

Clatsop Beach

Seaside, Or., Aug. 10 .- Clatsop Beach is growing in popularity with easterners and many are registered at the different hotels during the week, while others have taken cottages for the season. This summer has been unusually warm in most of the inland cities and consequently the beaches are crowded and probably will be until well into the Moore hotel and the House and bonfires blaze

Seaside House and bonfires blaze every evening on the sands. The boys are fond of building ingenious fireplaces constructed of rocks and sand. Huge fires for the pleasure of the guests of the different hotels are also given and the time is passed enjoyably in singing and story telling.

It is hard for the newcomer to wait for bathing hour, as all are anxious to try the surf bathing. Although hundreds go in bathing daily, there have been no drownings this year. The most popular bathing place is between the two lifelines in front of the Moore botel and to add to the safety of the bathers Dan J. Moore has engaged Mr. Bowers to patrol the heach during bathing lours. Mr. Bowers is an expert swimmer and has saved several people from rowning. Some very pretty bathing uits have been seen on the beach, but he majority of fair bathers put them it go in the surf, not to parade on he beach, in suits that would be positively ruined by the salt water.

Good Fishing and Eunting.

Fishing and hunting are always attractive to the "men folks" and many come down for the deep-sea fishing. Pacific pier has added much to the joy of these fishermen, as they may go out on the pier and drop their lines beyond the breakers without even the discomfort of getting wet. Trout fishing can also be had within good walking distance of Senside, and weary but proud fishermen with baskets filled with speckled beauties are a familiar sight. Clams and crabs are very plentiful at the beach this year and the hotels serve delicious fresh fish daily.

The "merry-go-round" is contributing much to the pleasure of the little tots and the older people make "martyrs" of themselves by taking the children to the "merry-go-round" instead of the circus. The vaudevilles and the stock company are doing well and really present some very good "thrillers," considering the price of admission.

Fancy work is claiming the attention mission.

Fancy work is claiming the attention of some of the ladies and many of them are taking advantage of the free lessons given by the teacher at the Needle Craft shop, which is a branch of the shop on Washington street in Portland, and of Miss Martin, who makes a specialty of her colored embroideries.

Parties continue to take the trip to Elk Creek and Cannon Beach, and no one should leave Senside before taking this trip, as the scenery is especially beautiful. It is hoped that the railroad will be through to Cannon Beach by next summer.

The golf course at Gearhart has been put into the best possible condition and from early morning till dusk devotees of the game may be seen making their way with more or less success over the grounds. Among the best players now at Kruse's Beach hotel are Miss Elsis Koehler, Mrs. G. W. Talbot, William B. Boulton of New York and Dr. E. De Witt Connell.

LISTEN TO THE MERRY SEA GULLS

Come and journey with me to the murmuring sea

We will gather their views on the gist of the news As they float through the translucent air banks,

We'll find out if they deem that the heaving of hay Helps to settle the Japanese question, Or if Loeb is so firm for a third—and tenth—term

We will know if chewinks makes a noise like a lynx

All these things and more we will learn as they soar

And in case we shall find that the keen sea gull mind

And wheel in their dizzy gyrations, Or flutter and flit with their white eyebrows knit

By the weight of their high cerebrations.

Won't accept old John D.'s aged stall. "Be good and you'll be barrels richer than me," We'll conclude they're NOT gulls after all.

When the shotgunning scientists gird 'em, Or if one T. R., who was list'ning afar, Would know them apart if he heard 'em. We'll find out if a trust would give up in disgust Because of the popular grudges
At extortions and sich which are making them rich,

And we'll learn if they think that that awful mixed drink

When the dun sun is sullenly sinking, And with gentle delight, through the velvety night, We will hark while the sea gulls are thinking.

Bonfire Innovation.

The unusually brilliant bonfire seen on the beach Monday night was the work of several young fellows from the Hackeney cottage.

Will Frank, Sloan Hackeney and others were responsible for the exceptionally fine and glorious evening. Mr. Frank entertained his guests with several selections on the guitar, Mr. Breed sang a sole and when several fine juley watermelons made their appearance and as quickly disappeared, the masculine entertainers were voted good fellows and royal entertainers.

Driving Parties Popular.

A number of driving parties were given this week, and only those who have experienced the pleasure of a long drive on the smooth, hard beach can appreciate what a driving party at the beach signifies.

A party of nine people from the Schait cottage drove to the life saving station, and after a clam hunt, at which two large baskets were filled, lunch was served under the trees.

Another party of seven drove from the Salt Air to Fort Canby on Monday afternoon, and reported a most delightful afternoon.

A crowd from the Candy Kid corner gave a hayride party on Tuesday evening, and drove to the cranberry marsh, Popcorn, candy and peanuts were consumed in great quantities during the drive and a more substantial lunch was sumed in great quantities during the drive, and a more substantial lunch was served later in the evening.

Card Parties in Vogue.

