

PHOTO DEPARTMENT

MIRMONT PAPER

All Sizes at 10-Per Cent Discount

An excellent paper on account of its speed uniformity, the ease with which it can be handled and its latitude.

If you appreciate the value of making good prints from all kinds of negatives, whether harsh or thin, give this paper a trial.

Our expert finisher will demonstrate this paper Wednesday evening. All are invited.

Harcourt Sepia Platinum, requires no sepia solution—cold developer.

Buster Brown Camera No. 3 takes picture 2 3/4 x 3 3/4—$3.50. Take one of these on your trip.

Bath Sprays

White and Red Rubber, single and double connective $1, $1.25, $1.75, $2.00

Special Sale Garden Hose

Every length is sold complete, ready to attach to your faucet. These prices are for 50-foot lengths:

Table listing garden hose types and prices: Chester White Cotton, Woodlark Rubber, Oregon Rubber, White Crown Rubber, Lawn Sprinklers, Hose Reels.

MIDSUMMER SALE OF CUT GLASS

Table listing cut glass items and prices: 8-inch Comports, Mayonnaise Bowl & Plate, Celery Trays, Water Jugs, Bowls, Nappies, Sugar and Creamer, Goblets, Claret Glasses, Champagne Glasses, Decanters, Pickle Jars, Vinegar Cruets.

FOR THE COAST

WATER WINGS

25 cents pair. Bath Caps, special. Kerchief Bath Caps. Bathing Shoes. Sponge Bags and Toilet Roll-Ups. Bathing Suit Cases, waterproof, sp'l.

Suit Cases and Hand Bags

Leather, Bamboo and Wicker. Wicker Suit Cases and Hand Bags, light, cool and durable for summer travel. Bamboo Hand Bags, leather bound, lined with pocket; regular. Waterproof Pegimond 24-inch Suit Cases.

Special Sale Bristle Ware HAIR BRUSHES

Imported solid back hand-drawn Brushes; regular $1.50. Imported solid back 14-row bleached bristle; regular $2.50. 11-row solid back imported Brush; regular $1.07. 12-row bleached bristle; regular $1.98.

500 QUART DUTCH POTTERY PITCHERS 65c Value, Sale Price 29c

"WOODLARK"

Homeopathic Hive Cure for hives and prickly heat, 25c bottle

WOODARD, CLARKE & COMPANY

OPEN SUNDAYS 10 A. M. TO 2 P. M.

"WOODLARK"

Poison Oak Cure—prevents and cures poisoning by the dreaded oak, 25c bottle

NEW BOOKS and their Publishers

THE BIRTH OF THE NATION—By Mrs. Roger A. Pryor. The name of the author of this book carries with it a guarantee of authenticity, and the anticipation of an interesting story well told.

Just when to date the real birth of any nation is a difficult matter for, as the author says in her opening pages: "The story of the world emerging from the darkness will always thrill the imagination. Phantom ships loom dimly out of the mist of a far-off time. Strange names are whispered in vague traditions, which are found in no written record—names of mighty mariners, who were blown by tempests upon a strange coast."

In a page or two Mrs. Pryor briefly outlines the arrival of Columbus, Amerigo Vesputci, the Cabots and other explorers, but begins her story properly with the date when she remembered it was time to confirm her title to her new world possessions, and Queen Elizabeth granted a patent to her best soldier, Sir Humphrey Gilbert, with the aid of Sir Walter Raleigh, three ships were equipped, sent forth, but after sighting the promised land, met with disaster.

That says the author, "with Sir Walter Raleigh the history of the English colonies in America began." From this on Mrs. Pryor weaves a story which is the romance of history, and the history almost of a nation, which she carries through to the time when Pocahontas was buried at Gravesend, England, and her infant son was placed under the care of Sir Lewis Stukely; the Stukely who afterward betrayed so handsomely Sir Walter Raleigh.

A few pages are devoted, at the close, to reminiscences of the places and people with which the history has occupied itself, and which will be particularly interesting and apropos at this time when the stirring events of the book are being collected on the historic grounds upon which they were enacted around and about Jamestown.

