HAYWOOD'S EVIDENCE IS ENDED

Attorneys Arguing About Instructions to Be Given to Jury by Judge Wood After Final Talk Is Made This Week.

Colorado Troubles Will Be Eliminated by the Court, Leaving Only the Actual Death of Steuenerberg to Be Passed Upon.

By John Nevins.
Boise, Ida., July 18.—The Haywood defense rested this morning and the taking of evidence ended. The attorneys on both sides immediately plunged into extensive legal arguments touching upon the instructions to be given the jury. It seems as though in his criticism of the latitude granted by Judge Wood to the prosecution and declared that the killing of Beck and McCormick, the independence depot explosion and the attempt on the lives of Peabody, Goddard and Gabbard have no bearing on the present case and should be excluded as well as the entire Bradley evidence. This was fought by Senator Borah, who declared the entire matter simply proved the state's contention that a general conspiracy existed. Hawley will talk all day tomorrow. He will be followed by Richardson; then Darrow. Borah's argument will also be lengthy. Judge Wood's final instructions, it is evident, will eliminate practically the entire Colorado troubles and limit the jury absolutely to determine whether Haywood is in any way responsible for Steuenerberg's death.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Aberdeen, Wash. July 18.—After City Attorney Campbell of Hoquiam had enforced the Sunday closing law in that city he announced that Aberdeen would be obliged to comply with it and it looks now as if he knew what he was talking about. County Attorney Boser has admitted that following the granting of a license for the closing of all the towns in the county. The law regulating the cities of the second class requires that such matters shall be regulated by the authorities of the city, the county attorney taking a hand only in criminal cases. The ban has again been placed on slot machines, and in their place sounds the rattle of the dice.

FIRST LOVE WRECKS HOME

Beautiful Mrs. William Ingalls Finds Smartly Uniformed Captain Julius Purnell More Attractive Than Is Her Civilian Garbed Husband.

(Journal Special Service.)
San Francisco, July 18.—Captain Julius Purnell, U. S. A., blue blooded, gallant and handsome, won in an encounter with Cupid and an irate husband yesterday and carried off the beautiful wife of William M. Ingalls. The escape occurred in a fashionable hotel in Eddy street, and the principals in the affair included all the accessories of a successful comedy of manners, from a wronged husband to the faithless but beautiful wife. The hero of the thrilling chain of circumstances has been in the limelight before. He was a dashing scion of a prominent Kentucky family. His popularity with the fair sex brought him before the public about a year ago when he was divorced from his wife, formerly Edith Terry, the belle of Louisville. He is a globe trotter, who turned physician, and from doctor to soldier. In all departments of activity in which he has interested himself he has been a success. As a captain and surgeon in the Philippines he won honors for his skill in the field and the diseases of the tropics. He was once a student in Berlin and Paris, and generally is a man of the world. The woman in the case, before she married her now deserted husband, was Miss Joseph Leah Downey of Sacramento. She is a woman of unusual beauty. After a fleeting summer romance by the waves near Monterey with Captain Purnell, she married William M. Ingalls, a well-known electrician high in the employ of the Southern Pacific company. According to Ingalls, he had reason to suspect that his wife's affections, of which her coquetry kept him ever in doubt, had wandered back to the captain whom she had met by the waves. Monday beautiful Mrs. Ingalls left their apartments, leaving a note saying she had gone to Oakland to visit friends. She did not return, and Tuesday Ingalls employed detectives. On an Eddy street hotel register they found this entry, "Mr. and Mrs. J. Purnell." The deserted husband secured a police court citation for his wife. In the meantime the captain had returned from the army maneuvers and joined Mrs. Ingalls. The captain and the lady slipped through a clothes closet to an adjoining room, while the frate husband stood at the door, and then through the window and escaped. Mrs. Ingalls said last night: "I shall go to the sanatorium and then I will leave the country. I love Captain Purnell, and I do not love my husband. If I cannot secure a divorce from him I will never see either of them again. You should see the captain in his uniform. No one could help loving him."

BABE JOAN OF ARC IS SACRIFICED ON PYRE

(Journal Special Service.)
Minneapolis, July 18.—Miss Viorling, aged 10 years, played the part of Joan, the girl companion today, all of her under 10 years of age, and now she is a blackened corpse. All the children had heard the story read and huge bonfires in the yard aided the active imagination of the youngsters and supplied the necessary setting for the historical drama of which their teachers had told them. They circled gallantly around the fire and little Mia, the leader, approached the burning pyre, singing gaily. Either she stumbled or a gust of wind blew the flames in her face but somehow she fell face forward into the fire. The screams of her companions brought a neighbor who dragged her from the fire and wrapped her in a blanket. She was taken to the hospital and died on the way to the hospital.

