Machinists Find It.

Machinists at the Centennial Iron & Bofler Works, Fourth and Glisan streets, Boller Works, Fourth and Ginan streets, in overhauling an old boiler belonging to Elijah J. Arnoid, a well-known mer-ry-go-round owner, discovered tightly wedged in the dome of the steam gen-erator, an infernal machine constructed out of a pipe elbow, to which was at-tached three feet of quick fuse. The bomb was carefully taken to police headquarters, where it now reposes in one of the inner compartments of the beadquarters afe pending analysis by one of the inner compariments of the headquarters' safe, pending analysis by an explosive expert. A detective has been detailed to make an investigation. Several years ago Arnold, who has furnished unbounded amusement for the furnished unbounded amusement for the children of the city with a large carou-sal discarded a bolier he had been using to generate power for the engine op-erating his amusement device and stored the same on one of the docks. Closer examination revealed that fact that the pipe was closed at both ends with screw valves, and the fuse entered a small hole drilled in the center of the device. The police were notified and the affair is now being thoroughly investigated. No one at the station had the temerity to open the bomb, and all of the officers handled it very gingerly.

Children as Victims,

It was evidently the intention of the fiend to blow up the boller as soon as a fire was started. If the infernal ma-chine contains nitroglycerine great loss of life would have resulted, as Arnold's merry-go-round is patronized almost ex-clusively by children, and the young-sters always loiter near the machinery when not riding. It is regarded as a miracle that the workmen at the boller works in scaling the boller did not works in scaling the bofler did not strike the bomb with their hammers, as a disastrous explosion would have beer

An examination of the fuse shows that it has already started to crumple from age and exposure to the elements, and it cannot be determined when the bomb was placed in position for its work of destruction and death. First Steel Ship. From the London Times. We have received a letter from J. F. Lacon in which he states that a steel paddle steamer. Ma Robert, was built at Birkenhead in 1857 for the Livingston expedition, and that he has always been under the impression that this was the first steel ship. This our corre-spondent states, antedates the building of the ship Annie, which A. E. Seaton stated was built by Samuelson of Hull in 1864. Furthermore, Mr. Lacon says "As far back as 1853 Mr. Howell called the attention of shipbuilders and engi-neers to the value of mild cast steel for shipbuilding and kindred purposes, and in 1855 introduced it as Howell's homogeneous metal. The application of steel for ships' bollers, tubes, etc. and the use of this metal in the hull and bollers of the Ma Robert was the first instance of the application of steel for shipbuilding. Moreover, "it was also the first instance of the use cor shipbuilding the first instance of the use cor shipbuilding to shipbuilding. Moreover, "it was also the first instance of the use cor shipbuilding of the steel, the strength in tension of this steel being about thirty-six tons a square inch, with a limit of elas-ticity of about twenty-three tons."