One of the often repeated questions, why the expedition was not located right at Jamestown? the author answers, though without any apparent intention to do so, when she describes the place of landing of the colonists sent out by James I of England of which she says: "At last they found a peninsula which impressed them favorably. It was on the north side of the river Powhatan, as the James river was called by the savages and 58 miles above the confluence of the peninsula, now an island, was small, only two and three fourths miles long and one fourth of a mile wide. It was connected with the mainland by a little isthmus, apparently only at low tide; and this was the spot selected for the settlement which was named, in honor of the king, Jamestown. They could hardly have made a worse selection. The situation was extremely unhealthy, being low and exposed to the malaria of extensive marshes covered with water at high tide.

ALL THE WORLD KNOWS that Ballard's Snow Liniment is no superior for rheumatism, stiff joints, cuts, sprains, lumbago and all pains. Buy it, try it and you will always use it. Any body who has used Ballard's Snow Liniment is a living proof of what it does. All we ask you is to get a trial bottle. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by all druggists.

Ninety-nine years after Jamestown was settled the seat of government was removed to Williamsburg. There was then no further excuse for the existence of a town on the little peninsula. The town, deserted by all its best citizens, rapidly fell into decay and ruin. The brick houses tumbled down, the church left nothing but its sturdy outlines to stand sentinel over the graves of those who had built it and worshipped within it.

No one visiting the Jamestown exposition can fail to deny themselves the opportunity to learn through Mrs. Pryor's concise and lucid little history, and what great effort, all about the historic grounds they will traverse while visiting it, and what is quite as interesting, the significance of the names of the places they are constantly meeting.

In the work the author seems to have culled out with infinite care and precision just those facts which every one should know, and the entire absence of tiresome detail or unimportant statistics have made the work a romance rather than a history, in its interest.

The book is handsomely bound and has a number of excellent illustrations. The Macmillan company. Price $1.75.

"The Mystics"—By Katherine Cecil Thurston. The author has taken one of the tendencies of the day, and very cleverly woven it into a romance of interest and startling conditions. Every one will admit that there never was an age of such religious unrest, such reaching out for the unknown or such running after false gods. The whole tendency is to find new paths, and discover a more satisfactory truth, consequently the history, which is intended to be a fanatical never before known, though of a milder, more humane type than that of the present age, is to be expected that in this condition of things many false prophets will arise and the aid of Sir Walter Raleigh, three ships were equipped, sent forth, but after sighting the promised land, met with disaster.

Upon the death of his hard, miserly old uncle, John Henderson, by a bequest of trust, became possessed of the sacred book, the inviolable scrym, of the Mystics. In it was recorded: "The Hope of the Universe, by Whose Light Alone the One and Only Prophet Shall Be Made Known Unto the Watchers." Made mad by being cut out of his inheritance by his uncle's will, which left him his money in this weird order of the Mystics, he was transformed by what he found in the book and the prophecy that when this expected ruler should come "He will be Power made absolute. He formed his plans quickly, prepared himself for what he intended to do and then went into retirement to study and prepare himself to be "the power absolute" and in ten years again appeared to the Mystics, who had been waiting the coming of their master.

John Henderson, of course, resorted to a trick, else he never could have fulfilled the requirements of the Mystics' test. In this the author unconsciously lifts a veil which it might be well for a mere man or woman and think they are the favored of the new Messiah, to think over, or peep behind, in their own particular case.

The best point of the story, however, is the showing of the ease with which many people can be duped by a clever manipulator when they have worked themselves into a religious frenzy. The story is not as intricate as "The Masquerader," or as intense as "The Gambler," but it is much more natural and human. But this, like "The Masquerader," clips off a little short at the ending, for, while many read a novel for the mere romance, many more, we hope, are equally if not more interested in the human problems it carries and in "The Mystics" one would feel more interested to know if Hale-Corpush restored the faith and continued the cult, than to know how John Henderson was tricked into trusting a mother.

The book is suggestively bound and contains, such as John Muir and Gifford well illustrated. Harper & Brothers. Price $1.50.

"The Scarlet Car"—By Richard Harding Davis. A new story by Richard Harding Davis, appearing at this season of the year, is an event appreciated by people who are looking for new books for their vacation. In "The Scarlet Car" he dashes into romance, adventure and fun with a gay spirit and thrilling power of narrative that carry everything before it. The love story of the girl, the adventure by night in the grounds of the village place, the contest with the village speed experts, the strategy that carried off the yellow reporter, have all the fire, the enthusiasm and the absorbing quality that made Callaghan, Captain Macklin, Soldiers of Fortune and the Van Bibber stories the most popular fiction of the day. Charles Scribner's Sons. Price $1.50.

