

DARROW TO SPEAK HERE

Attorney Who Defended Haywood Will Attend Labor Day Exercises in Portland—Will Tell About the Famous Trial.

Clarence Darrow, the noted Chicago socialist and lawyer who defended Secretary William D. Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners in his trial at Boise last month, will speak in Portland on Labor day on the labor question. It is believed that he will also tell of the Haywood trial and of the conspiracy which the federation alleged was being waged against it by the mineowners of Colorado and Nevada.

During the progress of the Haywood trial at Boise, the labor committee attempted to secure Darrow for an address in Portland, but at the time were unable to secure any definite assurance from him.

A letter has been received at Labor day headquarters, however, from Darrow saying that he had arranged his plans so that he expects to be able to speak in Portland. The Oriental building at the Lewis and Clark grounds is being prepared for the Labor day exercises and the building and platform will be handsomely decorated in honor of Darrow.

A fine of not exceeding $50 or 120 days in jail is the penalty upon conviction.

BROKE KNEE CAP BUT KNEW NOTHING OF IT

It is evident that the brand of liquor consumed by Frank Williams yesterday must have been of the "bottle" variety, as he was in entire ignorance until today that he had fractured his knee cap. Despite the painful and serious nature of the injury Williams does not remember of meeting with any mishap. Upon awakening in his room at First and Madison streets this morning and attempting to get out of bed he suddenly discovered that he could not walk. The police were summoned and Sergeant Robson removed the injured man to the Good Samaritan hospital in the patrol wagon.

PALACES FOR THE LAWMAKERS

Office Buildings of House and Senate Almost Completed.

ANOTHER YEAR WILL SEE THEM READY

Access From Capitol by Electric Cars Through Tunnels—In the Senate Building Royal Munificence Is Expressed in Quarters and Fittings.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, Aug. 22.—Palatial quarters for the nation's lawmakers are nearing completion on the sites overlooking the Capitol, where two years ago ground was broken for the senate and house buildings. By the opening of the next session members of the house will be installed in the white marble structure at the corner of First and C streets. The inside furnishing is well under way and the transformation of the courtyard, now heaped with rubbish, into a garden, will soon begin.

Absolutely Fireproof.

Safety was another prime consideration, and no less than 135,000 square feet of standard terra cotta hollow tile have gone into the house building partitions alone to secure the occupants and their valuable records against danger from fire. So protected, every room is practically a fireproof vault, in any one of which the furnishings and woodwork might be consumed without endangering its neighbors.

Arched will connect the office buildings within the Capitol, making them virtually detached wings of one edifice. Four hundred and twenty-nine office rooms, a caucus room, a dining-room and baths are provided in the house building. Representatives will have smaller quarters than senators owing to their larger numbers.

Senators Quarters Like Kings.

Members of the upper house, in addition to private offices, are each to be provided with a bathroom and quarters for secretaries. The government will have a bill of about $2,500,000 to pay for each of the congressional office buildings, but that there was great need for them is not questioned. Heretofore members of the house and senators have been scattered throughout the Capitol and in neighboring buildings, many of which are entirely unsuitable for the purpose.

CHEHALIS COAL MINE WORKED TO CAPACITY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Chehalis, Wash., Aug. 23.—The Chehalis coal mine, operated by W. D. Sheldon of this city, is being worked full time and is unable to supply the demand. These will be built for three sizes, lump, nut and pea. As the mine works farther into the vein a better quality of coal is being uncovered. There are very extensive coal deposits in Chehalis near this city, with a logging railroad, standard gauge, into them, which open a splendid opportunity for some one with capital to develop them.

MIX UP OF NAMES CAUSES AMUSEMENT IN POLICE COURT

"Call George A. Jap," said Clerk Frank Hennessy in the police court this morning, and those on the inside are laughing yet. The George A. Jap referred to was George Taguchi, H. Silverfield's chauffeur, who was booked yesterday on a charge of speeding an auto across the intersection of Sixth and Washington streets.

The warrant of arrest was made out for John Doe and Silverfield, the owner of the machine, surrendered himself yesterday and was released on deposit of $50 cash bail. As it was found that only the driver of the machine could be prosecuted, the fur dealer's name was scratched from the docket and this substituted "George A. Jap."

