

NO TRAIN ON THIS LINE IS EVER BEHIND SCHEDULE

Two Cars Carry All the Freight and Passengers.

Harriman and Hill have foregone their enmity and have gone into partnership to build joint railroads for the good of the commonwealth. It is no longer their ambition to fight one another or to see who can make the more money by giving the less service. Harriman and Hill wish to build all the railroads the people can use as fast as they can put them in. And the more the merrier.

But this Harriman and Hill are Leighton Steel, aged 11, and Markham Anderson, aged 13, and their railroad system grows and sends out its branches a lot at East Oak and Twelfth streets. The terminal is a box three feet high, whence all trains start on schedule time, and all roads lead to this home.

The longest main line stretches the whole length of the lot, and two cars on trucks cover this territory daily. The complicated switch system is managed skillfully by means of red and green signal lights. There is a powerhouse which is the source of much work and worry; there are gleaming headlights, curbs, tracks and everything to make up a detailed railway system. And the new power presses into service to manage the heavy traffic is the force of gravity on the down grades, and the force of the applied wrist on the up grade.

The little Anderson boy is fully informed on railroad matters and comes by his instincts naturally, because his father is the engineer on the Southern Pacific 11:30 flyer. But the child can doubtless give his father's employer some points on making schedule time.

WORLD'S BIGGEST SHOW IS HERE

Ringling Bros.' Circus Adds Twelve Hundred to Portland's Population.

FIRST SECTION DUE IN CITY AT SIX O'CLOCK

Longest Parade Ever Seen on City's Streets Will Be Given Tomorrow—Eighty-Five Cars Required to Bring Performers Here.

Ringling Brothers' circus parade will go over the following route, starting from the show grounds at Twenty-fifth and Raleigh streets, Monday morning at 10 o'clock:

Overton to Twentieth, to Washington, to Fifth, to Taylor, to Third, to Everett, to Seventeenth, to Overton and back to grounds.

There will be no parade Tuesday morning. The biggest circus institution in the world is due here this morning. It will add 1,200 people to the population of Portland for three days. These strange persons come from 21 different countries, and they range in color from white to yellow, brown and black. When the settlement is fixed at the Twenty-fifth and Raleigh streets show grounds it will have everything that goes with the charter of a well regulated village. There will be blacksmiths, wagonmakers, hotel men, doctors, lawyers, barbers, and so on through the natural official life of an organized and thrifty town.

It will take 85 cars to bring this colony of people, herds of 40 elephants, menageries of 100 cages and enormous equipment. The circus comes here from Centralia and the first section of 20 cars is scheduled to arrive this morning about 6 o'clock. The railroad officials promise that the entire train of show people, animals and properties will be in Portland before 9 o'clock.

Biggest Travelers in the World. There is no form of amusement in the world that attracts human nature like the circus, and the unloading of the horses and caravans never fails to attract crowds. Ringling Brothers' circus is now the biggest traveling enterprise of the world. It carries more people and has been more impressively effective because of organization and attractive features. There are 1,200 people on the payroll of this big traveling outfit, and 40 elephants, and 375 performers figure importantly in the circus settlement. In this year's program there are 100 numbers, and 375 people, most of them appearing in this country for the first time, enact this huge program. There are acrobats from Persia, riders from Italy, gymnasts from England and Germany, jugglers from Japan, dancers and equilibrists from France, and specialists of surprising circus value from 22 countries of the world.

Longest Parade Ever Seen Here. The circus parade, for which the circus is famous, is announced to leave the show grounds Monday morning at 10 o'clock. This is a circus pageant worth going out of one's way to see. It is not only longer but more variedly interesting. Every man, woman and child in the show usually takes part, and they wear the air of contented people. The several hundred horses of the big show take part, with their well-groomed drivers and graceful riders form a street spectacle to be pleasantly remembered.

The musical vehicle, open animal dens, frolicking clowns, oriental groupings, baby manageria, concert bands, clown band, and a whole lot of other interesting things, project in the procession, and command it above all others of its kind for novelty, richness and extent of display. This parade Monday will be the longest and richest ever seen in Portland. There will be no parade Tuesday. The big show will exhibit here Monday and Tuesday afternoon and night.

HE MAKES AFFIDAVIT

John De Grace Comes Out Strongly for Prof. Khimo.

