

GREAT IS INTEREST TAKEN IN AUTO ENDURANCE RUN

Sweepstakes Cup Presented by The Journal.

The farmers along the road between here and Salem and the inhabitants of the country towns are taking a huge interest in the endurance run which will be held by the Oregon Auto Dealers' association next Saturday. The country papers are mentioning the run prominently and no doubt a considerable portion of the route will be lined with people.

Fred Bennett, chairman of the committee in charge, went over the route in his car yesterday and found it in much better shape than he desired. He says that it will be a pleasant run and that there will be no danger of any one getting off the road if all follow the red arrows.

The cars will be started far enough apart so that each will escape the dust of the one ahead. No racing will be permitted, and every car which makes the round trip without accident and without stopping except according to schedule will make a perfect score. Should more than one car make a perfect score, the car using the least amount of gasoline will be adjudged the winner. Mr. Bennett believes that several cars will make the run with perfect scores.

Six cups will be given as prizes. There will be a cup for the winner in each of four classes, an economy cup and a sweepstakes cup. The latter will be the most coveted prize and will be given to the car making the best score regardless of class. This cup is noted by The Journal and is a handsome and massive piece of silver.

Mae Pendergrass Is Determined to Win Gillespie School Scholarship.

HECKART STRONGLY RECOMMENDED TO WIN

Splendid Advice Given by Two Workers—All Contestants Working Diligently and Every Scholarship Will Be Awarded at Finish of Canvass.

Miss Mae Pendergrass of 818 Savier street has entered The Journal contest to win the scholarship which this publication offers in the Gillespie School of Expression.

Miss Pendergrass was in The Journal's scholarship contest last year. Although she finished as No. 20 she, nevertheless, secured the scholarship of her choice, which was a year's tuition in the Gillespie school. Miss Pendergrass has been studying with Mrs. Gillespie herself during the last 10 months and she has made such good progress as to be able to give an evening's entertainment unassisted. She is anxious to complete the course in the Gillespie school, and it will require another year of study for her.

Training Helps Anywhere.

"Whether I follow the platform as a vocation or not," says Miss Pendergrass, "I shall be greatly benefited for any station by the training I receive from Mrs. Gillespie. It is the aim of the Gillespie school to give to its pupils such training in all that pertains to true expression, as will fit them for the better pursuit of any vocation."

The friends of Miss Pendergrass all are pleased with the results achieved by Mrs. Gillespie in instructing her during the last year and are willing to help the young lady win a second year's tuition.

Miss Pendergrass called on the contest editor yesterday to arrange for taking subscriptions. She wants to assure new contestants that teachers and the schools take great pains with students who come to them from The Journal, if her own experience is any guide.

Design of Gillespie School.

She says that the Gillespie School of Expression lives up to all its professions. She handed the contest editor several paragraphs on "the design of the school," and they are good. Here they are:

"Impression precedes expression, and that cultivation of self-knowledge and perspective by its trainees, which must be antecedent to the highest and truest impression, cannot fail to advantage one in any walk of life."

"The motto of the schoolroom is 'growth—growth from within, not from outside accretion. To this end the instruction in the Gillespie school discourages simple imitation and mimicry, while it uses the best helps from various established systems, as well as that which is new, original, to promote distinct individual development, physically, mentally and morally."

"Much stress is placed upon the care of the body and its training for grace, health and responsiveness. The physical and aesthetic culture that is most prominently used is endorsed by leading physical-culturists, physiologists and psychologists. It is adapted to all ages and conditions, does not call for special apparatus, and requires only such dressing, as is eminently hygienic at all times."

"The aim of the Gillespie school is not, therefore, merely to make teachers, readers or speakers, but by the development of the powers of the perfect trinity—body, mind and soul—to make life the expression of the good, the true and the beautiful."

Worthy of Confidence.

C. T. Hurd, the newly elected secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of the Oregon Agricultural college, writes The Journal model letter recommending Earl Heckart for consideration as a contestant. The letter was mislaid in the office of correspondence in the contest office and it just comes to light; but its subject matter is timely at this stage of the contest.

Corvallis, Ore. June 27.—To the Contest Manager, Oregon Journal—Dear Sir: It gives me real pleasure to write to you in behalf of Earl Heckart, who has entered the contest for a year's tuition at Dallas college. I have known him for over two years and can say to you that he is in every way an exemplary boy and deserving of any advantage that may be given him by the management of your paper. He is studious and deserves to learn. He is anxious to go to college next year and will make a good student and one worthy of the confidence of his friends. What is more, he is a Christian boy, a regular attendant at Sunday school and a member of the church.

"Thanking you for the opportunity of speaking this word in his interest, I am, yours sincerely, C. T. HURD."
