Attorney Sweeney Declares He Will Have Nothing to Do With Prosecution-Prisoners Are on Their Way East for Hearing.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.) Clinton, Ill., July 20 .- The state's case against Frederick H. Magill and Fay Graham Magill, arrested while on their honeymoon charged with the murder of Mrs. Pet Magill, and now being brought back to Clinton by Sheriff Campbell, was given two crushing blows today when Attorney E. J. Sweeney announced that he would have nothing to do with it and a sixth letter written by Pet Magill was found.

Attorney Sweeney is noted in central lilinois as a prosecutor of bulldog pugnacity and when State's Attorney Arthur Miller announced that Sweeney had been engaged to assist the state in the prosecution of Magill and his wife, people shook their heads and said: "It looks bad for Fred Magill." Will Indict Magill.

Today Attorney Sweeney notified Mr.
Miller that he could not assist him in the prosecution of the Magills. Mr.
Miller, while admitting that the refusal of Mr. Sweeney to participate in the case was a hard blow to him, still maintained that the Magills would be held to the grand jury and that indictments would be returned against them in Ocrober.

Pet Magili left a sixth letter, it was discovered today. This letter was addressed to her father, alexander Gandy, the total her the transfer of the cold her dressed to her father, Alexander Gandy, and it is declared that in it she told her aged parent that she was about to destroy herself and bade him goodbye. She also begged his forgiveness for the step she was about to take. This letter, it is said, never reached her father, but was destroyed by relatives here. If this is true, it is another blow to the state's case. The defense claims that conclusive proof of this sixth letter will be offered at the trial.

To Have Bight Rearing. Sheriff Campbell left San Diego late this afternoon with his prisoners, and if trains run on schedule time he is if trains run on schedule time he is expected to arrive here Tuesday night. There probably will be a night hearing, as the attorneys for the Magills will insist upon an immediate hearing the moment the prisoners are taken from the train at Clinton. There is just one possibility that the Magills will not even be held to the grand jury.

Judge Cochran of the circuit court will be in Clinton on Tuesday and Wednesday and Attorney John Fuller, for the defense, will exert all his energies toward having Judge Cochran preside toward having Judge Cochran preside at the preliminary hearing. Of course, the state's attorney will order the Ma-gills, arraigned before Justice of the Peace Donohue, and then the legal bat-

Depends Upon Judge.

Judge Cochran, it is said, will demand something more than circumstantial evidence before he will order the Magilis heid for the grand jury, while at the same time it is generally believed here that if Justice Donohus presides he will bind them over on purely circumstantial evidence, thereby shielding the state from disclosing their full case against the pair.

case and had graphed Sheriff Campbell to release the Magilis. He, however, made emphatic denials of the rumor and stated with much show of spirit that he had a good ase against the Magilis and that it would be disclosed at the proper time.

COREY PRESIDENT

(Continued from Page One.)

stage again." chimed in Mrs. Corey, tapping the floor emphatically with the end of her long shepherd's crook parasol.

Mr. Corey at first expressed displeasure at finding newspaper men awaiting him as the steamer reached quarantine, but finally said: "I guess you must be pretty nearly through taking an interest in my affairs, so if there is anything I can tell you, let me know.

We had a pleasant trip abroad and I am returning at this time because I am returning at this time because I am anxious to get to work again.

"While we were abroad I bought the Chateau de Ville Genis, near Parls and my wife and I have decided to make our home there every summer. We will remain in New York for the remainder of this year."

Joseph V. Graff, representative in congress from the Sixteenth district of Illinois, gave out an interview upon his recent return from Honolulu in which he indorsed the candidacy of Speaker Cannon for president.

The Hoosier Poet's Tribute

Great Melville Clark Apollo Player-Piano

"You've wrought a miracle—you've made
A planist of me—
Indeed no master ever played
Beyond the mastery
Of this device—And twice and thrice
The price, in ready tin,
I'll pay you for some like device
That plays the violin."
—James Whitcomb Riley.

PRAYS ALL THE NOTES.

Hovenden-Soule Piano Co.

MAGILL CASE YANKEE BARBERS MYSTERY IN SHUN LONDONERS

Not an American Tonsorial Parlor in Whole of the World's Greatest City.

