Miss Verna Felton in the cast after a vacation of several weeks' duration. The bill is "Sweet Neil of Old Drury," one of the prettlest plays yet offered by the Allen Stock company.
Patrons of the Lyrio were enthusiastic in their appreciation of the performance. The play deals with haspenings in the time of Nell Gwynn, who was a favorite actress when Charles II was king of England.
Miss Felton has the part of Nell and gives one of the best and most interesting portrayals that she has yet given.
Raiph Belmont appears as King Charles and most interesting portrayals that she has yet given.
