By Clarence True Wilson.

To Klamath, sooner or later, go all senators and candidates. To Klamath also go some who are neither. Delegates from the California conference went there to decide what the Methodists would do in the rapidly growing Klamath district. Accordingly, on Monday, August 5, Dr. W. B. Hollingshead and I started for Thrall, California. On the following morning at 10 o'clock we got off at the city of tents to await the starting of the Pokesama train.

At Pokesama, R. E. Dunlap, the missionary presiding elder of that region, met us with his handsome pair of black horses, good for the 30-mile drive which awaited us to Klamath Falls. As evening fell a turn in the road revealed the beautiful Klamath lake with the city of Klamath Falls lying horse-shoe shape around the west of the lake. There were many things to see, among them as handsome a high school building as I have ever seen, a grammar school, both built of stone.

We went to the new building now in process of construction, known as the "First Methodist Church," which was not yet finished. We were not satisfied until we had a glimpse of that wonder which all travelers will see and all who have seen it will never forget. We followed the great irrigation ditch being constructed by the government, upon which they have already spent $1,000,000, which is to irrigate 40 miles square of the most fertile land to be found under the stars and stripes. Finally we came to the upper lake, and following the river bank which flows to the lower lake, we came upon the famous snakes. No one could believe the story if I should not tell it.

Slither Played With Frogs.

We have seen snakes singly, and in groups; we have heard the boy's story about "forty-seven cats on our back" and the man's story about "snakes coming up to sun themselves by the millions, collecting in such piles that the snakes under the sun, which will not be able to miss each other, this was the sight of our lives. Not so interesting to me as to see my dignified presiding elder, of whom I had always stood in such awe, shoveling these frogs onto pieces of bark and floating them down the river, playing raft.

On Wednesday afternoon we drove to Bonanza. On the following day we returned to Klamath Falls, and the next day drove to the home of Presiding Elder Dunlap in the pine forest, seven miles north of Klamath Falls. One of our party secured a willow switch in order to locate water, for this clergyman who had dug a well of 40 feet in vain, and who had been told to see the two presiding elders dig during the remainder of the afternoon for the stream which they imagined they had located.

Indians Buy Church House.

On Saturday, the 9th, Presiding Elders Dunlap and Hollingshead, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Conklin, and myself, drove north to the reservation, 22 miles to the Klamath Indian reservation.

OREGON PEOPLE KNOW LITTLE OF ITS BEAUTY

Apartment on Four Floors Have Been Given Names by Sierra Poet. Located in District Already Famous for Gold Discoveries.

Amusement is expressed in many comments made on the wonderful Oregon cave in Josephine county, and one of the most surprising features of the whole, matter is the lack of former knowledge by Oregon people themselves concerning this cave. Joaquin Miller has named it "the Marble Halls of Oregon," and in collaboration with Jefferson Myers, has given separate names to each of the apartments in it.

Names for Different Rooms.

The cave rooms will be known in future as follows:

First floor—Lower entrance—River Styx, Watson's Gorge, Davidson's Bear Pit, Rache's Well, Roosevelt's Canyon, Paradise Lost, Moses Chamber, Joseph's Tomb.

Second floor—Upper entry—Shark's Jaw, Nick's Beg Chamber, Queen's Palace, King's Palace, Pillar Room, King's Highway, Niagara Falls, Windy Passage, Theatrical Stage, Joaquin Miller's Room, Washington's Statue, Nick's Slide (dangerous—bottomless pit), Treasurer's Chamber.

Third floor—Golden Stairway, Jefferson Myers Room, Solomon's Temple (35x16x28), Ghost Chamber, Kincaid's Dance Hall, Holy of Holies.

Fourth floor—Oregon Loft, unexplored.

The location of the great cave, on Sucker creek, near the southern Oregon boundary, is famous for other things. The Sucker creek, which the Briggs boy discovered a seam of pure gold and picked a fortune from it with pocket knives, today the region is the scene of active mining developments, and a number of valuable strikes have been made. The whole district is seen through a halo of golden romance, into which the great cave fits.

