S. Weinstein, one of the two partners of the New York Outfitting company, has just returned from New York where he has been for the past two months purchasing goods for the fall season. Mr. Weinstein was accompanied by his wife and together they visited several points of interest on the Atlantic coast. "Goods are high in all lines, but we were particularly fortunate in securing at old contract prices an immense stock of men's and women's wearing apparel of all kinds," said Mr. Weinstein this morning. "We are going to enlarge many of our departments the coming season."

Attendance at the Jamestown fair is still far from the expectations of the management, but is now increasing steadily, according to a letter received by Jefferson Myers from C. A. Wood, assistant to the director of admissions and concessions. Fireworks have been made use of to draw the crowds, and have proved effective. The Seattle exposition people have an advertising booth at the Jamestown fair, and are exploiting the northwest attraction with much energy.

The first meeting of the Holy Name society was held Sunday in the Sacred Heart church hall. The officers of the new organization are A. McDonald, president; J. Urquhart, vice-president; J. Frankawa, secretary; A. McDonald, treasurer. Six councilors and a marshal were appointed by President McDonald. The society has for its object the advancement of Sacred Heart parish.

Gets a Good Location. The White Sewing Machine company have secured the lease of the corner store in the new Baker building at Eleventh and Washington. This will make one of the finest locations of any sewing machine agency in the city, and H. D. Jones is to be congratulated for his success in getting hold of a central and permanent place for the White Sewing Machine. Mr. Jones attributes a good deal of his success in building up a large business to the liberal use of printers' ink.

BRAVE JESSIE HADLEY

MISS JESSIE HADLEY

Miss Jessie Hadley, who saved her aunt, Mrs. Sarah J. Riskey, aged 64 years, from death in the Willamette river opposite the South Portland shipyards at noon yesterday by wonderful presence of mind, is but 15 years old. Miss Hadley, however, is an excellent swimmer, and did not lose her head when suddenly precipitated into the cold water of the river.

The heroine and her aunt were crossing the river in a canoe to carry Jessie's father's dinner to him, where he is employed as a painter in the South Portland shipyards. Her father is H. Hadley. The family lives near Yachelt landing, a short distance north of the Oaks on the electric line. The girl had been accustomed to paddle across the river every day for many weeks, and felt reasonably confident in her ability to handle the canoe.

When nearly across to the west side, Mrs. Riskey thought she would help her niece. She took up an extra paddle, but not understanding the peculiarities of the light craft who turned it over. Miss Hadley dived after the form of her aunt as it was disappearing for the third time in the deep water, brought it to the surface and held it there until four boats put out by the laborers in the shipyards came to their rescue and brought them safely ashore.

Mrs. Riskey has only been in Portland a short time, coming from Omaha, Nebraska, to visit her relatives.

INSPECTOR OF HULLS EDWARDS CAPTURES SEA SERPENT IN BAY

Captain E. S. Edwards, inspector of hulls, is heading for Portland with one of the most remarkable freaks of nature ever captured by a human being, so his fellow inspector, Captain Fuller, announced this morning. Captain Edwards has been sojourning on Yaquina Bay for the past three weeks and will be home tonight or tomorrow morning, with the freak snugly put away in his grip. In a letter to Captain Fuller, Captain Edwards says that he captured a sea serpent off Yaquina Bay while fishing one day ten miles off shore. It is even more remarkable, he writes, than the ordinary sea serpent used occasionally to advertise summer resorts on the beaches and will make a splendid acquisition to the inspectors' museum in the Custom house building.

Friends of Captain Edwards who have been told of the serpent are skeptical and say they will believe the story when they see the serpent suspended among the other relics and curios on the walls of the museum, but not before.

Captain Edwards once told of how he had seen a pumpkin about the size of Council Crest and an artist, hearing him tell the tale, painted a composite picture of Captain Edwards and the pumpkin. The former being about the size of a parlor match and the latter twice as large as a football. The comparison was so well drawn, according to the inspector's own judgment, that the picture now adorns the honored position in the museum picture gallery.

