

MANY STEAMERS DUE TO ARRIVE

City of Panama Comes From the Bay City in Place of Columbia.

SMALLER CRAFT IN PASSENGER BUSINESS

Yosemite Will Bring Full List of Passengers to Disembark at Ainsworth Dock—Large Tramps Sail Across Ocean.

Four steamers are due to arrive here today from San Francisco, among them being the City of Panama, which comes to take the place of the lost Columbia. The other three are the steam schooners Casco and Yosemite and the steamship Geo. W. Elder. The steamer Alliance is also due to arrive from Coos Bay. In view of the fact that none had reported off the mouth of the river this morning it is probable that the party will not cross in until tomorrow.

All of the craft carry passengers, even the lumber dropper Yosemite having a number of them aboard, according to a dispatch received here this morning. The Yosemite is expected to come to one of the local docks to discharge her freight and to place the passengers ashore, before proceeding to Kalamazoo to take on lumber for a return cargo to the Bay City. The Casco will come to Greenview dock to load wheat and then go to one of the mills to finish with lumber. The City of Panama goes to Ainsworth dock, the regular berth of the San Francisco & Portland Steamship Company. Geo. W. Elder, of the North Pacific Steamship Co., berths at the foot of Seventeenth street.

The steamers Jim Butler, Nome City and Chas. Nelson, reached the river yesterday and went to their respective places to load lumber, the Chas. Nelson being at Westport, the Nome City at Stella, and the Jim Butler at Kalamazoo.

Two steamers, the Henrik Ibsen and Breakwater, left down last night, and one, the Mathilda, started for the sea this morning. The big lumber laden craft passed through the Madison street bridge draw at 7:30 o'clock this morning, and it took her fully an hour to turn around and get safely through. A dozen cars were tied up as a result and many people were delayed so that they came late to work.

The Mathilda goes to Australia with

FOR BETTER SERVICE.

Tatoosh Wireless to Connect With Puget Sound Cities.

The United States weather bureau is rapidly bringing about a complete telegraphic service in the Pacific northwest for the transmission of reports from the ocean to the shipping and commercial world. Not long ago the new wireless station at North Head was connected with the local office of the weather bureau by a direct wire, so that reports could be forwarded without relaying them, and now it is proposed to connect the wireless station at Tatoosh with a direct wire to the Puget sound office.