From the town of Kerby, the cave is reached by a wagon road and foot trail, built some years ago by Captain A. B. Smith, F. M. Nickerson, A. J. Henderson, Homer and Ernest Harkness, men who successfully owned the place and undertook to open it up and attract the public to visit it as one of the world's wonders.

Cave Is Federal Property.

Finally the government in segregating the Siskiyou forest reserve, withdrew the entire district, including the cave, and it became federal property. It is now in charge of forest rangers. It is estimated that the cave contains more than 20 miles of rooms. They are on four floors or more, and connected in various ways by passages. They are entered through a hole in the face of a white marble hill, through which a river pours out and drops with 30 feet fall into the canyon below. Jefferson Myers, describing the formation inside the cave, said:

"The interior is apparently solid white marble. There are many stalactites, some of them over a foot thick and 50 feet long, and as clear as glass.

The five-column advertisement of the Champion Group Mining company in today's paper says: "The company, acquired by purchase, consists of all two groups of tracts and certain properties, at a low estimate worth $250,000 each. These were consolidated into one corporation at the small capitalization of $500,000, repaid by $600,000 shares of stock at the par value of $1 each share, fully paid up and non-assessable. On Friday of last week Mr. Davidson closed by wire a deal for the purchase of 21 copper claims, covering a stretch of 15,000 feet or over 49 miles, along the side of a thoroughly proven copper property for which the price was $75,000. This, too, has been thrown into the corporation, so that today the assets of the Champion group is backed by both the gold and copper enterprises. It is, therefore, one of the strongest propositions of its kind in Oregon. The gold and its shares are to soon be doubled in price."

Milton J. Stearns, 1066 Grand avenue, who died at his home last Saturday after a long illness with heart trouble, was a descendant of Isaac Stearns, who left Europe for the new world in the ship Arabella in 1639, landing on the Atlantic coast June 12. Mr. Stearns was born March 27, 1847, at Lincoln, Vermont, and came to Portland in 1871. He was engaged in the grocery business in Portland until seven years ago when his health compelled him to retire. He is survived by a widow, a son, Ralph, and two brothers, Daniel W. of Vancouver and Wesley R. of this city.

Because of alterations to be made in the building and also in the company the further production of "His Little Joke" at the Grand Union theatre in the Burkhard building on the east side will be discontinued for the remainder of the week. On Monday evening, August 19, however, the company will resume under the general management of Walter C. Farnham, who will present an entirely new list of plays and productions.

Gasoline escaping from a tank in the stand of Pietro Ceresinello, a popcorn vendor at Fifth and Morrison streets, was ignited by the heat from the popcorn and in an instant the awnings of the stand were blazing merrily. The Italian turned in an alarm and with the aid of truck No. 10 the fire was extinguished with little damage save that to the stock and awnings.

A new order for letterheads for the Oregon Development league's printer in Portland brings the number of letterheads used by this body up to 112,000 in the last year. The number is an indication of the growth of the league, which is carried on with a correspondence relative to Oregon's resources and opportunities as a state for the home-seeker.

On Tuesday Dr. Hollingshead and I took the stage coach to go through the 30 miles of timber, which intervened between the falls and Pokesama. We reached Thrall at 2 o'clock the same day, and as one was a fisherman and the other a swimmer, we utilized the beautiful Klamath river according to taste. I really got my bath, but Dr. Hollingshead toiled all day but caught no fish.

The commission, consisting of Dr. Hollingshead and Dunlap from Oregon and Dr. Williams and McCready from California, looked into the religious interests of the new country very thoroughly. It was decided that no improvement could be made in organizing it into a mission and left it as before in a presiding elder's district. It is to be continued by Mr. Dunlap, under the administration of the Methodist church has gone ahead of all others in the field.

We returned with a confidence that the scenic wonder, healthful climate, mineral resources, fertility of soil and varied products of the Klamath district have not been and will not be exaggerated.

COUCH STREET LOT BRINGS GOOD PROFIT

Property Bought Four Months Ago Sells at 25 Per Cent Increase.

