DEVELOPING MARBLE QUARRIES ON SNAKE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Lewiston, Idaho, Aug. 5.—George A. Shere, an expert from Minneapolis, within a few days will make a trip up the Snake river to inspect the marble quarries near the mouth of the Grand Ronde, owned by George H. Kester and associates, considered one of the most promising prospects in the west. Men who have been working at the quarry for the last two years now have a large shipment of high grade marble in a warehouse near the Snake river awaiting transportation to Lewiston. The building of the railroad from Huntington to Lewiston will open the quarries of the upper Snake river to the markets of the world and it is expected that the development of the marble and granite resources will be taken upon a large scale in the near future.

CHINA CAUSE OF FLEET'S TRANSFER

Probability of Trouble in Celestial Empire Brings Squadron to Pacific.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Washington, Aug. 5.—It is China, and not even remotely Japan, that has aroused the concern of Washington authorities in connection with the choosing of the Pacific as the next practice ground for a big battleship squadron, according to the deductions of some students of affairs, in the far east. China as an entity, it is believed in certain circles, is in a condition as precarious as the health of the dowager empress, and that when the falling health of the latter leads to its inevitable end, the empire will face a crisis that will make it wise for the United States to have a pre-arranged naval force within easy sailing distance.

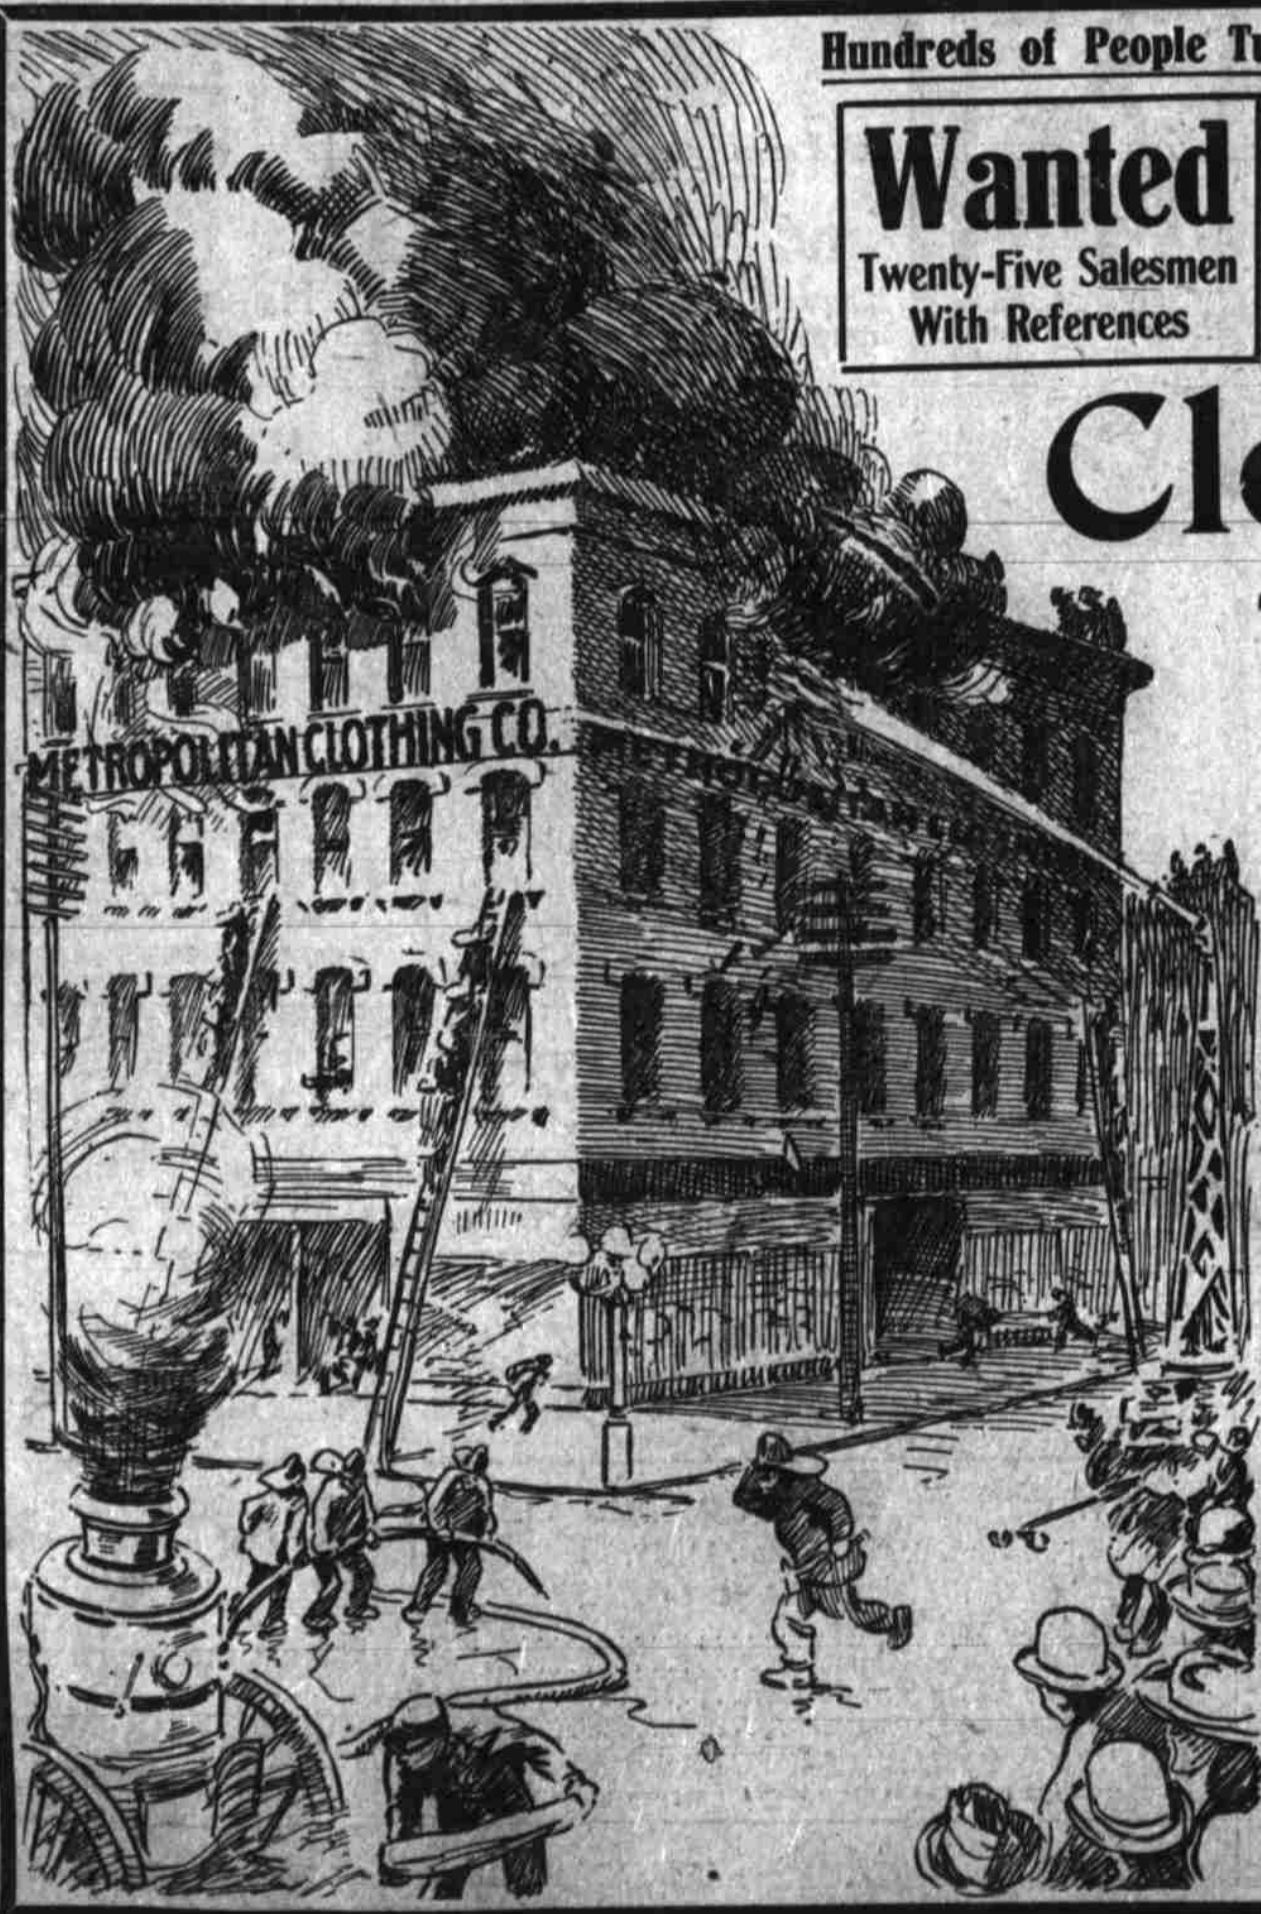

Dowager Empress Failing.