A total of about 35 miles of construction of the Pacific Railway & Navigation company's line in Tillamook county is now under contract to Portland men. McCabe Bros., of this city yesterday secured a contract for four and a half miles in addition to the tunnel they are now driving. They will assemble materials at once and push the grading work. The Portland Construction company has contracts for about 20 miles, and for the equipping of the same has a large force of men at work between Tillamook and the Nehalem river. A party of surveyors was sent yesterday to follow the east fork of the Santiam with the hope of finding an easy grade from Lebanon over the Cascade range to the upper Deschutes and thence to Bend and Prineville.

A number of possible routes for the extension of the Corvallis & Eastern to Crook county are being examined by Southern Pacific engineers. A party of surveyors was sent yesterday to follow the east fork of the Santiam with the hope of finding an easy grade from Lebanon over the Cascade range to the upper Deschutes and thence to Bend and Prineville.

It is expected consideration of several gas franchises pending before St. Johns council will be had tonight at the regular meeting of that body. It is reported one of the applications may be withdrawn, but promoters of both other companies promise immediate installation of up-to-date plants should they be granted franchises.

Completion of the Riparia-Lewiston railroad, constructed jointly by the Harriman and Hill companies along the River valley, will be celebrated this fall by the Lewiston Fair association. A Portland day has been designated, and October 15th is the date when the Portland commercial interests are expected to make a showing of attendance at the fair. The association sent a representative, H. L. Powers, to Portland to present the invitation in person, and he addressed the board of governors of the Commercial club at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

The following program will be rendered by the park band at Holladay park this evening: "General Sumner's Victory" (De Caprio); overture, "William Tell," (by request (Rossini)); a hunting scene (Rucelossi); vaudeville acts at variance, from "Comptel's" (Delibes); "Russo's" of Scotland, by request (Godfrey).

Intermission—Selection, "I. O. U." by request (Johnson); Paraphrase, "Mama's in the Cold, Cold Ground" (Clappe); Intermexzo, "The Flower Girl" (Wen-nick); "La Czarine, marquis" (Russo) (Ganne); march, "Chicken Charlie" (Ballou).

A De Caprio, director.

PHONOGRAPHS ARE DECLARED NUISANCE

City Plans Prohibitive Licenses or Permanent Revocation for Nuisances.

Whining, wattering phonographs and grinding, rasping electric pianos will no longer grate on the nerves of Portland's apartment population. If the city fails to be rid of them by prohibitive licenses, then they will be peremptorily revoked.

In the license committee meeting of city council yesterday vigorous objection was made to these mechanical music producers by the protesting apartment dwellers. The instrument in front of the Vodelta, a 5-cent moving picture show in the Gearin building at Thirteenth and Washington streets. Residents at the Nortonia and Carleton, fashionable apartment houses, have become so disturbed by the incessant playing of the instruments that they have threatened to move from the vicinity. This would be ruinous to the proprietors of these family hotels, they assert, and the council was accordingly asked to give some relief.

The protests are not aimed alone at the Vodelta, but the revulsion of feeling is general all along Washington street. A moving picture show farther down the street is the object of the same protest, and in order to give protection to the larger enterprises it was concluded to proceed against all noise-producing devices of the kind.

Members of the council expressed personal opinions relative to the phonographs, and none viewed their existence with favor. They have no desire to suppress music in connection with the shows, but they want the music kept within the theatre proper, so that the disturbance can be avoided.

CHINESE MERCHANT HAVING HARD TIME

Unless an amendment is attached to the present auction-house ordinance Andrew Kan will be compelled to keep closed his Fifth street auction-house. No relief is in sight for the Chinese merchant of 25 years' residence in Portland.

Kan appealed to the license committee yesterday through his attorney, C. E. Wood, for a reissuance of the license revoked two months ago by the council. Colonel Wood tried to show the committee that Kan's intentions were good in conducting his auction-house in view of his long identification with the business interests of Portland. He cited that the amendment to the existing ordinance passed some two years ago, which fixed a $20 a day license on oriental wares, was made to protect the people from the dishonest auctioneers of the Japanese and Chinese goods left over from the Lewis and Clark exposition. In view of the source of the amendment, Mr. Wood thought the ordinance discriminating and did not believe it would stand a test of the courts.

There are two distinct classes of auction-house licenses. The first class pays a license of $150 a year and is permitted to auction goods that have been in the state over a year. The other class pays $20 a day for the privilege of selling at auction Chinese, Persian and Japanese goods and jewelry. Kan paid a first-class license, but sold goods designated under the second class.
