

Closed All Day

To arrange stocks, to mark down and to bring the finest goods from their hiding places. The doors open precisely at 8 tomorrow morning. The entire store, the entire stock, the entire force of salespeople turned over to us, to handle as we consider best for the absolute disposal of all the remaining stocks while The Boston store buyers are east providing for the fall business. All over the big establishment you will find our agents cutting and slashing prices, selling the goods, not for what they are worth, but for what they will bring. We are not required to show profits, but we are pledged to show empty shelves and counters. In 30 days the sale will pass into history, but for those 30 days we will pay no regard to the original cost nor give profits the slightest consideration. The stock is ours to sell and we're going to sell it.

I'M HERE—Glad Indeed to Get Back to Your Beautiful Rose City

Famed for the handsomest roses, the most beautiful women in the land and for the most progressive people. Back to the land of matchless sunshine and sales. Back to the region of copious hospitality. And tomorrow I start my annual laughter. I know you'll be glad to hear it and I'm sure you'll be on hand to greet me. I've got something to say, too. I have many surprises for those who come during opening hours. Of course, you remember how I cut prices last year. You never can forget it. Well, that wasn't a drop in the bucket compared with the way I'm going to make things hum tomorrow. I'm going to show 'em up, the shameless imitators, who try to copy my methods, and I'm going to make them bury their heads in the sand. You know me! I want to make the first day a corker, and I'm willing to pay you well for helping me swell the crowds. Say "How-Do" when you see me, so I'll know you received this invitation.

Yours most strenuously

Prices talk ordinarily, but these about—they simply scream to men who have an eye to economy, to get busy and save a few dollars on needed garments. The management of the Boston Store will no doubt do some wondering when they see how utterly we have disregarded the usual run of things, but we think it better business to begin right at the bottom round of the price ladder, hen there will be absolutely no chance of our failure to complete our contract in the allotted time.