State of Oregon, Multnomah county, ss: I, John De Grace, being first duly sworn on oath, depose and say that on or about the first day of March, 1907, one Wm. Hallston, of Rainier, Oregon, told me about knowing of certain buried treasure near the old government camp on the old road near Mt. Hood. I had him go to see Professor Khimo and Khimo told him the spot where the treasure had been buried and described the route necessary to follow to reach the place. He also said that he thought the treasure was no longer there as there was a hole in the ground where it had been. He directed us as follows: "Coming west on the old road a short distance from the old fort, on the right of the road, you will find the mouth of a tunnel or cave, then continue west for a distance of two miles; then stop and looking to the south you will be standing in the road, facing a big canyon; then looking directly north you will notice upon the hill side an old burnt tree and on the top you will see a large bird, probably an eagle; then go due north 250 feet to a point which is 100 feet southwest of a large white rock and there you will find the spot where the treasure was buried." In the latter part of June Mr. Hallston and myself went up there to find the spot and if possible the treasure, although Prof. Khimo had said he thought it was no longer there. Following the directions given us, we found everything exactly as described, even to the large bird on the tree which from that point in the road looked exactly like an eagle but which from another point of view turned out to be a snag shaped like a bird. Then measuring off the distance as directed, at the very point indicated, we found a large hole which had been dug some years before and from which evidently the treasure had been taken by some earlier discoverer. And, I being further sworn, say that about one year ago I was in great financial difficulty and called upon Professor Khimo for advice and he told me that it was a mine and described my mine exactly and told me of things necessary to do to overcome my reverses and following his advice I have overcome them. That at that time my little daughter was greatly troubled with her heart, so much so that sometimes as often as every other day she would fall in a faint and could not go to school and my wife was also very nervous at that time. I noticed from Professor Khimo's advertisements that he could cure such disorders and I thereupon took my child to him. After three treatments without the use of any medicines whatever she never had another fainting spell and is now strong and well. He never charged me a cent for this treatment and helped me because my family was sick and in distress. He did, however, charge me for advising me in reference to my business affairs and I consider it one of the best investments I ever made.

JOHN DE GRACE. Subscribed and sworn to before me this 16th day of August, 1907. JAY H. UPTON, Notary Public for Oregon, 501 Sweetland building.

SIX COUNTY DISPLAYS AT THE STATE FAIR

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Aug. 24.—The greater Oregon state fair, to be held at Salem September 18 to 21, inclusive, is attracting attention throughout the United States. The dates for the fair this year are one week later than last year. The time has been changed in order to accommodate the thousands of people who will be in the hop fields before this time, and who will all want to take in the greatest fair in the history of the northwest. The chances of fair weather are also considered better at this time. In an earlier announcement made by the fair management of the industry was unintentionally done Columbia county. It was stated that six counties were expected to provide displays, but one of the first to announce intention of exhibiting, J. W. Fullerton is collecting a representative display, the appropriation having been made by the county court last January. Columbia will be in the race for the first premium. Linn county, which was expected to be represented, will not enter, and so, with Columbia, there are still six counties in the contest, originally announced.

Clatsop county, which will be represented in the race for the first time, is expending $1,000 on the project. Its exhibit is now being collected, and will be shown at the Astoria regatta prior to being installed in the pavilion at the fair grounds.

Answers Pouring In

Splendid thoughtfulness is shown by the responses from all over the Northwest, to our prize announcement concerning Government Inspected Meat

We believe that the women of the northwest, always alert where the welfare of their families is concerned, would welcome an opportunity to learn the facts concerning the preparation of meat for their table, as conducted under the supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors.

For their benefit we issued the handsome little blue book, "U. S. Government Inspected Meats," giving in its pages a full account of the sanitary and healthful method of handling meats under the present federal law.

An avalanche of questions has come back to us as a result of the out going of the books. From all over Oregon the women have written asking: "How can we be sure to get Government Inspected Meat for our tables?"

This is only natural; no one can carefully read the little blue book, and then eat any but, inspected meat.

Our answer to one and all is the same: Ask your dealer if his meats are Government Inspected. Don't buy any meat that is not Government Inspected. And don't think that one asking will do. Repeat the question every day, "Is this meat Government Inspected?"

Many have written to us directly to supply them with Government Inspected meat. We cannot do this—we are wholesalers. You must order through your own dealer or of some dealer who carries Government Inspected meat. Insist on it.

these will be mailed free of cost to the first applicants, together with FULL DETAILS OF OUR PRIZE OFFER

In which we will give away ten splendid prizes. The time is getting short—awards will be made the MIDDLE OF SEPTEMBER. Write today.