Little regarding the situation suggested by the above statements has been spoken in official or diplomatic circles, but commercial interests profess to have been keen observers of what is going on. From sources connected with the later comes the report that some time ago the administration here was quietly apprised that the health of the dowager empress was failing fast, and that when she goes to join the "guests on high" China will become the prey of plotters seeking to overthrow the Manchu Tartar dynasty.

At the same time the powers are deemed likely to take advantage of the situation again, by going in for the partition of the empire and possible closing of the open ports, that means so much to America, and towards securing which American statesmen have accomplished so much. Whatever happens, it is possible that the attempt will be made to seize the government by a strong leader outside the present dynasty, or through the exerting of the influence of the same leader and others to restore the descendants of Ming family to the throne.

Powers Will Mix Up.
Chances are several to one that the powers will find an excuse to get into the game to subserve their own interests. It has been pointed out that when trouble comes the nation that has the strongest influence in the Pacific waters will be likely to have the most influence with China. The knowledge that a crisis might be reached at any time, and in all probability was not to be delayed beyond a comparatively few months, is believed by many to have had a great deal to do in determining plans for the sending of the battleship squadron to the Pacific sea.

If this understanding of the situation be correct, it would be impossible, of course, to get government authorities to admit the real purpose of the naval movement at this stage of the proceedings. That there is to be a big mix-up over China is the firm belief of those whose private business affairs on a large scale embrace the territory within the empire. America's commercial interests demand, when such time comes, that it exert a strong influence with Chinese statesmen and political leaders.
