmen have during the past few years come to Lake county, and a Catholic church was felt to be a need that must be supplied.

Pick Pockets With Their Feet. "The best pickpockets," said Legon, the detective, "are the Hindus. You have to call them light toes as well as light fingers, for they can get a watch or purse as easily with their feet as with their hands. "Treated from childhood these bare-footed rascals are wonderfully skillful with their toes. This gives them a great advantage. A Hindu in a crowd will stand with his arms ostensibly folded and sneak with his foot the wallet from your trouser's pocket."