BRITISHERS PREFER SYSTEM OF EXTRAS

Unsuspecting Patrons From United States Are Bunkoed Abroad by Allowing Frills Which Cost More

(Journal Special Section.) London, July 20 .- In the whole of London there is not an American barber of all England. A few years ago I cause of the damaging pre-trial statecould point out to my American friends a half dozen here which more or less cution is turning in his direction. Sencompletely upheld the traditions of the Yankee tonsorial artists, but today they day throwing an altogether different are no more. Even the American bar- light on the case are responsible for ber's chair which one thought would take this change. the English metropolis by storm and completely supersede the uncomfortable, inadequate makeshift which adorns the English barber shop, has made its exit along with the American barber.

I am reminded of these facts by s sign which hangs in front of a barber short in the lower Strand, not far from the Hotel Cecil, and which reads, "The only American barbers and barber shop in England." I mounted the stairs leading to the shop very much as a ship seeks a harbor in a Bay of Biscay Ropelessly English. "At last," I exclaimed, "I shall get a shave worthy of the name." I opened the door and entered. Alles, I was doomed to disappointment. "The only I sat in the typical English barber

I sat in the typical English barber chair, which is nothing more nor less than an ordinary low chair with a piece sticking up behind to rest your head on. Over me, with razor poised, stood as fine a specimen of cockney as ever came out of Cheapside, and in despair I submitted to a shave that in all respects confirmed my opinion of English barbers. "Englishmen don't want to be shaved by American barbers." declared my

"Englishmen don't want to be shaved by American barbers," declared my cockney friend, in answer to my query as to the cause of the downfall of the American barber. "Besides, American methods don't go here. Englishmen want English barbers and English methods and English prices."

"Why then, do you hang out a sign advertising the only American barbers in England" I asked.

Wants Their Money

"Well," he replied, after puzzling a few moments over the question, "the Strand is a great street for Americans, and they like to patronize something that they think comes from their side of the water. And I," he added, with a wink, "want some of their money."

Regarding the failure of the American barber in London I am inclined to think that the real question hinges not so barber in London I am inclined to think that the real question hinges not so much on English or American barbers as it does on the question of English methods and prices. The same class shop that charges 15 cents for a shave in the United States charges but 3, and in many cases only 2 pence (4 cents) here. But—and it is a big but—whereas, the original charge of 15 cents in the United States includes a hair brush, a face wash, a face lotion and various a face wash, a face lotion and various other frills, in London these are all this morning that the state's attorney land dropped the case and had tale. American must beware

Charge For Brushing.

"Have your hair brushed?" asks the "Guess I might as well," you answer "What will you have on your hair?"
"Anything, I don't care," you say uneasily to hide an ignorance of the contents of several bottles which stare you in the face. That careless answer costs you two-pence more. An unwitting acquiescence to the suggestion that you want a brushing, a half dazed trip to a wash basin in the back of the room, at the hint of the barber, to wash your hands, and whereas you entered intending to send these you entered intending to spend three-pence for a shave and a penny for the inevitable tip, your ticket as you settle it at the counter makes a gaping hole in a shilling piece.

It is these little extras which count so much in any computation of the native and the visitor in London. Of course they don't mean so much to the native, for in the great majority of cases he knows how to avoid them. But for the uninitiated American they make all the difference, and sometimes more, between the excessive cost of living between the excessive cost of living in a city like New York and the so-called economy of living in London. Take for instance an ordinary restaurant in the latter city. Your meat order may cost you tenpence (20 cents) and you rejoice that the same thing would cost you 25 cents in New York. Another Graft,

"You have not brought me any bread and butter, waitress," you say, little knowing that that will cost you two-pence extra. "And no potatoes," you complain, unsuspecting that that will complain, unsuspecting that that will cost you another twopence.

"I really do believe you have forgotten to give me a napkin," you continue, with increasing annoyance, thereby adding yet another penny to your bill and bringing the total of your meat portion up to 30 cents, considerably more, proportionately speaking, than the same dish would have cost you in the United States.

It is really by the pricing of things on the installment plan, so to speak that the American visitor is gulled into thinking that living is so much cheaper in London than it is in New York, Chicago or Boston.

HUGE WHALE DIES BEING TOWED TO SHORE

Long Beach, N. J., July 20 .- Lying upon the shores of the Atlantic at Galilee, near here, tonight, is the body of a whale which was killed at sea this afternoon by a steamer. The whale was first seen by fishermen belonging to Captain Nelson Lockwood's crew, and when they approached it the mammal was dying. They immediately began to tow the whale ashore, and late this afternoon, when it was learned that it had been beached, hundreds of cottagers were attracted by the novel spectacle. were attracted by the novel spectacle. The whale is about 40 feet long and it is estimated that it weighs about 20

SAYS WAR

(Continued from Page One.)