Owing to the rather unpleasant weather, card parties have been very much in vogue the latter part of the week. A five hundred party at the Harvest Home resulted in Mrs. Joseph West and George Nelson carrying off head prizes. Five hundred parties have also been held at the Driftwood, and a number of informs musicales have also taken place. Miss Luella and Edna Halght gave a five hundred party on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Mabel Southark of San Francisco. Walking parties are sometimes a case of necessity at this beach, but a walking party for pleasure was given by a number of young people from Seeview. The party walked to North Head, and as walking is conducive to ravenous appetites, the dainty lunch which was served was thoroughly appreciated. The walkers were Miss May Sheehy, Miss Margaret Sheehy, Miss Irene Loeb, Miss Maud Mastick, Miss Cora Mastick, Bob Ramsdell, Nell Fell, Edith Levy, Wilma Fisk, Louise Glisan.

At a very pleasant party given at the Seacroff, Mrs. Mathews entertained the guests by a mind reading contest. Mr. Raley performed some astonishing magnetic "stunts," but none of the guests became so "magnetized" but what they keenly enjoyed the jolly little supper provided for them by their hostess.

Tennis Tournament.

Tennis Tournament.

The tennis tournament at the Teakers aroused much enthusiasm along the guests and the benches in the courts were crowded every day by enthusiasts who applauded all the good plays. As some of Portland's best players were entered, Charlie Arthur, who was the youngest player, and who by his clever playing won the handsome cup was the modest recipient of much hearty congratulation. Those who entered were: Mr. Kruger, Mr. Ewing, Charles Arthur, Miss Inez Barsett, Joseph Rothchild, Miss Howe, Mrs. Irwin, Mr. Gottstein, Mason Ehrman, Ella Irwin, Mr. Mc. Crum, Frank Preston, James Rosenfeld, Arthur Rosenfeld, Miss Boschke, Mr. Preston. Tennis Tournament.

The concert at the Long Beach hotel. Sunday afternoon was a musical treat keenly enjoyed by the throng of people congregated on the hotel porches, sidewalks and every available place within hearing distance of the orchestra. The following program was rendered: "Little Johnny Jones," overture, "King Dode": selections, "Nature's Garden"; cornet solo, "Dixie Belis"; overture, "Popular Airs"; "Wedding of the Winds," "Dama of the Honey Bees," "Yankee Patrol."

Bridge Is Popular.

Bridge is a very popular game at the Breakers when the weather is threatening, and on a cloudy evening every table in the large parlor is pressed into service. As there is much musical talent at this popular hotel, there is always an informal musical after an evening of cards.

Miss Anne Ditchburn has done much to make these musicals a grand success, and the guests are always cagerly waiting to listen to her beautiful contraito voice. Miss Bnid Rothehild of Portland and Miss Tessie Preston of Seattle are among the clever planists.

Bathing is still extremely popular and although eastern visitors and southern people, accustomed to warmer water, stand on the beach and shiver sympathetically for the bathers, the old inhabitants of the beach rush in with a whoop and take the keenest delight in the exhilirating sport. The many pretty children at the beach this year is a fact frequently commented upon and at the bathing hour, the children are very much in evidence and seem to be 18.14 in their element. Both boys and giffare extremely venturesome and children are seldom allowed on the beach unless properly chaperoned.

Musical at The Breakers.

A very smart musical was given in the parlors of The Breakers on Wedness. has reached its Highest at North Beach, and when the Potter came down on Saturday with a record-breaking crowd the hotels were so evercrowded that many of the pleasure seekers were obliged to return to the boat and find sleeping accommodations on board.

Almost every cottage on the beach has its full quota of visitors, and as all visitors are being royally entertained, the week has been one continual round of pleasure. The dance at the Breakers to Saturday evening was a very brilliant affair and many pratty gowns were worn.

Portland society was well represented and among those enjoying the evenings gainty were Miss Ines Barnett, Miss Entitlency and Stone, Miss Entitle word of young people who are among Portland's best musicians, the guests at Hackeney's higher at the beach rush in with a whoop and take the keenest delight in the skillian form are very word.

Many social affairs, picnics and bonfires were called off on account of the rain during the early act of the week, but life at the hotels was gayer than ever. Cards, informal lances and music were the program. Fature telling and palm reading aroune big open fire-places at the Moore amused the guests on Wednesday evening and all decided that a storm at the beach was a rather pleasant and unique experience, as many had never seen the surt so rough. Extra prescutions were taken against drowning accidents on Wednesday and Thursday, as the undertow was unusually strong. Dan J. Moore went out on the pler on Wednesday during bathing hours and warned the bathers through the megaphone that the undertow was dangerous and not to venture out far.

The First Battery Field artillery. O. N. G., are in camp on the Holladay grounds, and every afternoon there are drills on the Seaside house lawn.

Mrs. John Gill entertained at her cottage "Kimhin." in honor of Mrs. Dyer of San Francisco, on Thursday afternoon. Whist was played and dainty refreshments served on the small tables. Mrs. Dyer, who is a cousin of Mrs. Kendell, will leave for San Francisco on Friday.

A party from The Moore, composed of Miss Murphy, Miss Adeline Murphy, Miss Celeste Moore, Mrs. M. Dooley, Mrs. Dan J. Moore, and M. J. Liooley Jr., drove to Elk creek Monday, returning Wednesday afternoon. Tuesday night the party enjoyed a "wigwam" bonfire on the beach. Tonsted marshmallows and roasted sweet potatoes composed the menu of the evening's refreshments.

Mrs. Talbot chaperoned a horseback party from Astoria to Ecole and Cannon beach Wednesday. Those in the party were Miss Unna Boyd, of Philadelphia. In the evening a candy pull was enjoyed.
