BIG TRAMP ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

British Steamer Strathness Arrives to Carry Lumber to Australia.

BELONGS TO FAMILY OF TWENTY-TWO

Made Run From Guaymas, Mexico, in 11 Days, Which Is Considered Good Time for Vessel Built to Jog Along Slowly With Freight.

The British steamer Strathness, which errived here this morning from Guaynas, Mexico, is on her malden voyage bround the world, and she is the sixteenth member of a family of 22 tramp freighters of her own size, six of them being younger and about to start out from Port Glasgow, their home.

The builders of the Strathness did a good job, for coming out from Europe she averaged nearly 10 knots although she is not supposed to run faster than nine under ordinary fires. She made 12 knots on her trial trip, but at such speed her furnaces consumed such quantities of coal that as a profit-maker the boat would have proved a failure. Captain William Laing says he never saw a new craft behave better and he is justly proud of his vessel. She is here under charter to the American Trading company to carry lumber to Melbourne, Australia, and it is expected that she will be able to take at least 1,000,000 feet. Coming out from England the Strathness brought a cargo of steel rails and cement for the railroads being built in Mexico, and she carried in the neighborhood of 7,000 tons of freight. good job, for coming out from Europe being built in Maxico, and she carried in the neighborhood of 7,000 tons of freight.

The Strathness is owned by Burrell & Son of Giasgow, which firm is one of the largest owners in the world. Their sld "Fitz" line of vessels was sold out some time ago and the new was named the "Strath" line so that all excepting two of the new vessels are named "Strath" something, the two exceptions being named "Fitzpatrick" and "Fitz-diarence" in honor of the old line. Several "Strath" liners have been here recently, all of them being similar in model and construction to the Strathness, which is 376 feet long and 52 feet wase, her net register being 2,873 tons. The latest "Straths" are known as the Strathendrick, Strathdon, Strathdee, Strathallen, Strathgarry and Strathlein.

Coming north the Strathness experienced fairly good weather most of the time, although it rained a few days out of the 11. The sea was comparatively smooth. Coming out around the Horn the vessel was lucky too, because she met with very little stormy weather. The Portland Lumber company will furnish the cargo and she commenced loading this afternoon at the company's mills in South Portland. Second Officer Stevens was here seven years ago on the British bark Lucipara.

WRECKAGE STILL AFLOAT.

Officers of Lakme Report Sighting Columbia's Deckhouse.

Officers of the steam schooner Lakme say that portions of the ill-fated San Francisca liner Columbia's deckhouse are still afloat off the California coast. Coming from San Pedro to Eureka a few days ago the Lakme ran close to a large portion of the wreckage off Point eyes, where it drifts about in the path f the coasters. The Lakine brought $90,000 feet of

The Lakme brought $300,000 feet of redwood from Eureka to a local planning mili and will take railroad ties from here to San Francisco or San Pedro. She is discharging the redwood at Martin's mill. The Lakme was running regularly out of Portland in the lumber trade some years ago but has been plying mostly out of Eureka of late. She is in command of Captain Preble.

Return of Operator From Vacation Opens Hotel Telegraph Office.

CAUSES MANAGER TO EXPLODE WITH JOY

Says It Shows Splendid Condition of Western Union Business-Messages, However, Must Go to Crippled Main Office for Transmission.

Both sides are claiming a victory in the only incident that has relieved the monotony of the telegraphers' strike in Portland for the past two or three days-the reopening of the branch office of the Western Union in the Portland mportance, as all messages from there must go through the main office before they can be sent out of the city. At the time of the strike Miss Nellie Cain, operator at the Portland hotel, was away on her vacation. Another Another was away on her vacation. Another operator was sent to take her place, but went out with the strikers, since which time the dearth of operators in the city has made it impossible for the company to reopen the office. Yesterday Miss Cain returned, however, and the office

But the operators have a different story. They declare that upon Miss Cain's return she was instructed to re-port for work at the main office, owing to the fact that the company has been to the fact that the company has been badly handicapped by lack of men there. According to their story Miss Cain replied briskly that she would fill her old place at the hotel or not work at all—that she didn't propose to enter the main office where a small force was enterprise to be a small force was enterprise. deavoring to handle the business. Any-way she won her point and is in her former place. The union men have given Miss Cain assurances of their support in case any further trouble comes of her refusal to work in the main office.

"We don't want any arbitration," said one of the men this morning, "because we feel that what we have asked for-oight hours, more pay and the closed shop—are such small things that if we arbitrated them we would have nothing. If we don't get what we ask for we might better not have done anything. That this is the sentiment through-out other cities on the coast is illus-trated by the telegram sent President S. J. Small of the union by the San Francisco operators yesterday telling LIST APPROVED him that they were not in favor of arbitration.

Situation Everywhere Unchanged. The condition in San Francisco, ac cording to reports received this morning, is practically unchanged. The companies have withdrawn their pickets. Many of the strikers have gone into summer camps in the mountains. The Western Union has but 30 pick-ups from the 270 men that were working in its offices before the strike. The allied trades and labor union of San Francisco have taken up the strike and are actively assisting the telegraphers.

Like encourging reports were received this morning from telegraphers all over the country. At Chicago the board of trade is still badly tied up. At Winnipeg messages six days old are just creeping in. At El Paso the Western Union is tied up but for two men and all the Postal operators but one are out. At Little Rock both offices are tied up.