He goes from Portland to San Fran-cisco, and will sail July 25 for the Ha-walian islands. It is understood he goes to Hawaii to investigate, among other things, the practices as to Japanese coolie immigration into American territory. It is said the common custom is for Japanese coolies to be shipped to Hawaii, and thence to Maxican ports, after which they gain entrance across the Maxican border into the United States.

Judge George H. Williams, on behalf of Portland, briefly responded to Secretary Straus, after which refreshments were served and one of the most successful official receptions of the year in Portland closed. It is understood he goes to Hawaii to Witness Found Who Heard Story From Professor in Jail at Carlsruhe-Will Not Talk Without Consent of Defendant.

(Publishers' Press by Special Leased Wire.) Carlsruhe, Germany, July 20 .- The pendulum is rapidly swinging toward Carl Hau. Public sympathy, so long directed against the former Washington college professor accused of murdering shop, and the statement is equally true his mother-in-law, Frau Molitor, bements against him cited by the prosesational developments in the trial to-

> The appearance in the case today of a new witness, who is believed to have evidence that will help materially toward clearing Hau, has been the strongest factor in bringing him public sympathy. If the opinion of jurors can be generally judged by the sentiment of the public generally, it is safe to say that his chances of acquittal generally are better than at any time since the

> The bringing out by the defense, too, that a former servant in the Molitor home, discharged by Frau Molitor only a few hours before the murder, had threatened and his disappearance completely since the forms was such before the more than the completely since the forms. pletely since the crime, was another strong point in his favor.

> Attorneys to Pight. Backing up these evidences of innocence is the challenge of his attorney. Herr Dietz, to Prosecutor Bleicher to fight a duel. That Dietz is willing to risk his life in his client's cause is regarded as significant of the impression of Hau's innocence which the man most closely connected with him bears. The new witness in the case who volunteered to give valuable testimony. volunteered to give valuable testimony calculated to clear Hau is an artist named Lonck. He was a prisoner with Hau for a time in the Carlsruhe lockup, and it is said that Hau confided freely in him, especially just after Mrs. Hau's suicide.

Befuses to Talk. Lenck was called to the stand today for a few minutes. He declined to talk unless Hau gave him permission to tell of their confidences. This Hau refused to do and even in the face of threatened imprisonment for contempt Lenck refused to testify.

Lenck's manner and hearing upon the Lenck's manner and bearing upon the

In bringing out the facts regarding a servant threatening Frau Molitor because he had been discharged Hau's case has been greatly strengthened. Hau's attorney will insist that unless Weller, the former employe, is brought into court to explain where he was at the time of the murder and why he ran away, the prosecution's case is weak. the time of the murder and why he ran away, the prosecution's case is weak.
With a duel in prospect between Prosecutor Bleicher and Dietz, Hau's defender, interest in the trial has been further aroused. Bleicher refused to receive Deitz' seconds. The latter says he will send a challenge by mail and Bleicher must fight or he will brand the prosecutor as a coward throughout Germany.

HENEY HERO

(Continued from Page One.)

you can smile,' he said. 'You're gun man all right, but you've got to se your gun. I've stood enough and a gun man all right, but you've got to ruse your gun. I've stood enough and if you don't quit, you and Turner and all the rest of you, why, you've got to kill me or I'll kill you.

"Cowboys 'don't mean nothin',' when they pester the life out of you and risk your bones. They sat silent studying Frank while he raged, and when he rode off home, Roberson and Turner rounded up his cattle, and after the rodeo, drove them over to his ranch. There they blew him up for gettin' mad,' but from that time on they let him alone. That is to say they teessed to 'josh' him, and when there were ceased to 'josh' him, and when there Mexican horsethieves to go out and kill, or Indians to follow, Roberson and Turner, the leaders, each tried to get Heney in 'his bunch.' 'He couldn't shoot,' they said, but he had sand.'"

Chained Engine to Track.

Chained Engine to Track.

