Clarence Darrow Opens ·His Plea Before the Jury at Boise.

SAYS STATE APPEALS ONLY TO PREJUDICE

No Lawyer Would Go Into Court With So Weak a Case, on Merits, He Declares-Excoriates Orchard and Hawley Together.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Boise, Idaho, July 24 -With a courtroom jammed almost to suffocation and the temperature therein at almost boiling point, Clarence H. Darrow, the Chicago lawyer, began his plea for the life of William D. Haywood, the accused secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners.

It was, without exception, the best and most eloquent effort in his unique career Darrow realized that he would he compelled to overcome a great prejudice that has been growing up in the jury box since the defense began its case, due entirely to a series of blunders caused by differences among the heavy caused by differences among the heavy battery of lawyers, who have been quar-reling among themselves as to how certain emegencies were to be met. Scores Orchard and Hawley.

And Darrow rose to the opportunity, walking backward and forward in front of the jury box, his voice rising and falling in unison with the play of his emotions, he excertated the state's principal witness, Harry Orchard, in terms that burned deep into the souls of his hearers.

He then gave attention to Hawley's characterization of the defense's witnesses as perfurers, comparing them with Orchard as a witness and citing their careers as compared with Orchards.

The real feature of his speech, how-The real feature of his speech, now-ever, was his reference to Orchard's-divulging of his real identity. First reciting the history of the Horsley fum-fly, he dwelt on the fact that when Al-bert Horsley left his home in Canada with his neighbor's wife he lost his identify and from that moment for-ward it was Harry Orchard, who com-mitted the series of despicable crimes. But in revealing his true identity, Dar-row urged, Orchard assassinated not only the wife he deserted, but his little 9-year-old daughter.

When court adjourned Darrow was still talking and will conclude about

Mr. Durrow said: We will have to leave to you event-the interests of these defendants, and it rests with you to see that every argument made against this man and his fellows rests absolutely on sound evidence. It is not Haywood's fate that is in the balance; it is the fate of a great world-wide movement, and we must ask you carefully to examine every bit of evidence before you make up your minds.

"For more than a year and a half this community has been poisoned with lies of the newspapers, which engerdered hatred and created sentiment against this defendant. This jury has been followed by the control of the been fed on such stories and naturally must be hostile, but we believe you will give this man fair treatment and weigh carefully all evidence against gentlemen, nowhere else in the civilized world would any lawyer attempt to try a case on such weak evidence as has been introduced in this the state were he not relying upon hostile sentiment

"I am proud to have shaken her hand spoken to her," said another, and and spoken to her, "said another, and the others around looked enviously at him.

"There might be some member of this jury who would hesitate to take this man's life on Orchard's perjured word, but might have a lurking suspicion that the others around looked enviously at him.

"Oh, why do you want my picture." she herself said. "I don't care, of course, but I've had it taken five or six times already."

"Don't do it. Haywood is not a coward. Don't you be cowards. If he is guilty, hang him by the neck until he is dead, but if he is innocent, release him. Don't, for God's sake, comprom-

Darrow bitterly attacked Hawley, intimating that he belived him insane. He declared Hawley lied when he said there was enough evidence in the case to hang Haywood if the evidence of Orchard were left out entirely. He declared Hawley lied when he said he was a friend of labor unions.

Will Hang Game if He Must.

Haywood's invalid wife, sitting in her pillow-lined chair by her husband's side, watched Darrows every gesture with bright eyes, seemingly forgetting her allments in the struggle for her husband's life. Only once did she betray any emotion and that was when Darrow declared Haywood would not filnch, but would stand with the rope around his neck as fearlessly as he

"Hawley said everybody lied but Orchard, and he insisted all other witnesses were perjurers," continued Darnow. "I think he is suffering from Orcharditis. He a friend of labor? God forbid! He is the hired man of the state and he wants to hang another scaip, that of 'Bill' Haywood, on his belt to honor his declining years.

Darrow defended the testimony of Davis and Easterly.

"Remember one thing." he said.
"Davis was safe in Nevada, but he read Orchard's damnable story and he came over and placed his neck in a neose, gave another rope's end to Hawley, to say that Orchard lied. I don't care whether Davis was at Bunker Hill mill or not. There is not one of you 12 men who would refuse to take the hand of Davis, and you would all refuse to take the hand of that eringing murderer, Harry Orchard."

Darrow bitterly attacked Orchard's religious professions. He declared he was posing as a Christian while at his lome in Canada he burned down his cheese factory and collected the insurance and ran away with a neighbor's wife.

