WESTERN UNION BIRTH MYSTERY DIVIDES TOLLS

Receipts Through Cast-Iron Agreement.

(Journal Special Service.) New York, July 23.—That a cast-iron business agreement exists between the Western Union and Postal Telegraph attorney-general in a suit to annul the charter of the two corporations on the ground that they constitute an illegal monopoly, and is indicated by a special order of the Western Union to the man-agers of all its offices throughout the country.

A copy of the order, designated "Special sheet 6," was obtained by the New York World. It directs managers to deliver to the Postal Telegraph company certain classes of messages for transmission and tells how much of the money collected for a message is to be paid to the Postal and how much to the Western Union. The order reads:

The young women who have been constant companions of Miss Johnson during her career at the university maintain that she is a white girl.

The only information vouchsafed at the Johnson home was that she was born in St. Leuis; that her birth was recorded in the Catholic church there, and that since her babyhood she has been a member of the gambling king's household.

STRIKERS REPUDIATED BY OWN BROTHERHOOD

(Journal Special Service.)

Carsruhe, Germany, July 23.—Convicted of the murder of his mother-inalaw. Frau Molitor, Carl Hau was sentenced to death. Hau is accused of having slain Frau Molitor at Baden Baden, September 6. He was formerly a professor in George Washington university, U. S. A., and is a brilliant young man.

William January.

The return of William January to his home, his wife and child, is as pretty an ending of an adventurous career as a fanciful writer of fiction ever devised. It is pleasant to feel with these people the throb of human heart interest and joy in this termination of their trials. The story has been fully told and is known-literally by three more pianos will begin to drop a heart-all over the country. It has, indeed, a significance, this touch of ular selling figures, in the window of nature that caused hearts to throb in answering measure all over the land. The man is a self-confessed thief, but you hear no one urging that his release is placing a premium on dishonesty, and for this reason: that he has shown by his actual daily life, for years, that he sees the error which led him astray and that he is determined to live dif-ferently. He put his theories, whatever they are, into actual practice. He lived ferently. He put his theories, whatever they are, into actual practice. He lived a straight clean life, honest and above on Monday morning, which was adopted to accomplish the quick movement of nine used instruments, recently taken in trade on Pianoia Pianos, Weber and Chickering Grands and other popular makes in the Line of Highest Quality.

If there was ever an opportunity for plano seekers to secure genuine bargains, this is certainly the greatest yet. Simply set your own figure. Look the pianos in the window over, decide what you think they are worth from your own standpoint and make your offer. Some one will get them, and at their own price. When the price drops to your figure, snap up the one which suits you This is not to idealize the man. He is probably no marvel of chical culture; it is unlikely that he talks much of his high ideals and of the deep things of his soul. This, however, he has done, What his religion is he puts it into his life.

Garment Workers in New York Will Receive No Support From the American Federation.

Gournal Special Service.)

New York, July 23.—The general exceutive board of the United Garment Workers of America repudiated the whole strike of the tailors, suspending Brooklyn as well as Manhattan locals of the Brotherhood of Tailors that had gone out on a strike. The board stated that the strike was in violation of the union agreement with the manufacturers. Leaders of the United Garment Workers said the Socialist agitators brought about the strike, leading tens of thousands of men and women workers out. General Organizer Herman ers out of the died of the deep, who he talks much of the deep, who he talks much englise and of the deep prize of his soul. This, however, he has doul. upon which we must expend so much of our mental energy.

Undoubtedly we all look forward to the time of leisure. We know the things that we would like to do, if only this sordid, everyday business of living did not take all of our time and energy and all our money. None of us but has his or her ideal, to follow which would, we imagine, clear us of doubts and worries and set us at last into that perfect environment which would develop all that is best in us.

Most of us sigh for leisure and money and most of us imagine these we imagine, clear us of doubts and worless and set us at last into that perfect environment which would develop all that is best in us.

Most of us sigh for leisure and money and most of us imagine those symonomous—and none of us but knows that he or she would do better with these things than many of those who possess them.