Hency at one time forced a railroad to pay a judgment he had obtained against it by chaining one of its locomotives to the track, a novel method of levying an attachment. Steffens says: "Once in his ranching days a train had killed a neighbor's steer, and when the cowboys had gathered round the carcass to 'cuss' the road, he asked twhy they didn't sue. 'Sue!' they shouted. 'One man sue a railroad for one cow!' It was absurd. Hency said he'd take the case. They didn't know he was a lawyer, but his offer promised fun, so they all 'slicked up' and rode to town to see the cowboy lawyer tackle a corporation. Hency got a judgment for $50. But how collect? Hency's client presented the bill to the station agent and when he explained that he had no authority to pay it, the cowboys yelped, 'Didn't we tell you so!' But Hency wasn't through. A freight train pulled in and Hency's client approached the locomotive with a great piece of chain. Winding it around the driving wheel, he carried it under the rail and linked it up. Then he went off into the shade of a nearby water tank and, with his rifle across his knees, waited to see that nobody touched 'that there attachment of his.' There was some delay, much telegraphing; but in the end the agent received orders to pay and the attachment was removed. Hency always refuses to say whether this proceeding was 'by advice of counsel.'"

NO SUNDAY RACING AT SALEM TRACK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, Or., July 20.—Races advertised to be pulled off at Lone Oak track at the state fair grounds Sunday morning will not take place. In fact, Sunday racing will not be tolerated in Salem. The National Trotting association, of which the local track is a member, would not tolerate it, nor would District Attorney John McNary permit racing. The horsemen who had arranged for races were not aware of the local track being a member of the national association and races cannot be pulled off without its sanction.

Vanities of a Money-Making Author Too Much for His Income.

YOUNG AUTHOR STIRS UP DREGS OF ROME

Morichini Ruthlessly Exposes Soclety's Inwardness and Is Castigated for His Pains-American Writers in Italy.

(Journal Special Service.) Florence, July 20 .- Rumor has it that the affairs of Signor Gabriele d'Annunzio have reached that stage which Wilkins Micawber was wont to describe as "a crisis." The author of "Francesca di Rimini" has received immense sums for his writings, but large as his income jumped the tracks, demolished a dry is he spends more than he makes, and goods store and a confectionery shop now he is to be sold out. He has exnow he is to be sold out. He has extravagant tastes in most things, especially in matters sartorial. Here is a little inventory of his wardrobe, which appeared in a Neapolitan journal;

Shirts, 72; socks of all kinds, 12 dozen; hats, evening suits, smoking coats, shooting jackets, innumerable; gloves for walking, 48 pairs; evening gloves, 24 pairs; umbreilas, of violet hue, 8; parasols, green, 10; handker-chiefs, 20 dogen; cravats, resplendent and varied 150; waistcoats, 10; shoes for walking, 14 pairs; slippers, "soft, silent and tremulous," 2 pairs. When D'Annumic went to Egypt his

When D'Annursio went to Egypt his boxes contained among other things 48 night shirts and 150 neckties, while he also carried with him 10 green sunshades and eight violet umbrellas. He liked Egypt, but the camels objected to him and he almost moved the Sphynx.

An Italian Pickwick.

In the gay set with which he consorts in Florence there have been two suicides this season due to pecuniary embarrassment. D'Annunzio is a pessimist of the pessimists, but probably he finds too much in life to minister to be a persimist of the pessimists. his vanity to contemplate putting an are after him. But it is rather ominous that one of his latest fancies was to order a costly marble tombstone for himself.

himself.

Mario Virgliano has just published a book entitled "Gil Allegri Compari di Borgodrolo," in which the hero is called Signor Pickwick. Pickwick, in his second and Italian existence is a poet and endeavors to conduct two opposing newspapers in the town of Borgordrolo. The book is lively, highly amusing and abundant in the humorous and farcical element called Pickwickian.

Lenck's manner and bearing upon the stand indicated that he could tell much that would benefit Hau, but that he is guarding as zealously as the defendant the secret which most spectators have gathered Hau is keeping back. That this hidden fact contains the real key to the mystery is generally believed.

While Lenck today escaped answering it is believed he will soon reveal Hau's confession to him in prison. Already steps have been taken to force him to testify. It is believed that before many days Lenck will furnish the greatest sensation of the trial.

Prosecution Is Weak.

