ODAY'S MARKETS

When All Is Said and Done There Is No Comparison Between Quality of Onions Here and From Elsewhere.

Stocks Not Given Chance to Mature—Price Is Good With Small Supply.

Today's market features: Onion crop will be small. Buying spuds for the north. Buying barley for the south. Oats supplies are moving. Valley wheat going into warehous Egg market firm and up. Chickens hold at former figure. Apple demand is beginning to gro Butter strength is pronounced.

Onion Grop Will Be Small. Every day's news from the enion-growing sections of the state confirm the early predictions made by The Journal that the onion crop of Oregon will not be so liberal as a year ago. Today'n reports indicate that not only Today a reports indicate that not only will be crop show a smaller volume but it sizes will be small. This latter news is confirmed by Ole Olsen, a well-known grower of the west side who resides at Olsen station. He said today: "While the quality of the Oregon onion this season will be as good if not better than usual, the output will not be so liberal as a year aro. "While the quality of the Oregon onon this season will be as good if not better than usual, the output will not be so liberal as a year aro. On my place I notice that the onions are already beginning to drop quite lively an this will not give much of the crop a chance to attain large size. I have irrigated my onions quits well so the droppling is not caused by too much dryness. There seems to be something wrong with general weather conditions.
That's the only way I can explain the present heavy droppings."

Onion Market is Very Strong.

With receipts still rather light the onion trade is on a firmer basis than heretofore this season. Farmers are busy with their farm work so are not bringing supplies to market. Receipts of local stock of late have shown unusually good quality. Prices have kept close to the top thus far and buyers are

OREGON ONIONS ARE AHEAD OF ALL OTHERS

"Oregon onions are far ahead of those being received from Walla Walla, as far as shipping qualities are concerned. While the sizes are rather small you could not find an onion anywhere that will compare with those raised in this state the considered. Stocks are unusually firm and will soon crowd outside stock out of market."-George Davenport, of Davenport Bros.

POTATO PROSPECTS

THE BEST IN YEARS

"This year's crop of potatoes looks better than any other crop I have seen in Oregon during the past 10 or 12 years. The quality is almost perfect every-where. I have just returned from a trip through eastern Multnomah and Clackamas and found the yield prospects to be the best in many years. Prospecting tours showed that the quality was first class."-W. I. Bresent arrivals are much better shippers than those received from Walla and will therefore take the leading prices from this time forth.

Buying Spuds for Alaska.

Buyers are out in the country today endeavoring to secure matured potatos stock for Alaska shipment. The large government order has been awared to a Puget Sound house but supplies there are so small that local dealers were given large-shares of the trade and are how trying to buy. The Front-street market is very firm for whites at top values. Reda may be said to be a trifle easter.

Chickens Eold at Eigh Values.

A very good position is retained by the local chicken market. Receipts of late have not been heavy; just about liberal enough to supply the current demand at ruling values and dealers, while they have tried to secure a rise, have not advanced their quotations because buyers will not pay it.

The egg market is firmer especially for guaranteed local stock. Receipts are still rather small. Quality of late arrivals has been generally good and for best, stock the trade is today receiving as high as 25 cents a dozen. From that the value rules down to 24 cents for good stock.

Creamery butter market has a firmer tone than at any time this season. This is due to the diminished supplies and to the very healthy demand from the home trade. There is not a sufficient amount of butter to send outside, all creameries reporting that their supplies are shore. The advance to 37th cents.

mount of butter to send outside; all creameries reporting that their supplies are shore. The advance to 37½ cents made by one creamery yesterday was not followed today by other makers but all agreed that the price may possibly go up next week. However, the general idea is that the market will drop later in the season when regular rains begin.

Brief Notes of the Trade.

Prune demand is rather small for fresh stock. Canning not yet started. California watermelons still show unusually fine quality. Those received yesterday from The Dalles likewise. Price same.

As predicted in this report, local hop men with European connections, are gradually cutting down their estimates of the English yield. Cables told of too great improvement in crop all within 24 hours. No spot business reported. Apple demand is increasing with the much better quality.