The ledge is said to be 20 feet wide. The people of Rhyolite, Greenwater and Tonopah are excited and are flocking to the new district in vast numbers. This town is almost depopulated, small parties leaving at every hour of the day for the new Eldorado. Every kind of vehicle is pressed into service in the rush for the new field of fortune.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO SAVE FISH

Angry Southern Oregon Men Appeal for Aid From the State in Preventing the Extermination of All the Rogue River Trout.

Accuse Golden Drift Mining Company of Violating the Laws by Its Failure to Build Ladders—Seins Are Used by Outlaws.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Medford, July 18.—Fishing on the Rogue river is threatened with extinction in the near future, according to the fishermen of southern Oregon, unless Fish Warden Van Duzen makes some effort to enforce the law. In consequence Commercial club sportsmen, business men and farmers are up in arms, and are appealing to Governor Chamberlain for relief. The Rogue river has long been famous as the finest fishing stream on the Pacific coast. Nowhere are there as many game fish and nowhere are the fish as game. Of recent years, however, the supply has decreased alarmingly, due primarily to the lack of an adequate fish ladder by which fish can ascend the river past the dam near Grants Pass, constructed by the Golden Drift Mining company. In addition to the dam, no attempt is made to enforce the fish laws, and seining is permitted to the base of the dam. As a result, there is not one fish now where there were five a few years ago. Nearly 1,000 citizens have signed the petition to the governor in this vicinity and similar petitions are being signed at Jacksonville, Gold Hill, Central Point and other towns in southern Oregon. The petitions read as follows: "To the Hon. George E. Chamberlain, governor: The commercial organizations of Jackson county, Oregon, as well as our most enterprising citizens, are today spending very large sums of money as well as devoting their efforts to advertise and increase the population of southern Oregon and among our bountiful resources the trout and salmon of Rogue river are an attraction which brings many desirable citizens into our county. The Golden Drift Mining company, located near Grants Pass, maintains a dam at this point across Rogue river and the so-called fish ladder which they have built is utterly inadequate to permit the fish to ascend the river beyond this point except in very limited numbers. The fact that below this dam it is a profitable enterprise to use seines and nets for fishing for market, and above it such an undertaking would be time wasted, is convincing evidence that the fish are unable to ascend the river beyond this point in any large numbers. Although repeated complaints have been made on occasions to minor officials, whose duty it is to attend to these matters, no relief has so far been obtained. We, the undersigned residents of Jackson county, do therefore respectfully petition your excellency for relief from the injustice by which we are being deprived of our fishery, and that an adequate fish ladder be immediately constructed at this point."

RELATIVES FAIL TO CLAIM SAILOR'S BODY

ASTORIA'S LID TO BE YET TIGHTER

MARY COSTELLO IS ACCUSED BY AGED ROCHESTER BISHOP

(Journal Special Service.)
Springfield, Mass., July 18.—Yesterday's session of the triennial convention of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association was characterized by a scene of turbulence following an attack of Right Rev. B. J. McQuaid, bishop of Rochester, New York, upon Mrs. Mary E. Costello of Brooklyn, presidential candidate of the anti-administration forces. The venerable bishop McQuaid, who is now in his 84th year, as spiritual advisor of the organization is the only man permitted to attend its sessions. Bishop McQuaid created intense excitement by charging that Mrs. Costello, if not the author of the anonymous circular attacking the present administration and alleging gross extravagance in its management, at least had knowledge of its authorship. Bishop McQuaid said that at the St. Paul convention three years ago Mrs. Costello refused to shake hands with him. In a 20-minute talk Mrs. Costello flayed her accusers and reiterated her denial that she was the author of the anonymous circular.

BEIDLING BESIEGED BY PEASANTS

Combinations of Business Interests in City Working Actively Against Anti-Trust Ordinance Soon to Be Presented to Council.

City Attorney's Office Also Is Visited by Representatives of Affected Interests, Who Present Arguments Against the Ordinance.