He then reviewed Orchard's story at length, characterizing each of his im-portant statements as a lie told for the purpose of saving his own miserable

He asked the jury if they could point to one act of Orchard's craven career was not cowardly. He said Orchard never gave an op-ponent an opportunity to meet him but killed him under cover of darkness. When caught he was willing to do any hing to save his neck, so Orchard made be confession the state wanted. Darrow attacked Hawley's statement that nothing had been promised Or-chard. Darrow characterized those who bave talked about Orchard's regenera-tion as "sickly, slobbering idiots."

"I never asked for the life of a human being," continued Darrow, "I don't believe in it. If the time ever comes when this court pronounces the death sentence on Orchard and no other voice is heard, I will at least petition that he be spared."

Aside from a few bruises about the face and a hunted look about the eyes those who came in this morning showed no signs of having been through the frightful wreck.

"Everyone was so kind to us," they said. "It was awful, but we met kindaid. "It was awful, but we met kind-ess on every side." And the tears came very readily as they recalled what huaid and human kindness had meant

The police had to keep back the eager crowd from the gates as the train pulled in but when Miss Maybelle Watson arrived among the last the people broke through the crowd about her. Everyone wis anxious to see and speak to the little heroine, and not curiosity so much as admiration for a brave deed showed in their faces.

Miss Watson was the center of in-rest. Everyone had read of her heroism and as a whisper passed along the line that she was coming she was not given a chance to get through the gates. The crowd swarmed about her, eager The crowd swarmed about her, eager to hear her story and to shake her hand. She is a pretty girl of 16, with a sweet, modest manner, disclaiming any share of glory for "the only thing she could do." She wore a dark blue silk suit that had been supplied her by Californians, but wore no hat A slight

CITY HALL MUDDLE AT WALLA WALLA

Bonding Firm Refuses Issue, Contractor Is All in and New Deal Will Have to Be Made.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Walla Walla, Wash., July 24 - Alleging that the city has exceeded its limit of legal indebtedness, the Chicago bonding firm of Harras & Co. has de-clined to take the $100,000 issue of city clined to take the $100,000 issue of city hall bonds. The action of the banking firm has resulted in George Barber, the contractor who is building the city hall. refusing to proceed with the work until the matter has been settled. The new building is about 40 per cent completed. Barber has invested $35,000, all his available funds, in the building, and not being able to draw on the city for the completed work, has been compelled to lay off his crews.

Harras & Co. deposited a cartified check for $5,400 with the city and the council will probably declare the check forfeited and try to collect it.

The council yesterday afternoon decided to give other bonding firms an opportunity to bid on the bonds.

Two large tramp steamers arrived in the Portland harbor this morning to load lumber for foreign ports. They are the Norwegian steamer Thyra and the American steamer Lyra, the similarity of the names being so great as to cause considerable confusion along the waterfront. The Thyra went to the mills of the Inman-Poulsen Lumber company while the Lyra dropped anchor in the stream. She will shift to the mills of the North Pacific Lumber company as soon as possible

The Thyra has been here several mes before. This time she comes untimes before. This time she comes under charter to the Pacific Export Lumber company to carry a cargo of lumber to Japanese and Chinese ports. She will get away with approximately 3,500,000 feet. She reached her berth in the harbor at 6 o'clock this morning and by 8 o'clock every batch was busy receiving clock every hatch was busy receiving lumber, a hurry call having been left with the longshoremen. The Lyra comes to take a cargo of lumber to Panama to be used in connection with the construction of the anal. She is a large craft belonging to the Boston Steamship company of Puget Sound and will carry nearly as much as the Thyra. The Lyra comes here from Tacoma while the Thyra bowled north from San Francisco where she recently arrived from Australia

"The American People Want to Be Humbugged"

Said P. T. Barnum about 30 years ago. That was about the time I started in business. My father said that kind of a racket might go in the circus business, but not in the bond business. He told me that Abe Lincoln's "You can't fool all the people all the time," was the proper way to look at things in business.

I founded my business on sound, upright principles, and it has stood on a foundation of fair and equitable treatment of patrons, superior quality at lowest prices, Golden Rule methods and the whole truth all the time.

There are some people who believe as Barnum did 30 years ago. I don't. We describe our goods exactly as they are and put the price down to the lowest possible mark. But that isn't all. We give you dependable quality and treat you right and I give you my personal assurance of a square deal.
