ASSAULT UNPROVOKED

By C. M. Hyskell.

Charles Warren Fairbanks has come and gone—his second visit to the Pacific northwest within two years.

The absence of public demonstration or advertised itinerary, was due to a lack of public feeling of interest in his doings or whereabouts. Mr. Fairbanks explains by saying that he came to the tenance.

At Goble, the Oregon end of the Northern Pacific railroad ferry, the vice-president made a social hit with the family of the section boss, with whom he took breakfast while waiting for his train. He enjoyed the meal with keen relish, both for the excellence of the cooking and the novelty of the situation. He was waited on by the boss little girl, to whom he slipped a piece of money, although she protested vigorously.

FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT

Beaverton-Reedville Acreage

We are now platting into small tracts that very large body of land, including highly improved farms, extending from Beaverton to Reedville, and being only from eight to ten miles from Portland.

The Pasadena of Oregon

There is no better land anywhere and the crops, grains, fruits and vegetables are there to show it. The Southern Pacific Railway traverses it and an electric line has recently been surveyed through it. We can prove by former residents of the Hood River Valley that these lands are superior in every way to that far-famed and much-heralded section. For beauty of location, richness of soil, high state of improvements, daily accessibility to the city, a fine home or a good investment, we challenge comparison with any locality whatsoever.

Selections can now be made of any acreage desired, and from the highly improved lands with or without fine buildings and bear-ing orchards to that partially improved or covered with timber. Full particulars on application.

This is a rare opportunity to secure in small holdings rich lands close in that have been heretofore unavailable. Let us have your application at once.

We invite the closest inspection of these lands.