In bringing out the facts regarding a servant threatening Frau Molitor because he had been discharged Hau's tion of a Greek document of extraor-dinary importance: "The Doctrine of the Twelve Apostles," accompanying it with polemical articles, which appeared in various periodicals. Ead Everybody Eating Eim Born in what is known as the "black" set in Rome, he observed closely its ways and when still pursuing his offiways and when still pursuing his official studies, he planned the volume which on its appearance rent Roman society asunder, and gave birth to a scandal still the talk of the day. The author proved himself too much of a realist. Certain "Blacks" who recognized themselves refused to accept truth as his apology. He set forth his idea of Catholicism, and his own high clerical set, offended by his largeminded and modern religious views, denounced him as a rebel.

nounced him as a rebel.
On the other side, the "Christian Democracy," who greedily read the book, found in it a condemnation of their systems and began a violent attack through letters and criticisms. On the 14th of April, Signor Morichini was assaulted in the circolo of St. Petog, of which club he is a member. His assailant, an impetuous young man who had misinterpreted the spirit of the book, fell on the author, striking him with his fists and insulting him with coarse epithets. Signor Morichini has now brought an Signor Morichini has now brought an action against his assailant. Himself intensely religious, possessed of confidence in his jokes, Signor Morichini welcomes the publicity of a trial as affording him an opportunity to prove the truth of his picture of Roman society. At present he is engaged upon a poetical dramatic composition of great importance. importance.

Woman's Cause in Italy. Among foreign authors now talked of in Italy is the famous "Ellen Key." Both in Germany and Italy this Swedish writer and exponent of the woman's cause is hailed as a prophet. She lectured lately at Milan and was received with lively applause. At present she is at Rome, where she is detained by a slight accident which interferes with much walking. She expects to spend next summer in Florence.

Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner, who

Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner, who dramatized "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and who began her career by arranging "Miranda of the Balcony" for Mrs. Fiske, is living now in Berlin. Her husband, Professor A. Flexner, brother of Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller university and discoverer of the cure. university and discoverer of the cure for spinal meningitis, is pursuing studies in that city. Mrs. Flexner, like the author of "Mrs. Wiggs," is from Louisville.

Ruskin's Francesca.

Few outsiders know that there is still living in Florence the American author, whose fame was made by one single little book, and at a word from Ruskin. Some 20 or more years ago "The story of Ida," was read everywhere. The author Miss Alexander, always known as "Francesca." is now an elderly lady, and, with her mother of 90, lives in a wonderfully artistic apartment in the Piazza Santa Maria Novella. A more ambitious work on art illustrated by herself is her chief production, but the world knew her only as Ruskin's "Francesca."

Among the American writers residing in Florence is Miss Eva Madden of Louisville, author of "The Little Queen," "Little Crusaders" and other historical books for young people. She is a sister of Mrs. Attwood Martin, author of "Emmy Lou." Miss Madden's next book, "Two Royal Foes," a story of Queen Louisa of Prussia and of Napoleon, will be brought out by McClure at Christ-Euskin's Francesca.

be brought out by McClure at Christ-mas if company with Mrs. Attwood Martin's "Letitia," now running in The American. The first of this author's short stories picturing the life of the German woman in her present nar-row conditions will appear in The Cen-

BYSTANDER INJURED

(Continued from Page One.)

Roberts was leading his man down Morrison when a big rock was huried over the heads of the crowd, striking the officer on the head.

"A second afterwards, while he was still on his knees the shot was fired which struck Stevens and knocked him

AT FRISCO! Pianos

Two Men Shot While Car Runs Wild and Smashes Through Two Stores and Buries Five People in Piles of Wreckage.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.) Ban Francisco, July 20 .- After Conductor Ernest Faltskoog and Motorman M. Feller had been shot, one in the arm and the other in the thigh, and driven from the platform, a 26-ton car of the United Railroads ran wild tonight and went on a mad career down the hill from Twenty-Ninth and Noe to Twenty-Ninth and Mission streets, where it and buried five persons under the wreckage.

Mrs. Raiph DeHoff, one of the persons in the drygoods store, is expected to become a mother before morning and fears for her life are entertained by the physicians attending her.

Rioting attended the efforts of the wrecking crew to jack the car from the demolished stores back to the tracks and Police Sergant Lang was comand Police Sergeant Lane was com-pelled to fire three shots before he could place two men under arrest.

FLAMES DESTROY DENSMORE GROCERY

Fire which broke out at 1 o'clock this morning destroyed the Densmore grocery store at East Twenty-first and Tibbetts streets.

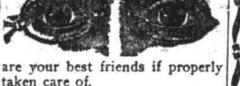

Tibbetts streets.

The fire companies reached the building before the flames had gained much headway, but owing to the building's remote location the Tiremen were unable to get water onto the burning building. Densmore estimates his loss at from $6,000 to $7,500, few if any of the contents of the store being saved. There was no insurance.

Will o' Wisps.

