TUNNELS WILL BE NECESSARY

Proposed Harriman Line to Enter Portland, Seattle and Tacoma Thus.

PLAN NECESSARY FOR EASY GRADES DESIRED

Entire Project Laid Out With View to Fast Tracks and Heavy Tonnage—Science in Transportation of People and Freight is Object.

After a large amount of money has been spent engineering for the proposed Harriman railroad line between Portland, Tacoma and Seattle it has been found that all three cities must be entered through tunnels that will each be a mile or more in length to give the line easy grades.

Plans for all three tunnels have been completed by the engineers. The entire line and terminals have been laid out with a view to fast tracks and heavy tonnage, and it is proposed to reduce to an exact science the transportation of people and freight between these cities. It is said the improvement of rail facilities by the four lines controlled by Harriman and Hill between Oregon and Washington centers will have the effect of greatly benefiting all the country tributary to them and will equally assist in the growth of the three large cities, while giving neither one any special trade advantage.

Benefit to Portland.
But Portland will unquestionably be placed on a better footing for Alaska business by transshipment at Seattle when there are two fast and competitive railroad lines operating between this city and the Sound. The present train service upon which this business must rely will be at least doubled, and it is reasonable to expect various concessions that will be of material assistance in

THIS WISE DOG KNOWS WHERE PORTLAND STREET CARS STOP

The old saying, "It's a wise dog that knows his own master," was never better illustrated than by a little white and tan terrier, which followed his master downtown this morning. The "master" was on a Willamette Heights car—the dog on the sidewalk.
As the owner boarded the car at Twentieth street, the dog wagged his tail, looked into the man's face and made other signs in the dog language, which plainly said, "So long, I will meet you downtown."
True to his word he ran down the street until he reached Nineteenth street, where he waited until the car came up to him. He watched to see whether his master stepped off. When he saw the car start without his master getting off he barked joyfully and started down the street. At each corner he stopped until the car could catch him, when he watched for the man to get off.
An interesting feature of the proceeding was the fact that the little fellow seemed to know on which side of the street the car would stop. At Nineteenth street he waited on the west side of the street. At Sixteenth street he stopped in front of the fire department station. At all other streets he stopped on the east side of the street.

At Twelfth street, where quite a long stop occurred, the dog came up to the car and looked into his owner's face and the two held a tête-à-tête à la canine. When the car once more resumed the journey, the dog gave a little bark of goodbye and trotted down the street again.
Arriving at Fifth street, where a congestion of wagons and pedestrians generally occurs, the dog stopped between two wagons standing at the side of the street and watched. Noting that his master still remained on the car he sped on to Fourth street, where the man got off and the two then pursued their way together to the master's office.

PORTLAND GROCERYMEN'S PICNIC MOST SUCCESSFUL EVER HELD

Grocerymen, their wives and sweethearts, mothers, sisters and employees and the relatives of all these to the number of 1,500 or more shut up shop from the delivery boy to the boss yesterday and went to Bonneville to celebrate. Today everyone is at work again abundantly satisfied with the fun and unanimous in the voice that the annual picnic of the present year was the best and most successful ever given by the grocers' association.
Yesterday was an ideal day for the picnic. It being neither too hot nor too cold. The large excursion therefore had a most enjoyable time and in the evening came home tired but abundantly satisfied.

The principal event of the day as far as amusement was concerned was the program during the afternoon, ranging in events from the fat man's race to the pie-eating contest. Substantial prizes were given for first, second and third events in every instance and much merriment was furnished to the picnickers.
During the entire trip no unpleasant feature occurred. The big crowd was in good spirits and no accident, great or small, happened to cause sorrow or unpleasantness. The managers of the affair are greatly pleased at the success of the day.

handling Alaska business from Portland.
The line means that Portland will have a new double track railroad bridge or that the present Steel bridge will be rebuilt, with a large widening of the east approach to give easy access to the main line through the tunnel that is to start into the hill near the John Mock residence and come out at Alaska Junction. The tunnel will be approximately one mile long and will be a common user tunnel with the exception of its east entrance, which the Harriman companies have succeeded in retaining for their own use.
All May Use Tunnel.
The franchise provides that any company may use the tunnel if it will drive its own entrance at the east end and pay a reasonable toll. The engineers are now awaiting orders to proceed with the boring. The building of the tunnel will require the larger part of two years.
At the same time tunnels will be driven for the road's entrance into Tacoma and Seattle. The Seattle tunnel, at mile long, will enable the road to avoid congestion of traffic on the water front, where the space is small and all of Seattle's traffic is being handled. For a different reason the engineers found it necessary to run their line through a tunnel into Tacoma.

portunity of seeing one of America's leading stars for so long an engagement as Miss Nance O'Neill's in this city. And Portland is showing its appreciation of the opportunity. This week this eminent tragedienne is appearing in Sudermann's great play, "The Fires of St. John."
"Star's Funny Farce."
"The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown" is one of the funniest farces of the season and it is being played this week at the Star theatre. Instead of the thrills of melodrama usually found at this house there is nothing but laughs this week.
Vaudeville Supremacy.
It is a good show the Grand offers this week. It is the verdict of everyone who has seen it. Dolan and Lehar have a bit of travesty which contains a laugh in every line and the famous dancing Gleasons, John and Bertha, are among the sensational hits of the bill.
Women and Children Free at Oaks.
On Saturday women and children will be admitted to the Oaks free of charge. There will be special amusement features for their special benefit. All week many women and children have been visiting the park to see the wonderful dog performers of Don Carlos.
Tomorrow and Saturday positively the last days for discount on east side gas bills.

Old Grades Too Heavy.
The grades of the route originally planned for Tacoma were so heavy that orders were issued by Mr. Harriman for a line that would avoid the rises of the Tacoma tableland which any road from the south must cross or climb. The decision of the engineers was not to cross or climb but to go underground. This tunnel will be 8,700 feet long.
The south portal of the bore will be located at the point where the Northern Pacific emerges from gulch to prairie on the way to South Tacoma. The tunnel will emerge on the north side, where five blocks have been purchased for trackage and two blocks for a passenger station that will rival the projected station at Seattle. In this way a ruinous 2.7 per cent grade at Tacoma has been cut down more than one half, but is still considerable. The grade of the road's entrance to Portland is practically a water level.

AT THE THEATRES

"Sweet Nell" Great Favorite.
The play being offered at the Lyric this week by the Allen Stock company is one of the greatest favorites of all dramas ever presented in a Portland stock house. The work of Vera Felton, in the role of Nell Wynne has surprised even her most ardent admirers.
Marquam's Great Attraction.
Portland has never before had the opportunity of seeing one of America's leading stars for so long an engagement as Miss Nance O'Neill's in this city. And Portland is showing its appreciation of the opportunity. This week this eminent tragedienne is appearing in Sudermann's great play, "The Fires of St. John."

ANNUAL SWEET PEA FESTIVAL AT SALEM

(Special Dispatch to the Journal).
Salem, Or., July 18.—Salem is to have an annual sweet pea festival in connection with the Salem cherry fair, which has won for Salem the title of "The Cherry City."
The Salem board of trade is enthusiastic over the project and last night at its meeting voted to make the fair a yearly offering. What the Mardi Gras is to New Orleans, the Rose fiesta to Portland and the floats to Los Angeles, the Sweet Pea festival is to be the Capital city. Sweet peas grow in such abundance in this section and of such varied hues that they adapt themselves to striking decorative effects and Salem believes that the festival can be made a huge success.