"The Citizens' Part in Government"—By Secretary Root. Mr. Root's book which is just published is somewhat along the same lines as Secretary Taft's book, "Four Aspects of Civic Duty," published last year. These two distinguished men—one has held and the other now holds the high office of secretary of state—delivered the William E. Dodge lectures on "Responsibilities of Citizenship" at Yale university in 1906 and 1907. These two books contain these lectures. The subject of Secretary Root's address was "The Duties of Citizenship," viewed from the standpoint of a recent graduate of a university, a judge on a bench, a colonial administrator and the national executive.

Secretary Root's lectures take up "The Task Inherited or Assumed by Members of the Governing Body in a Democracy," "The Function of Political Parties as Agencies of the Governing Body," "The Duties of a Citizen as a Member of a Political Party."

Together these two books are the expression of two of the most distinguished members of the cabinet (and two of the foremost presidential possibilities) as to the duties of the citizens of the United States toward the government of which they are a part. They represent the best practical political ideas of the day as to their importance to all American young and old, hardly be over-estimated. The Scribners are the publishers of these books.

"The Challenge of the City," by Dr. Josiah Strong, which is to be issued in the fall by the Baker & Taylor company, shows that the modern city occupies a new place in civilization. While agriculture has been the controlling industry in the past, with increasing wealth and a rising standard of living, manufactures and commerce will dominate in the future, which means that the present disproportionate growth of the city is to continue until the city controls the nation. The writer shows that conservative influences grow weaker as the city grows larger; that under existing conditions the downtown population degenerates; that the state no longer trusts the city to govern itself, and asks what will happen when the city dominates the nation, if the former is then incapable of self-government.

The problem of the city is analyzed; the inadequacy of the old church and mission methods is shown; methods which have actually succeeded are described, and there is outlined a comprehensive plan which shall include various denominations in an aggressive and sustained religious work on a scale equal to the transformation of the city in due time.

About two-fifths of the book are "The Twentieth Century City," revised and brought down to date. The remaining three-fifths are new.

Pinchot, who believe that the preservation of woods and forest is as pressing in its importance to the American people as it was to Sir Elyot in England.

"By the Bay" is the second poem of Miss Baily's collection and is an argument for universal peace. While this is a theme that is often sung both in prose and in poetry, the author does not seem to have brought into hers the true ring of poetic fervor, nor made it happy with original thought. The rather abrupt style of all the poems detracts much from the thoughts which are often excellent but at times lose their beauty through grating phraseology. For all of this the book has some sweet little gems, such as "Jessica," "Mimosa," "Today" and several others.

All three books are neatly bound and "Verano" has a delicate half-tone portrait of the author. All three are published by Richard G. Badger, Boston.

"When Love Speaks"—By Will Payne. To begin with, the author has hand-capped his story by a very flimsy title, and one that would lead a person selecting something to read to believe it was of the Bertha M. Clay order of fiction; while, as a matter of fact, it is very far removed from this character of novel.

It is a story dealing with present-day conditions which just betrays the small producer and the trusts. It is a book with possibilities for a great story and starts out with a great struggle before it, but somehow it does not reach the heights in its climax that the reader led to believe it will in the start.

The story is located in a little town in Michigan, that has just elected slow, plodding, honest Winthrop Holmes its district attorney. He is one of the men who will never tolerate the slightest deviation from truth and honesty, no matter what the circumstances may be. His sister Louise is his counterpart in this respect, and unfortunately they marry a brother and sister who have been brought up with the belief that there is a code of honor even between thieves, and a questionable transaction may be condoned if it will help some one out of a hard place.

Complications soon arise which make an exceedingly interesting situation, which the author fails to take advantage of and leaving with many ends dangling, closes the romance in a rather conventional way. Despite this, however, the situations which the author gets his characters in is typical of much of the business and methods of the present, and while the reader would delight to see the eventual triumph of Attorney Holmes, Davy vindicated and know the fate of unfortunate Fanny Trecoast, the story is an interesting study, and the character sketches excellent. The Macmillan company. Price $1.50.