Clerk Tom Casey in making up the transcript this morning wrote "George A. Jap, exceeding speed limit." In due time Hennessy came to the entry and innocently asked the bailiff to call "George A. Jap." Perplexed at the broad smile of every one of the court officials, including Judge Cameron, Hennessy made an investigation with the result that he has agreed to buy Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald, Clerk Hennessy and Detective Price testified to the recklessness of the chauffeur and just Cameron imposed a fine of $10. When asked as to his qualifications to testify as a speed expert Fitzgerald declared that he rode on a river steamer every week and was therefore able to judge the rapidity of all moving bodies.

The attorney for the defense endeavored to convince Judge Cameron that inasmuch as Taguchi was the only Japanese chauffeur in Portland, courtesy to the Mikado and the safest way to avoid war was to dismiss the defendant.

COLORED BOARDER A KELLY BUTTE SPENT HIS TIME PREACHING

"Ef' yo' all done git 'ligion in yo' systems yo' sure goin' to perdition!" exclaimed Edward Cole, a burly negro about 50 years old, as he was landed in the county jail this morning by a guard from Kelly butte.

Cole was committed sometime ago to the lockup by Magistrate Cameron on a charge of disturbing the peace. It was not thought at the time that the man was mentally unbalanced, but that he simply had an aversion for work. The authorities at the institution which grinds into small particles heavy stones for paving purposes believe differently and that is why they refused longer to lodge the negro. Shortly after arriving at the rock

TRAGIC KILLING OF CONDUCTOR REVIVED BY ESTATE SETTLEMENT

Tragic events in connection with the recent brutal murder of Charles L. Nevus, the Portland Railway, Light & Power company streetcar conductor, by a long highwayman on the night of May 27 last were brought vividly to mind in the county court this morning when Judge Fitzgerald granted the request of petitioners to appoint C. W. Huggins, secretary of the power company, administrator of the estate of deceased Nevus, who was 40 years old and he leaves no relatives in Portland. His father and mother reside in the east and communicated with the power company, requesting that if anything were left in the nature of an estate the affairs be wound up by some official of the employing company. In accordance with the request it was deemed to ask for the appointment of Secretary Huggins, the largest claim against the estate would consist principally of real property and clothing, is $125.50. That is held by J. P. Finley & Son, undertakers who had charge of the funeral of the deceased. Provision is made for payment and the remainder of the estate will be turned over to the father and mother in the east.

"There's a Reason"

FELONY TO BE CHARGE

that the bank accepted deposits after the unsound condition of the bank was known to the officials, then they are liable to criminal prosecution.

It is argued that since the bank began to struggle to secure money to meet its obligations during the first of last week, and that the efforts became strenuous on Friday and Saturday and frantic on Monday and Tuesday, therefore the officials knew of the unstable condition of the institution, especially after they had applied to the clearing house for assistance.

Possessed of this knowledge on Tuesday, it is held by those wishing prosecution that the officials were guilty of a felony in allowing accounts to be placed with the bank on that day and perhaps prior to that date.

Laws Are Waived. Some attorneys of the city hold the opinion that although the bank officials did accept deposits fully knowing their condition, yet they cannot be prosecuted because of the peculiar condition of the banking law as it at present exists in the state. The old law grants to the courts the right to prosecute for such an offense and designates the crime as a felony.

The state banking law, passed at the last legislature, also contains similar clauses more strict than the old, but it does not contain a clause which provides that the law shall not be operative until 18 months after May 25, 1907. It also repeals all former acts which might be in conflict with its provisions. It is held therefore by some attorneys that the new law through the time elapsing has taken effect in its application of its penalties as to offenses.

In other words, though the law is in force the banks are given 18 months in which to comply with its provisions. It is argued that since the law is in force the old sections are repealed which leaves the state without recourse in the present instance.

Mr. Manning holds a different opinion, however, taking the ground that it could hardly be expected or construed that the law recently passed would repeal the old laws until it became in reality effective and operative as to penalties and punishments for its violation. He will proceed with his course of action without regard to the question of quibbling, trusting to the courts to sustain his contention should he bring the bank officials to trial for felony.

WOOD COMBINE HAS ASHLAND BY THROAT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Ashland, Or., Aug. 23.—The cost of fuel in Ashland is becoming a serious matter with the people who are dependent upon working wages for a living. Labor has been high and scarce, so that it has been difficult to get men to cut wood, but dealers are asking unreasonable prices, $9 to $10.50 per cord for tier wood. A few men have a monopoly of the business and they seem to be able to apply trust methods in controlling the wood market, with entire success. A similar condition prevailed here last year but it is regarded as the best price having been raised $1 to $1.50 per cord.
