Betting Even That Trial Results in Hung Jury—Evidence So Conflicting That Conviction Probably Impossible.

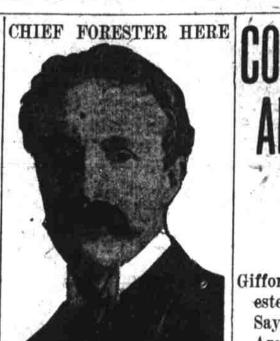

By John Nevins.

Boise, Idaho, July 12.-With Haywood and Moyer's story told to the jury the defense in the trial of Haywood for the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg at the gateway of his home on the last day of 1905, has practically played its hand. Next week will be used up by the state in presenting its evidence in rebuttal and it now seems absolutely certain that a verdict will be reached by July 25. While there is much discussion here as to what the result will be it is generally conceded that a disagreement must result. The evidence has been so conflicting that it will be a hard matter to separate the wheat from the chaffmand get down to the than death the state might win but there has been so much extraneous matter permitted by Judge Wood to be recited that there really exists a reasonable doubt, in the minds of those who have been in court every day since the trial began, as to the exact knowledge Haywood had of the exact knowledge Haywood had of the court every day movements of Orchard, both the court every day increase the trial began, as to the exact knowledge Haywood had of the exact knowledge Haywood had of the court every day movements of Orchard, but the court every day increase the trial began, as to the exact knowledge Haywood had of the exact knowledge Haywood had of the court every day increase the court every day of washington. Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester of the United States, Says Conditions in Service Are Better in West Than He Expected to Find.

Distinguished Government Official, Accompanied by Chief Newell of Reclamation Service and Dr. Mc-Gee, Arrive.

Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States, accompanied by F. H. Newell, chief of the reclamation service, and Dr. W. J. McGee, secretary of the inland waterways commission, arrived in Portland this morning a day in advance of Secretary Garfield and party, and stated that conditions in the forestry service were better in the west than he had expected to find them.

"The complaints from settlers," he said, "are growing fewer each year. While some of them are based on good cause, most of them are made through a misunderstanding of conditions governing the administration of the forestry service.

Don't Understand Laws. "Settlers have in most cases only a vague understanding of the laws under which the service is operated and few which the service is operated and few realize that it has been in operation only a few years and has grown into one of the largest departments in the government. To create such a branch of the government and place it upon a satisfactory working basis has taken much time and labor, and viewed from that point its accomplishments are remarkable.

"We have to contend with the cutting down of vast areas of timber. If this were allowed to go on without attempting to rehabilitate the forests, it would not be many years before we would be lacking a source of supply. We have already stemmed the tide and the next years will see atill greater progress

"To grow forests requires time, and because of this fact we have to be strict in the obligations we place upon those who wish to cut the timber for commercial purposes. As soon as they are brought to realize these facts, we have little difficulty in winning them to our side, and in most cases receive hearty support

Mo Badical Changes.

"My trip to the coast is not for the purpose of making radical changes in the administration of the forestry, service. We are accompanying Secretary Garfield and party for the purpose of investigating the country and holding conferences to determine what conditions obtain."

All the members of the party that arrived today are members of the inland waterways commission. They are studying conditions of waterways in the west. This commission was appointed by President Roosevelt a year ago and has for its object the study of inland streams and lakes that can be fitted for navigable purposes. The care and conditions of these waterways is taking up part of the time of the various members on their western trip.

In referring to the cutting of timber on forest reserves, Forester Pinchot said his only object in coming to Portland a day in advance of the rest of the party was because he had more work to attend to here than he could accompilish in a day. He will spend today in consultation with forest supergisors going over the conditions in Oregon.

With the arrest this morning at 5:15 o'clock of Clare by Captain Bailey and Sergeant Johnson in an Italian lodginghouse at 333 Front street, a remarkable tale almost fictional in its character and furnishing a motif for a problem play worthy of an Ibsen, has been laid bare.

Uncle Sam, represented by the Immi-

derer of his sister is one of the most remarkable features of a case replete with sensations.

Biugessi, who is a laborer, arrived in this city last night on the Southern Pacific overland from California. Prior to his departure from San Francisco, Biuggesi received a letter from his wife in Mammola, conveying the startling information that his sister had been shot and killed by Nicodemo Claro January 16. Details of the tragedy were not given in the letter and crushed by the news of the terrible affair Biuggesi started for Oregon.

Upon arrival here he betook himself to the Italian quarter and by a strange coincidence wandered into the house at 333 Front street, the very place selected by Claro as his abode.

The stranger was welcomed with true. Italian hospitality by the landlord and in the course of a conversation the tavern keeper mentioned the fact that one of his steady boarders was Nicomedo Claro.

Captain Bailey, after hearing the story, communicated with the Italian consul and after a consultation with the official at midnight it was decided to make the arrest. The letter was submitted to Mr. Candiani by Biuggest and pronounced by him to be authentic.
In the city prison this morning Claro, through an interpreter, without a trace of emotion, admitted the murder.
"I killed her because she unfaithful to her husband, my brother. Did I not have a right to do so?"

Obeyed Unwritten Law. The interrogation is evidently sincere, as Claro apparently does not seem to realize the enormity of his orime. In Calabria the unwritten law evidently has many interpretations.

From Claro it was ascertained by the immigration officers that he came to this country as a stowaway on a steamer, but he does not remember at