Vigorous opposition to the introduction and passage of the Beidling anti-trust ordinance is being shown by various combinations of business interests now operating in the city. Efforts, arguments and persuasions have been laid before Councilman Beidling in an attempt to show him why he should not father such a measure in the council or give it the influence of his support. The city attorney's office has not been forgotten, and various men representing the affected interests are reported to have argued against the preparation or introduction of any such ordinance as that drawn by the city attorney. In Hands of Auditor. The Beidling ordinance is now on file with the city auditor and will be considered at the meeting of the council next Wednesday afternoon. The ordinance was filed yesterday afternoon and would have been considered had not the previous business taken precedence. All members of the council have been provided with copies of the ordinance, so that they will be familiar with its provisions when it comes up for consideration at the next meeting. In view of the fact that the passage of the measure is eagerly desired and is being urged by large numbers of Portland people it is very probable that the ordinance will be enacted at the next meeting without waiting for the usual course, which would require a two weeks' reference to a committee. Arguments in Opposition. Many arguments are being presented by those opposed to the ordinance. One representative coming from a Portland combination puts the novel plea that the enactment of an ordinance which makes it a violation of the law to reduce the price of a commodity is in itself vicious. The spokesman stated that if business men desired to reduce prices they should be allowed to do so. He based his contention on the provision of the ordinance which will make it unlawful for any combination to agree to reduce prices as well as to increase them or maintain them at a certain standard. The section in point is included in all such laws and is introduced in order to prevent trustlike combinations from entering into a warfare of prices for the purpose of freezing out competition. It is also being argued that the ordinance is unconstitutional and that it will work for the benefit of large firms and department stores and against the small dealer. It is being argued since the publication of the ordinance that it will have no easy path to enactment if the obstacles in the power of the combinations are not removed. The ordinance is being assailed on every hand and a strenuous fight will be made to prevent its passage through the council.

HABEAS CORPUS TO GET CHILD BACK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Walla Walla, Wash., July 18.—Mrs. Cornelia Ragan of Walla Walla today sued out a writ of habeas corpus for the recovery of her seven-year-old daughter, Allene, who for a year and a half has been in the custody of Grace Fleming. The petition alleges that the fleeing woman got possession of the child by representations that she was a woman of good moral character, whereas in reality she kept a disorderly house adjoining the place where the child is kept and the child is allowed to play in the same yard and mingle with the disreputable inmates of the house.

(Journal Special Service.)

Y., July 18.—After a conference with the president, Senator Hopkins, representative of the Wisconsin Tariff Revision League, said that while it would be suicidal for the Republicans to attempt tariff revision at the next congress, that it would doubtless be done after the next election. STARS FORETELL WHOLE WORLD AT WAR

(Journal Special Service.)
Detroit, July 18.—That there will be a world-wide war within the next five years is the prediction of Prof. Lyman Stowe, who through his astrophysical observations predicted the Spanish-American war. He has been working on the war problem for months and feels certain that the planetary positions show that such a war as he predicts is inevitable.

FALLING BODY OF GIRL TEARS HOLE IN MARBLE FLOOR

(Journal Special Service.)
Chicago, July 18.—In sight of hundreds of people Miss Anna Normoye of this city, 20 years old, jumped or fell from the fifteenth story of the Masonic temple last evening, crashing to the marble floor of the corridor. Every bone in her body was broken and she was so mutilated that it was difficult to identify her. Before striking the corridor floor, which was crowded with hundreds of people, her body struck a marble cornice three inches thick and eight feet square, smashing it to atoms. The girl turned over twice in her 300-foot fall, landing feet foremost and tearing a great hole in the stone floor. She had been visiting Miss Marie Nelstrom, a stenographer and neighbor. She had been in poor health and was dependent, and her friends believe she chose that opportunity to end her life. Eleven years ago a man leaped from the eighteenth floor of the same building, crashing through a branch post-office on the ground floor.

ESCAPES FROM BANDIT'S CLUTCHES

KAID HARRY MACLEAN.

RAISULI LOSES KAID MACLEAN

Commander of the Sultan's Forces Escapes From Lair of Famous Bandit.

(Journal Special Service.)
Paris, July 18.—A dispatch to The Journal from Tangier says news has been received from Kmass to the effect that Kaid Maclean had succeeded in fleeing to Zaouia, where Marabout is protecting him. He is now on sacred territory, which is inviolate to all. Sir Harry Maclean is the Scotch commander of all the Sultan's troops, who was recently captured by the bandit Raisuli. His escape was due to surrounding tribes, who in a grand assembly, held on Bedim Zanores territory, decided that Raisuli was guilty of breaking the Zanores law, as laid down in the Koran, by capturing an intermediary who was bringing words of peace. An expedition was quickly formed, which succeeded in placing Maclean in security.

