Grants Pass, and his friends are glad of the chance to compliment his daughter with newspaper subscriptions. If Audrey Russell had gone into the contest on the start she might now be a formidable rival of Alice D. Grant, the daughter of the sheriff of Polk county.

COUNTY TO BE HEARD AT IRRIGATION MEET

District Is Wonderful Producer With Deep Soil of Highest Fertility—Thousands of Productive Acres Are Waiting To Be Reclaimed.

On the way to the Sacramento meeting of the National Irrigation congress, Mayor J. A. Lackey, of Ontario, Oregon, stopped for a day in Portland yesterday.

"We are especially proud of our alfalfa and our sugar beets. We also produce fine apples, peaches, pears, plums and vegetables," he said. "The exhibit will include all these products. It will be a small exhibit, because express charges from Ontario to Sacramento absorb a lot of money, and we have no great sum to spend in this project."

The committee has issued several thousand copies of a special leaflet giving an account of Malheur county's resources and development. The county is 150 miles long, with an average width of 60 miles, and is larger than many eastern states.

It is a great stock country, and has many large ranches. From seven to 10 tons of alfalfa hay to the acre is produced annually.

SUPERINTENDENT IS BUSY COLLECTING

Believed That Display of Agriculture And Food Stuffs From This County Will Be Most Complete Ever Gathered Together.

Multnomah county bids fair to have one of the best and most interesting exhibits this year in its history at the Salem state fair to be held September 16 to 21 inclusive.

When appointed some time ago by the county court to assume charge Mr. Miller was informed that an appropriation of $1,000 was at his command and he lost no time in collecting everything he possibly could which would not alone advertise the farmers and producers of the county of Multnomah and the city of Portland, but also lend as much if not more interest to the attractions at the big fair as any other exhibits which he could display.

Mr. Miller still desires several exhibits and displays but he announces that he has secured all the grasses and grains from this section desired. More vegetables and fruits are needed and those desiring to exhibit can send in specimens as late as September 13, addressed to Mr. Miller, care of the Portland Seed company, at the foot of Yamhill street, city.

Some of the decidedly interesting exhibits and displays from Multnomah county will be alfalfa seven feet high raised within the city limits of Portland. This alfalfa was grown in the back yard of H. A. Henneman at 390 Tillamook street.

Albers Bros. intend displaying one of the largest assortments of breakfast foods ever gathered together for an exhibit at a state fair on the Pacific coast. Kerr Bros. are preparing a large assortment of fruits and meats in jars for exhibit.

CONDUCTOR AND PASSENGERS TURN THEMSELVES INTO A LOCOMOTIVE

Traffic on East Morrison street was cut off completely for several minutes last night by a string of freight cars left standing at the Second street crossing, and the same condition would probably have existed this morning had not a tactful streetcar conductor induced several passengers of his car to put their shoulders with his to the obstruction and shove the cars out of the way. This was accomplished by uncoupling the cars and moving one at a time. The switch engine hauling the cars left the track on the Second street trestle between East Morrison and East Alder just as the cars it was juggling reached the intersection of Morrison street. It ran on the ties for a distance of a few feet and narrowly escaped going through the structure.