F. F. Haradon has sold to John G. Edwards the 50-foot lot at the north-east corner of Thirteenth and Couch streets for $12,000. Mr. Haradon purchased this lot about four months ago for $10,000, thus clearing up a profit of 20 per cent on his investment. It is understood that Mr. Edwards will put substantial improvements on this property as the buildings now on it are old and practically worthless.

Albert Walling has purchased a quarter-block, occupied by a modern hotel, at Broadway. The property belonged to M. F. Pinckney and was sold for $4,200.

The house and lot at the northwest corner of East Twentieth and Schuyler streets has been purchased by A. A. Courtney from the Security Savings and Trust company. The consideration involved was $3,750.

Benjamin H. Rosch, who has been a resident of Portland since 1881, died at the family residence, 223 Twelfth street, last night. He was 67 years old and a native of Ohio. In 1852 he crossed the plains with his parents, settling near Harpersburg, Iowa. Mr. Rosch is survived by the following children: Rev. George H. Rosch of Bandon, Oregon; Mrs. M. and Mrs. A. Rosch of this city. Announcement of the funeral arrangements is being delayed pending the arrival of a brother of the deceased, who lives in Coos county.

Kelly Butte prisoners will hereafter have the consolation of religious teaching, provided the plans as outlined by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, pastor of the Methodist church are put into effect. Dr. Wilson has secured the permission of the county court to preach to these unfortunate every Sunday afternoon. Dr. Wilson has also made arrangements with several of the young women members of his church to supply these prisoners with flowers, fruits and Christian literature.

The funeral of William L. Towne was held yesterday afternoon from Holman's undertaking establishment, interment being in the Grand Army cemetery. Mr. Towne died at Mount Taber August 14. He was a veteran of the One Hundred and Fortieth Illinois Infantry and the Eighth cavalry. He was a brother of the wife of Department Chairman Henry E. Barden of the G. A. R.

James J. Brady known to Nearly Every Newspaper on Two Continents.

James J. Brady, press representative of Ringling Brothers' show, is one of the best known men in his profession connected with traveling attractions. This is saying a good deal, of course. Nevertheless, to use the vernacular of the profession, it's a true bill. Be that as it may, the genial, easy-going, ready-to-tell-all James J. Brady arrived in Portland Saturday evening and announced to workers on Rose City newspapers that he was here to remain as a daily attraction wherever circuses and wild shows appear. They are James J. Brady and Major Burke of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. In many respects both are similar, except perhaps, Major Burke is the older of the pair. Both are fast friends and each uses the same tactics in getting his attraction before the public eye. Both are finished newspaper writers and each knows how and when to tell the interesting story. Both are men of smile no matter what trouble or care is on the mind.

Mr. Brady says he has an ace to grind in the game of writing what the local public should know regarding the many features of interest connected with Ringling Brothers' show.

BAND CONCERTS COME TO CLOSE THIS WEEK

Music Fund Is Exhausted—Thousands Hear Program Yesterday.

This will probably be the last week of the free band concerts by the Park band. The last concert will be given Friday night unless more money is forthcoming since the appropriation set aside by the city will be exhausted by that time.

The concerts are immensely popular and will be missed during the remaining weeks of fine weather. Thousands attended the concert in the City park yesterday afternoon and the band appeared at its best. From the heavy Tannhauser overture to the delicate intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana every number made a hit and encore were frequent.

Herr Bruno Antonious Heitkemper's bass clarinet solo and Signor De Caprio's baritone solo were featured and both called for encores. Signor De Caprio responded with the ever pleasing "Innamorata."

The streetcar company reaped a harvest yesterday in carrying the throngs to and from the park. Tomorrow night's concert will be given at Holladay park.

Potter Schedule for Beach.

The steamer Potter will sail from Portland, Ast street dock: Tuesday, 12 noon; Wednesday, 1 p. m.; Thursday, 8:30 a. m.; Saturday, 7:30 a. m. Get tickets at reservation office, 100 city ticket office, Third and Washington streets. C. W. Stinger, city ticket agent.