New Fall Books—For the young folks' pleasure and profit this winter the Century company announces fall publication of another of Frances Hodgson Burnett's fairy stories, "The Cozy Lion"; a new story of school life, "Tom, Dick and Harriet," by Ralph Henry Barbour; "Captain June," by Alice Hegan Rice; and "Abbie Ann," by the author of the "Emmy Lou" stories, George Madden Martin, and a book of play pictures and lyrics, "Father and Baby," by that authority on child culture, Emilie Poulsson.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE LIBRARY

- PHILOSOPHY, RELIGION AND SOCIOLOGY. Funk—Psychic riddle, 1907. Morgan—The Simple Things of the Christian Life, 1907. Patten—New Basis of Civilization, 1907. SCIENCE AND USEFUL ARTS. Bashore—Outlines of Practical Sanitation for students, physicians and sanitarians, 1906. Le Châtelier and Boudouard—High Temperature Measurements, ed. 2, revised and enlarged, 1904. Cook—Walschaert Locomotive Valve Gear, 1907. BIOGRAPHIES OF ARTISTS. Chopin, F. F.—Frederic Chopin, His Life and Letters; by M. Karasowski, 2 vol., 1906. Correggio, A. A. da—Correggio; by T. Sturge Moore, 1906. DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL. Hamilton—Afghanistan, 1906. Williams—Southern Shopping and Studying in Paris, 1907. FICTION. De la Pasture—Lonely Lady of Grosvenor Square. Lewis—Drawing-room Amusements and Evening Party Entertainments; by Professor Hoffman. Livingstone—Story of David Livingstone; by Vautier Golding. Raleigh—Story of Sir Walter Raleigh; by M. D. Kelly.

Anticipation Sale

Beginning tomorrow we inaugurate a sale of Straw Hats, Neglige Shirts and Four-in-Hand Ties that will prove to every man who visits our store a case where realization exceeds anticipation.

After nine years in business in Portland we are compelled by our constantly increasing patronage to enlarge our quarters and extend our facilities. We have secured the adjoining store, 291 Washington street. Alterations and remodeling of the two stores will soon be in progress—business will necessarily be interrupted—and we have decided to make our inconvenience your gain.

The Portland public need no introduction to our goods. Our first introduction many years ago was the beginning of a loyal friendship; the wearers of our goods have spread the good news as to their value—men who were pleased told others, and thus we have come to be known as headquarters for men's wear that expresses in the highest degree quality and style at prices that are reasonable.

All goods offered during this great anticipation sale belong to our regular high grade stock—they were not bought merely for sale purposes.

Monday's Specials

THESE SPECIAL SALES WILL BE ON MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

- 500 Neglige Shirts. 200 Silk Four-in-Hand Ties. All the best designs in this season's wear, nobby, cut to fit, of excellent materials, cuffs attached or two pairs of cuffs detached, with either plain or plaited bosoms. REGULAR $1.50 VALUES. $1.15. REGULAR $1.00 VALUES. 65c.

Straw Hats

- ALL OUR $3.00 STRAW HATS NOW $2.00. ALL OUR $4.00 STRAW HATS NOW $2.65. ALL OUR $5.00 STRAW HATS NOW $3.35. ALL OUR $10.00 STRAW HATS NOW $5.00.

Come early tomorrow, the first day of our great sale! Watch our ads constantly for fresh announcements. WEDNESDAY'S JOURNAL AND THURSDAY'S OREGONIAN WILL CONTAIN NEWS OF INTEREST TO YOU

WATCH OUR WINDOWS Robinson & Co., 289 Washington Street

- International Postage Stamp Album, ed. 20th century. Joan of Arc—Story of Joan of Arc; by Andrew Lang. Lewis—Drawing-room Amusements and Evening Party Entertainments; by Professor Hoffman. Livingstone—Story of David Livingstone; by Vautier Golding. Raleigh—Story of Sir Walter Raleigh; by M. D. Kelly. Steadman—In God's Garden: Stories of the Saints for Little Children. Shakespeare—Story of As You Like It; retold by A. S. Hoffman. Shakespeare—Story of Hamlet; retold by A. S. Hoffman. Shakespeare—Story of King Richard II; retold by A. S. Hoffman. Shakespeare—Story of Macbeth; retold by A. S. Hoffman. Whitney—Verses for Jock and Joan, and was lady dearest.