MINISTER'S FEE IS FIFTEEN CENTS

Colored Bridegroom Forgot Fiancee's Name and Goes to Rock Pile.

Forgetting the name of his bride, paying the minister 15 cents to perform the marriage ceremony, married Saturday, beating his wife Sunday and sentenced to the rock pile for 30 days Monday, is the brief and eventful history of the matrimonial venture of C. A. Johnson, colored. The amount of the minister's fee was not disclosed until this morning, when Rev. George E. Jackson, also colored, visited the office of the county clerk to make a report on the marriage. At the same time it developed that for two days Johnson was in doubt about his fiancee's name. The deputy who received Rev. Mr. Johnson's report asked: "Is the marriage business pretty good?" "Well, I'm a getting as many of 'em as I want," was the reply. "How's that?" queried the clerk. "I only got 15 cents out of that fellow an' I can't afford to do very much marryin' at them figures," said Rev. Mr. Jackson. "Spec' I won't get any more from him, either, as long as he goes to the rock pile," and the colored minister joined in the laugh. Charles Hopkins, representative of the Wisconsin Tariff Revision League, said that while it would be suicidal for the Republicans to attempt tariff revision at the next congress, that it would doubtless be done after the next election. Senator Miles accompanied Senator Hopkins to the summer capital.

KOREANS WILL KILL ALL JAPS

(Journal Special Service.)
Seoul, Korea, July 18.—Koreans have decreed the death of all Japanese officials in this country. Placards calling for the death of all officials representing the mikado appeared in public places today. The ministers are strongly guarded and the audience requisites with the emperor, scheduled for today, has been postponed. It is believed that public sentiment has changed and that the emperor will not be forced to abdicate in favor of the crown prince, unless the Japanese force him to such action. The people who yesterday were ready to turn against their ruler are today eager to carry out his plans and wage relentless war against the subjects of the mikado.

COUPLE WED AFTER FOUR DAYS' DIVORCE

(Journal Special Service.)
San Bernardino, July 18.—A peculiar case of divorce and remarriage has just occurred here. Isaac Arnold of San Jose arrived here this morning to learn that his wife Mary had secured a divorce on Monday on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide. He was greatly surprised, as he had supposed that no unpleasantness had come between them. Referring to her mother, Arnold asked for an explanation, and was informed that he had not written to his wife in months, and she had become convinced that he had deserted her. Arnold was emphatic in his assertions that he had written letters weekly, including money. An investigation resulted in finding many of the letters safely tucked in Arnold's box at the postoffice. Upon this discovery the people viewed his wife with a different eye. Judge F. F. Oster, who Monday granted an interlocutory decree, was persuaded to annul the divorce.

SLAUGHTER WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Peasants on the Frontier of Austria Hold Massacre of Defenseless Jews and Kill Many Hundreds of Innocent People.

Agitators Lead Infuriated Followers Into Ghetto at Skonitz at Dawn to Aid in the Murder—Drag Victims Into the Streets.

(Journal Special Service.)
Warsaw, July 18.—Hundreds of bodies of women and children fill the streets of Skonitz, on the Austrian frontier, as the result of an anti-Jewish demonstration there this morning. Peasants, armed with scythes, swords and harvesting knives, joined the Jew baiters and invaded the ghetto, cutting right and left, slaughtering their victims indiscriminately. Agitators who were responsible for the failure of the agrarian plan for the expropriation of land, instigated the program. At dawn a call was sent out to the peasants, who came flocking into the city by the hundreds. Thirsting for blood and in heat of passion they made their way to the ghetto. There followed a scene of horror which cannot be described. Men and women and even babes were not spared by the fiendish slayers of the Jews. They dashed into houses and shops and dragged their victims into the streets so that their companions might have the delight of seeing them die. Blood flowed on every side and the peasants fairly revelled in gore. The Cossacks were called out to dispel the Jew baiters and, overtaking one band of 27, they killed 25 of them, injuring the others, some of them fatally. The troops, however, were unable to stop the slaughter for several hours, the peasants chiding them and swooping down upon the helpless Jews from a different quarter every few moments. Seeing that the Cossacks could or would not aid them, many of the Jews escaped from the city and are now fleeing toward Austrian territory for protection.
