feature of the game was the batting of Third Baseman Mott, who singled every time he came to bat. The visitors played an errorless game.

All the runs were made in the third inning. Both Groom and Gray were hit freely, but no damage was done except in the third. Fay reached first on Dillon's murf of a throw and Groom and Mott each singled and filled the bases. Casey came up with a single to right, which Cravath booted, and three scored.

Los Angeles made her only run on two singles, a pass and a fielder's choice. The official score:

NOTES OF THE GAME

Rah for Mott!

A dispatch from Los Angeles says that Walter Carlisle and "Gavy" Cravath, the heavy-hitting outfielders, have both been sold to the Boston Americans. The price paid for Carlisle is said to have been $2,500; for Cravath $2,000.

The wonderful hitting feat of little Carliele Sunday, when he made those three home runs in one game, was much commented on in baseball circles yesterday and the question arose as to where it ranked with other great feats with the stick. Several men in the various league teams of the country have hit safely five and six times consecutively in bail games, but few have hit for as many bases as did Caritisle. In 1884 Dave Orr of the St. Louis Browns made two home runs, a triple and a double from five times at bat. In 1886 Guy Hecker and Dan Brouthers made hits enough to give them 15 total bases. In 1889 Larry Twitchell of Cleveland made two home runs and three triples from the delivery of Mike Madden. This record stood for five years, when Link Lowe of Boston hit Chamberlain of the Cincinnati team for four home runs and a single, and in 1896 Ed Delehanty hit Terry of Chicago for the same number of hits. remarkable hitting feat. "When we were playing at Fresno we pulled off a good joke on Bill Devereaux," said Happy Hogan, the catcher. "Down there we played on an immense field. It was no more possible to put the ball over center field fence than knock it across the bay here. One could the ball over center field fence than knock it across the bay here. One could hardly see center field fence, let alone tally a home run over it. It was no uncommon thing to see a jackrabbit run across the field. One day one of the boys found a dead rabbit which had been shot. The Oakland team hadn't arrived on the grounds, so we thought of this. We got some sticks and we propped up the dead rabbit just back of second base where we thought old Bill would spy it. We fixed it so you could just see its head, and then we waited for Devereaux to appear. Bill hadn't been on the infield ten seconds when he thought he saw a live rabbit, and he made a dash after it to beat the band, howling as he ran. When the rabbit didn't move I guess Bill thought he was staggered through fear and he would cetch him silve Fency where he was staggered through fear and he would catch him alive. Fancy what a Jolly we gave Devereaux when he came up to the dead rabbit."—San Francisco Bulletin.

PARSON DAVIES IS DYING IN CHICAGO

(Journal Special Service.)

Chicago, Aug. 22,—"Parson" Davies, veteran manager of fighters and theatrical manager, still lies in his room at the Palmer House near death with rhoumatism. On Monday of last week it was given out that Davies was dying, but he is still battling bravely.

The death of "Parson" Davies will mean the passing away of one of the old guard of square sporting men, the kind of men that the sporting world can ill afford to give up. The sobriquet of "Parson" which was given to him by William K. Vanderbilt at the ringside many years ago, has stuck to side many years ago, has stuck to Davies during his long career, and there isn't a person connected with the sporting or theatrical world today who doesn't know of "Parson" Davies.

Alfred Shrubb, the famous English champion at long distance running, is the despair of those who are working to have him in condition when he starts in what will undoubtedly be a spectacular three-mile contest.

Shrubb resents what we call "form." He says he made all his records and won all his laurels by doing exactly opposite what our trainers say is necessary. He holds both the amateur and content is specification. That brings the body down each time with such force that it weakens the ankles, knees and hips more than would be the case with a short, snappy stride that wouldn't carry the body too far from the earth." What is known as "Shrubb's style" has become recognized by all long-distance work it is plain that Shrubb's idea is correct.

Shrubb's idea is correct.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Oilie Snedigar is authority for the statement that Stanton is not to return this fall. The harvester trust makes the bulk of the agricultural machinery of the country, practically all the harvesters. It has many factories in different parts of the country, having organized them under one company. The trust, however, fixes the price on the output of every factory, and, it is charged, pursues the same tactics that are charged against the Standard Oil—undersold independent manufacturers and forced them out of business. It is also charged that, in addition to absolutely choking off competition, the trust sells its products in foreign countries, after paying steamship charges, at lower prices than in the United States.

The legal machinery of the department of justice has been at work for months collecting information against the trust, and the information against the trust, and the information against the trust, and the information against the trust and the information against the skin was left perfectly natural, just an early date. Portland Clubmen Not Invited to Take Part in-Astoria Regatta.

ADMIRAL CHAPMAN HANDS IN RESIGNATION

No One Is Yet Found to Fill His Place-Fifty Members of Oregon Yacht Club Will Contest in Sailboat Races.

Because no invitation has been ex ended to them by the committee in charge of the Astoria regatta, it is extremely unlikely that any of Portland's crack carsmen will take part in any of the races scheduled at the fisherman's town the first week in September. Without the help of the men of the Portland Rowing club the shell races, which are billed as one of the leading attractions of the regatta, can be little more than a farce.

President Wilbur of the Portland Rowing club stated today that the club had not been invited to take part, and that it was making no arrangements to send crews. The club oarsmen have been training all summer under the direction of Coach Murphy. They are in fine condition, but it is highly improbable that they will row at Astoria.

A special race between Ed Gloss, Alex Pape and Laing, the three best single scullers on the coast, of which considerable was said a few weeks ago, seems to have fallen through also.

C. C. Chapman, head of the Chapman advertising bureau in this city, who accepted the appointment of admiral of the regatta, resigned last night. had not yet found one. The Oregon Yacht club will take part in the regatta at Astoria. One week from today about 50 of the young men of the club will start in saliboats for the mouth of the river. They expect to have a good outing on the way and to arrive in time to take part in the class B and class C races. None of them will enter the canoe races, which are on the card. Sunday morning Commodore Knight, Vice-Commodore Young and Port Cartain Woodward will emp and Port Captain Woodward will em-bark in a launch for Astoria, with the expectation of making the trip in a day.

"I am ready to give confident assurance that the wireless telegraph service between England and Canada will be placed on a commercial basis. It is not a matter of any great length of time, sither. I am anticipating that the service will be available for public use in a few weeks, and that it will be a profitable and reliable telegraphic service."

It is stated that satisfactory exchanges of messages between the Irish station at Clifton and the Canadian station at Cape Breton have been going on for some time. The earlier trouble encountered from the sun's rays has been overcome and the experiments have proven so satisfactory that the company hopes to be ready to transmit messages commercially from one side of the Athopes to be ready to transmit messages commercially from one side of the Atlantic to the other by the end of September. The arrangements have progressed so far, in fact, that a schedule of charges has been issued. This shows the rates to be 10 cents a word, plus the land charges for ordinary messages, and 5 cents a word, plus the land charges, for press messages.

The dedication of the new clubhouse of the Portland Rowing club will not take place until about October 1, as the building will not be finished as soon as expected. The dedication will take the form of a regatta on the river in the afternoon, and a hop at the clubhouse in the evening. Work on the structure is progressing rapidly, and the plastering has already been finished.
