The complaint asserts that when the trust could not buy outright it sold goods in the independents' locality below cost, employed detectives to find low cost, employed detectives to find the customers and then sent out agents to gobble up the business.

One instance is that of the Northwestern Powder company at Terre Haute, Indiana, composed of coal operators who manufactured powder for their own use. It is charged that the trust eventually got this trade by organizing the Great Northern Manufacturing Supply company, and putting on a line of wagons from which powder was sold to the companies' own miners at 75 per cent less than the concern could produce it. Miners were obliged to purchase from the operators, but the difference in price raised such dissension that the coal men had to sell their plant to avoid a strike.

Very Young.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Klamath Falls, Or., July 20.-The tourist season to Crater Lake has opened earlier than usual this year. The snow still lies deep around the crater and on the trails, but on an average perhaps thirty to fifty people a day have ascended Mt. Mazamas, for a glimpse of beautiful Crater lake. Tourists arriving in Klamath Falls can now buy tickets direct to the lake and return, including hotel fare. The fare for a three days' trip and return is $14 and arrangements can be made for a longer stay if desired. It is estimated that arrangements can be made for a longer stay if desired. It is estimated that in a few weeks the tourists will average over a hundred a day. This week Secretary of the Interior Garfield and party visited the lake as guests of Superintendent Arant of the Crater Lake National park. The party were delighted and the fame of the lake will be spread abroad. A gasoline launch now piles the waters of the lake, which will be a great convenience to visitors.

Federal Attorney Desires to Determine Once and for All Constitutional Provision-Case Will Go Higher if Uncle Sam Wins. An important case in regard to the rrigation laws will come up Monday be settled is one brought by Assistant United States Attorney James Cole to condemn certain property belonging to Alex Martin, Jr., and Fred H. Mills of Klamath Falls. The government desires the property for use in the irrigation project which is under way in the Klamath Falls region, and in reply to the complaint filed by Mr. Cole the defendants allege the government desires the land for private use. The property involved is valued at $1,000.

According to an act of congress the secretary of the interior has the right to acquire arid land either by purchase or condemnation and the receipts of sale shall be used in reclaiming other arid lands.

sale shall be used in reclaiming other arid lands.

Great interest is centered in the outcome of the suit, which will probably establish a precedence on which the government will conduct its land operations in the future. Should the decision be in favor of the government it is probable the defense will carry the case to the higher courts, and the same is true on behalf of the government should it lose the case. Many intricate points of law are involved in the suit, the outcome of which is looked forward to by leading lawyers of the country who have similar cases because of the recent impetus in irrigation matters conducted by the federal government.