To find out whether these things bring happiness, look at the people who have them. The man is too often burdened with the cares that his wealth brings. He must protect all of the small investors whose fortunes rise or fall with his; unless he is utterly callous, these things must harass him. His money gives him a fine house (in which he may or may not find a home), good food, pictures, books and servants. The food probably disagrees with him, the servants are probably tricky and rob him, and as for the books, one has only to conjure up the thought of a poor boy, grasping the truth and living in the delight of one book that he has bought with his savings to know that in the mere multiplication of books there is no such joy of possession, nor when the mind is jaded with business cares any such raptureous delight in the acquisition of that which the book holds.

In the case of the woman, wealth and ease mean entering the social mill. It means, too often, a restless, feverish desire to outshine one's neighbors; it means separation from old friends, and the forming of many, and often undesirable, acquaintances; it means a multiplicity of cares in relation to servents.

A little of this kind of hard work is generally sufreality.

Now the cry of the human heart for something different is not to be appeased in this way. It takes more than wealth and social recognition, fine clothes and all the things that wealth can buy to make a man or a woman perfectly satisfied. We want something more—sometimes we know what it is, and sometimes we do not.

Have we come a long way from the text? William January, was it not? An escaped thief, a sober citizen, a pardoned man, a returned father and husband; free now to work out his own life along his own lines. And do we not come, here, to the real heart of the satisfied. The satisfied we want sometimes we know what it is, and sometimes we do not.

MINING REVIVAL IN

THE HUMP COUNTRY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Buffalo Hump, Ida., July 23.—There is at present greater.

life along his own lines. And do we not come, here, to the real heart of the Buffalo Hump mines than for many matter?

Buffalo Hump mines than for many years past. Work was begun this week on the Del Rio mine, which is under the management of A. F. Schultz. Large quantities of supplies have been brought in, also 800 feet of air pipe for ventilating the lower tunnel, which is now in 600 feet. This tunnel will be driven 200 feet further to tap the rich ore body encountered in the upper workings. Assays of samples show values running from $15 to $200 a ton. At one time this was the best known mine in the Buffalo Hump district and was being rapidly developed, when a disagreement arose among the stockholders, resulting in a delay for many months. But everything has now been fixed up and Manager Shultz expects to develop a mine here, second to none in Idaho. All over the Hump district the mines never looked so promising as at present and many conservative men are investing their money here, who, in days past, would not invest a cent. The country is full of prospectors and many new mones will be opened here this season. It is safe to say that William January sees a happy future. He has not wealth nor ease; he has a chance to work. He has no fear of an avenging law; he is free. And are we not all?
These are the things that bring happiness. A clean conscience, a plan of life laid down and the hearty, sturdy joy of working it out, the respect and affection of those we love, and for the rest, the joys of life as they come, here and there.

rest, the loys of file as they come, here and there.

Most of us get no more—all of us may have so much. A common lot, you say? Yes, most of us are not extremely uncommon. Just plain people. May I borrow a friend's quotation? "The kind the Lord loves—He made so many of them."

Her name is Rose Carey, and she is now more than 90 years old.

She was only 11 when she started serving oysters in a little restaurant at the corner of Marshall lane and Union street. She had great difficulty in getting a start, because the restaurants and hotels were sull of men waiters, mostly negroes, who served the patrons. Even the guests seemed suspicious of the innovation and eyed her closely as she flitted about her work.

But finally the "oyster house with the girl waiter" became as popular as the old-fashloned beaneries which used to be the delight of Boston. Miss Carey subsequently became an expert with the pots and pans, and her fame rests upon I the fact that she handed down the art of scalloping oysters.

Castle Rock, Wash., July 23.—C. M. Idleman and a company of Portland capitalists have purchased the Castle Rock coal mines, located about two miles east of this place. They have already put a crew of men to work pumping the water out of the mines, and as soon as this work is accomplished the tunnels will be retimbered and coal-mining begin at once.

In the heated season their use is truly magical. Left-overs of meat, vegetables, poultry and fish can be transformed into most attractive and dainty dishes; and a sweet entree may be used as dessert. Under the list there are all sorts of fritters, croquettes, timbales, deviled dishes, cheese preparations, souffles and scalloped dishes.
