JOHN ROACH STRATTON AFTERNOON'S SPEAKER

"Destiny of Lost Rib" Is Subject of Chicago Speaker - Tonight He Lectures Upon "Short-Cuts" and "Will-o-the-Wisps."

In its 14 years of existence the Chautauqua assembly at Gladstone park has never been held under more favorable auspices. Beautiful at all times, but surpassing themselves this year, the grounds are ideal. The heavy rains washed the dust away, which has ways been so objectionable, and the rrass, trees, benches and auditorium are clean and pure, while the bracing air is an inspiration of itself.

Class Work Under Way. Amidst the fairest of surroundings it is a hive of busy workers from 8 a, m. to 10 p. m. The class work is under full swing and is unusually well at-tended.

A noticeable feature of Chautauqua this year is the earnestness and intelli-this year is the earnestness and intelligence of those attending. Everyone seems there for a purpose and the element that came in former years for amusement is entirely absent.

Dr. Krebs' Last Lecture.

Dr. Krebs' Last Lecture.

Dr. Krebs gave his last lecture yesterday afternoon. "Bouncing the Blues" was a cheerful subject and the lecturer didn't fail to get out of it all there was to be had. While it did not deal with the weighty and thoughtful subjects of the day before in his lecture on "The World Within" it was of a more earnest character than that of the evening, when he exposed mediums and mind readers. The lecture yesterday aftersisoon, however, proved Dr. Krebs to be one of the most versatile and entertaining speakers that has ever occupied the Chautauqua platform. The evening program was high class in the extreme.

Berlin, July 11.—William of Germany has inherited with his Anglo-Saxon blood the spirit of "hustling" and if with him time is not exactly money, it is of great importance. "William the hustler" is likely to become his epithet, and he makes use of all the modern appliances for economizing his time.

The exports for the past year are the heaviest since 1902 when an artificial trade was created by the heavy demands from the orient as a result of the Japanese-Chinese war. In fact trade conditions with this port were stimulated temporarily for several years owing to the difficulties across the Pacific.

Following 1902 there was a falling off the since 1904 there has been a steady growing traffic, the sole reason for which is Portland's growing commercial supremacy and its increasing trade in-fluence in domestic and foreign mar-kets. The customhouse report for June is as follows: is as follows:

At the Forum yesterday Mrs. Clara Waldo spoke on the educational side of the grange, and Miss Dimick of Fortland gave a practical, and instructive talk on educational methods.

Mrs. Roper of the American Seamen's institute held the Round Table hour and gave a beautiful and inspiring talk on the work among the seamen, treating it from three different standpoints—the social, intellectual and spiritual life of the men. She thought too much attention was given usually in these institutions to the social side. She advocated a judicious mingling of all three, but warned workers against cant or denomination or sectarian prejudice in dealing with sailors, which, she said, they wouldn't stand.

At the afternoon session yesterday professor W. Eugene Knox, the teacher of elecution, made his first public appearance and took his audience by storm. He again appeared, with the same success, at the evening meeting and after repeatedly responding to encores and being tired out by a hard day's work he quieted the clamoring audience by dramatically quoting one of the beatitudes, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

It brought down the house but excused Mr. Knox from further response.

German Emperor Makes Good Use of Instruments in All His Palaces.

HUSTLING WILLIAM IS HIS NICKNAME

Court Is Aroused by Scandal Recently Disclosed in Ruler's Family When Prince Frederick Was Ban-

and he makes use of all the modern ap-pliances for economizing his time. His majesty rushes about from place to place in his automobile, and hardly ever sees his carriage. He also makes great use of the telegraph for sending his messages quickly, but he is a fer-vent admirer and great user of the tele-phone.

The kaiser arranges all household matters himself, and so he is constantly calling up his consort to tell her of his wishes. The kaiser is a model husband in all little matters of citquette, and if he has been delayed anywhere longer than he anticipates, he never fails to acquaint the empress of the fact, a litacquaint the empress of the fact, a lit-ile attention which ordinary mortals who happen to have wives waiting home for them could very well copy.

It goes without saying that the kaiser has never to complain that his connec-tion has been cut off just as he was about to get to the point.

The kaiser has never had such a reverberating scandal in his court to deal with as the Eulenberg affair, which involved the highest names in Germany, deal with as the Eulenberg affair, which involved the highest names in Germany, some of them placed very near the throne. Prince Phillip Eulenberg, who dabbles in occult sciences, is the object of fierce denunciations from Maximilian Harden, the Socialist writer, and although it was for intrigues of his "Round Table" to overthrow Chancellor Von Buelow that the kaiser sent his former friend into disgrace, it is suggested that the prince's real offense has wothing to do with politics.

The banishment of Prince Frederick Henry of Prussia by the kaiser is believed to have some connection with the Eulenberg affair. According to the story current in high quarters, Prince Frederick Henry was summoned by the kaiser, who in the presence of the court officials tore off his badges of rank and his decorations, boxed his ears and told him to take himself out of the

The disgraced prince, who is a cousin of the kaiser and eldest son of the late Regent of Brunswick, is 33 years old and held the rank of colonel in the German army. It was his younger brother, Joachim Albert, who recently got himself into hot water about his relations with a Munich actress and was sent away to southwest Africa, where the war is, to live the scandal down. The banished prince has gone to Egypt to hide his disgrace among the not too censorious cosmopolitan colony there. He leaves behind him extensive lands inherited from his father and has also a large fortune. also a large fortune.

MAY SAVE IRELAND

Dublin, July 10 .- "Ireland sober is Ireland free" is an old saying quoted by Cardinal Logue at the recent meeting of the Father Mathew Temperance union at Armagh. The Cardinal de-clared that while he would not stint the praise due to the parliamentary party and the other national public organizations for the good work they had done, he though the real regeneration of Ire-land would come from the temperance movement.

He declared that the drink bill of Ireland last year was over $65,000.000 and that the consumption of alcohol in the country was greater now than it was in 1840, when the population was twice as large. Voluntary effort, he declared was the only cure for the evil, for while so much of the British revenue was derived from the tax on alcohol little. so much of the British revenue was de-rived from the tax on alcohol. little could be hoped for in the way of legis-lation to check it. He urged the school teachers, the medical men, and the clergy of the country to work unceas-ingly in teaching the people, both young and old, the evil of drink.
