LARGEST AUDIENCE ATTENDED CONCERT

A larger audience than ever before attended the park band concert at City park yesterday afternoon. The program was the most classic ever chosen and the applause showed not only that the people of Portland appreciate the higher class of music but also that the band is one of which the city may justly feel proud. The most difficult numbers were admirably well rendered. The Misere from "Ill Trovatore" was perhaps most familiar and it was enthusiastically received. The "Skeleton Dance" by Saint-Saens, one of the best description works away produced.

Dance' by Saint-Saens, one of the best descriptive works ever produced, was splendidly rendered, as was also Grieg's "Peer Gynt," suites a and b. Both numbers were warmly applauded. As usual Signor De Caprio scored a hit with his baritone solos.

Tomorrow night the band will play at Holladey park.

REALTY TRANSFERS TOTALED OVER $100,000

Realty transfers amounting to more than $100,000 were recorded Saturday. These sales were mostly transfers of large tracts and blocks to real estate firms and real estate buyers who for the most part are acquiring them for immediate sale as residence lots. The most notable of these acquisitions were some pieces of property in the north-eastern part of the city in the vicinity of Holladay avenue and East Twenty-eighth street. The Oregon Realty company bought this property from F. E. Andrews.

LID TIGHTLY FITTED ONCE AT BAKER CITY

Baker City, practically the only city in the state in which gambling is permitted, at one time had a lid tightly fitted and sat upon by Sheriff H. K. Brown, according to Rev. Everett M. Hill, who was at Baker City when the sheriff closed the town.

Sheriff Brown and the district attorney who served then were practically alone in enforcing the law, said Dr. Hill, and they had nearly all the business men of the town opposed to them, because it was believed then that an open town would be more prosperous than a closed town. The next time an election was held, a new sheriff was elected and the saloons and gambling again run wide open.

GOOD STRIKES MADE BY MANY PROSPECTORS

Many prospectors are in the hills and good strikes are being made in the Sucker creek district, where the famous Briggs mine is located. The Briggs where they are working placer property that they claim is yielding as high as $1.00 to the pan. Portland mining men who visited the place are of the opinion that their statements are not exaggerated.

William Trevor and G. Cooper, pres-

exaggerated.

William Trevor and G. Cooper, president and vice-president respectively of the Trevor Mines company, have returned from a six weeks stay at their mines located on the California-Oregon boundary, in Josephine and Siskiyou counties. In a company has nine claims that are being opened at various points. They have about 160 feet of tunnel completed and are opening very promising ledges of free milling gold quarts. It is their intention to steadily push development work this year and put a mill on the property next spring.

Mr. Trevor was a few years ago one of the fortunate locators of rich copper properties in the Cuprum district, on the Snake river, where a number of copper mines are now developed and awaiting completion of the Oregon Short Line extension, which is being built from Huntington to Lewiston. The new road will immediately get a very large ore tonnage from this district, which is said to be one of the best copper districts in the world.

The Briggs gold quarts mine, known as the "Wounded Buck" on Sucker creek, discovered accidentally by young Briggs while chasing his dog away from the lunch basket, was at first supposed to be a detached lode or freak, but has turned out upon development to be a permanent, rich mine. The Briggs family picked about $60,000 of pure gold out of the seam that young Briggs found in the rock, and afterwards they sold the claim to a mining man who thoroughly investigated it to a considerable depth and sold to the property to an eastern syndicate for $450,000. The mine is now in charge of the siderable depth and sold to the property to an eastern syndicate for $450,000. The mine is now in charge of the syndicate and will be opened on a large scale as soon as it can be prepared for and equipped with machinery.

to take place in the roll of officers of the Y. M. C. A. and new men are coming to take the place of those who are leading the Portland association. W. E. Wright has accepted the position of general secretary at Bellingham, Washington, and will leave for his new labors August 15. F. W. Hellman of "The Portland association is the great training school for leaders in all branches of the work." said W. E. Wright, in speaking of the changes to be made. "This association has sent out more men to other cities than any other coast association. The late Reno Hutchinson, of Spokane, had his training here, and Oscar Cox of Sait Lake, also Fred Witham of Boise.

"Several changes are planned for the fall, such as enlarging the boys' room, improvements in the educational work and other minor matters.

"It is true that the work of grading went on yesterday at the site of the new association building, but it was not because it was so ordered by the officers of the association. S. W. Stone, secretary of the local association is out of town and no one was apprised of the action of the contractor, J. C. Cook, who is a rustler at quick work."

At the Y. M. C. A: men's meeting yesterday afternoon J. J. Handsaker, who was one of the speakers at the Chautauqus at Gladstone, delivered an address on the book of Amos, discussing the call of Amos from the farm to deliver to the Hebrew people a distasteful message from God. Mr. Handsaker said the book is a reproof to ministers who deliver smooth sermons simply because they are popular. He will lecture at the Rodney avenue Christian church, corner of Knott street and Rodney avenue, every evening this week, including Friday.