By Horace Seymour Keller. With gayety and laughter, The vagroms chasing after,
The butterflies come racing down
The meadowlands in bloom.
They scatter fragrance ever
That lingereth—for never
Can soul forget in vain regret
The clover's sweet perfuma.

I see them in the shadows
Come prancing down the meadows
The vagrom crew in every hus
Of summer blooms and skies. I reach my hands to greet them;
My heart it leaps to meet them—
They fade away like will o' wisps
A-wing in Paradise.

Why buy glasses of the traveling optician, department, jewelry or drug stores when you can get them direct from the party that makes them? See our plant in window.

PROFESSIONAL OPTICIAN

Oregon & Portland Optical Co.s "We Have No Agents"

Successor to the 173 Fourth Y. M. C. A. Bldg.

"Always Busy at Ellers"

At Your Own Price

-and it means exactly what it says, for here is our offer to substantiate it

Owing to the fact that we have had an exceptionally large business during the past few weeks for this season of the year, and having recently taken in trade a number of used pianos as part payment toward Pianola pianos, Weber and Chickering Grands, and other popular instruments in our line of highest quality, and as we are already commencing to receive advance shipments of our wish to move these used instruments at once, and have decided to fall stock, we are beginning to be crowded for space. We wish to move these used instruments at once, and have decided to adopt a novel idea to accomplish it. In a few words, we are going to sell these pianos for just what you are willing to give. We'll offer nine of them-three on Monday, three on Tuesday and three on Wednesday. . We'll place them in our large corner window, where you can examine them readily and critically. We will set upon each one a starting price, which is in itself a low figure and a price which represents a bargain, to begin with. Beginning at 8 o'clock Monday morning, we will reduce the price $1.00 every 10 minutes, on each one of the first three instruments, until sold; on Tuesday, we'll do likewise on the next three, and on Wednesday the same on the last three.

Here Is the List Look It Over Carefully

THESE THREE TO BE OFFERED ON MONDAY.

J. & C. Fisher of New York, Cabinet Grand, full size, the style sold by other dealers at $350; our price, to start. $235 Marshall & Wendell, an excellent make and well known, the regular $365 style; priced to start$265 Baus, another good dependable make, style regularly sold at $375, priced to start$245

THESE THREE TO BE OFFERED ON TUESDAY Ludwig, sold by other dealers at $350, to start at $245 Sherwood & Son, the $350 style, to start at.......$235 Lester Grand.

THESE THREE TO BE OFFERED ON WEDNESDAY Draper Bros., sold regularly by dealers who carry them, Bailey, full size, a handsome instrument, regular value $325, to start at$245 Weser Bros., the $425 style, orchestral grand, to start $265

Our usual easy payment plan may be taken advantage of in connection with this special sale. A small amount down and the balance in convenient monthly sums will place any one of the pianos in your home at once.

And now, it remains for you to say what these planes are worth to you. Look them all over carefully, decide which ones suit you best, and name the figure you feel that you can afford to pay; you can either make your offer when the price reaches the point you wish to pay, or you can hand us in your bid at once, as soon as ou look the instruments over, and take your being sold to some one else at a higher bid.

And the prices begin to drop a dollar every 10 minutes Monday morning at 8 o'clock sharp.

Now, of all the bargain opportunities offered to piano-seekers in this town, this is certainly the greatest yet. If you want a piano, and want to buy for less, don't miss this.

THE HOUSE OF HIGHEST

BIGGEST, BUSIEST

353 Washington St. Corner Park

Keep Your Teeth in Such Condition

That Your Smile Is a Joy Looked for and Appreciated

The greatest of all charms-perfect teeth-can be kept perfect for life with just a little care.

All teeth are not perfect, but we can work wonders with very imperfect teeth and make them strong and presentable.

A nicely-fitted bridge will remove that hollow from the cheek and prove as serviceable as natural

Crown and bridge work, inlays that it is hardly possible to detect from the natural tooth strucure; perfect-fitting plates, and all work known to the dental profession, performed with skill and gentle-

GOOD SET OF TEETH ON RUBBER PLATE, $5.00 BEST SET OF TEETH ON RUBBER PLATE, $8.00

DR. B. E WRIGHT The Painless 3424 Washington Street, Corner Seventh

OFFICE HOURS: 8 A. M. to 5 P. M.; 7:30 t o 8:30 P. M. Sundays, 8 to 1. Phone Main 2119. ELEVEN YEARS IN PORTLAND.