Grocers Had a Good Time at Their Picnic at Bonneville Today

D. C. BURNS AFTER THE GREASED PIG

J. G. MANN ON THE SHORT END OF THE TUG ROPE

D. J. DRESSER DOING BASEBALL STUNTS

IMAGINE CHAS. B. MERRICK CLIMBING THE SLIPPERY POLE

As one advertiser in the souvenir program of the Portland Grocers' and Merchants' association veraciously stated in setting forth the merits of his wares, "The daily business life of the grocer is 'no picnic,' but it is a safe assertion that if he attended the seventh annual picnic and high jinks given by the local dispensers of pure food products at Bonneville today the "no picnic" feature of his ad would have been promptly blue-pencilled before reaching the printer. There have been picnics galore since the days of Thebes' glory, but for pure, unalloyed, effervescent joy the "un-fest of the local grocers at Bonneville annexes the confectionery.

On foot and on horseback, in street-cars and automobiles, the grocers and their friends made an early start for the union depot this morning and with the enthusiasm of a bunch of 8-year-olds crowded into the O. R. & N. special train for Bonneville on the Columbia. Not a hitch occurred in the program to mar the success of the affair. Everything from a fat man's race to a ladies' tug of war, for prizes ranging from a clothes wringer to a case of mackerel, furnished unbounded amusement for the hundreds of picnickers. Every grocery store in the city was as tightly closed as if the Manning lid was a daily instead of Sunday event. Too much credit cannot be given to the various committees having the affair in charge for the success of the outing. The pleasure seekers are scheduled to return to Portland this evening.

PLAN TO DESERT PRETTY VILLAGE

Bannings Will Start Rival Town on the Catalina Island Isthmus.

(Journal Special Service.)
Los Angeles, July 17.—Beautiful Avalon, gem of Catalina and most picturesque resort of its kind in the world, will be long a deserted village, with dead trees standing about and grass growing in its streets, if the threats of the Banning company are carried out. Because Judge Conroy decided that it is an open port to all the world, and must admit boats and people, whether they come in boats of the Wilmington Transportation company or in rival craft, the owners of the island have hinted that they will take away their attractions, close the Metropole hotel and pavilion, take away their band and abandon the lovely spot to the wild goats. Their plan is to go to the isthmus of the island and start a rival town, which will be the only insular port of call for their excursion boats. Already they have planned a town and planted trees.

SAYS OPEN SHOP FOR METAL WORKERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, July 17.—The open shop will prevail hereafter in this district, according to J. D. Morris, secretary of the United Metal Trades association for the Pacific coast. The strike instituted by the molders and machinists on May 15 is a thing of the past, according to Morris. One hundred men have been brought from the east within the last two months, he says, and all the shops are working satisfactorily. The courts have ordered the strikers to return to work and at Everett a member has gone back to work at the old scale.

COAL MINERS UNION DYING

Its Membership Is Rapidly Dropping Off in Anthracite Fields.

(Journal Special Service.)
Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 17.—Of 80,000 mineworkers of Wyoming and the Lackawanna districts of the anthracite coal fields, only 10,211 are members of the union, according to the report at the annual convention of the United Mineworkers here. The average membership for the year was 12,573. In that time 10 locals lapsed, two were organized and two reorganized. President Nichols gave as the chief reason for the decrease in membership an assessment of 50 cents per week for the last two weeks of June and all of July, 1906, for the support of the bituminous mineworkers. The president said that, despite the falling off in membership, the organization had done more effective work and maintained its strength much longer than any other miners' organization in the anthracite field.
