PEAR ORCHARDS HAVE
GOLD MINES BEATEN

Bargain Hunters in Rogue River Valley Think Orchards That Have
More Than Doubled in Value in a
Year Are Still Cheap.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Medford, Or., Aug. 30.—Interest in news from the pear shipments from the Rogue River valley this season is as keen as war news excites. It is a great gamble as to who will get the highest price and even the staple Bartlett pears are now getting to the top notch. Returns received today from a car of Medford Bartletts shipped from the Bear Creek orchards show that all former prices for this variety have been eclipsed. The car averaged $4.90 per box and the net price f. o. b. Medford was $3.51, the highest in the history of the local trade. As the orchards in bearing yielded a full crop it is evident already that new records will have to be established for yields per acre and after this season no other fruit section on this coast or elsewhere will be in it at all with the Medford district.

The Bear Creek orchards, by the way, have sent forward about 15 cars of Bartletts and it is apparent that an average of more than $3 per box will be obtained for the entire crop. It was a slight for the trees to see the fruit hanging on the vines before the gathering season came on, and as less than 10 per cent of the pears set in the valley are now in bearing the future of the industry is assured.

The Gore orchard, two miles south of Medford, which last year gave returns of over $9,000 in sales from 12 acres of Bartletts and Newtown apples, will this season surpass its own record, the seven acres of Bartletts having yielded six cars and the present high prices guarantee a yield of over $8,000 from this portion of this famous holding.

Snap Hunters Are Pouring In.
Medford people, by the way, have been greatly amused at the effort of a rival town, nearer 20 miles distant, to steal the glory of the Gore orchard. It is well known that Medford is the geographical center of the Rogue River valley and the center as well of the leading fruit district of the northwest. The conditions existing in connection with the advertising of resources throughout the east has attracted more homeseekers to Medford this summer than came in during the summer months of the five years previous and they are the "heavy boys" of the middle west and northwest who are coming now, and every day investors are pouring their cash into the valley picking up the snags and half developed orchards and it is evident that the pie will have to be carved time and again if all are to be satisfied who are coming when the colonist rates go into effect.

Today the Streets orchard sold to William Budge of Grand Forks, South Dakota, a prominent citizen of that state, both politically and in a financial way, and it is reported that he is but the forerunner of a host of men in his section who are tired of the contest with Dakota winters. The price of the Streets orchard, bought by Dr. Page less than one year ago for $100 per acre, was $225 per acre for the entire 100 acres.

This is but one instance of dozens which could be cited where orchards and orchard lands have advanced in value more than 100 per cent in the last two years in the Medford district.

IRRIGATIONISTS AT SACRAMENTO

Fifteenth National Congress
Will Be Held in California City.

OREGON GOVERNOR
TO DELIVER ADDRESS

Vice-President Fairbanks Has Promised to Be Present Next Monday and Many Notables Will Attend Sessions.

(Journal Special Service.)

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 30.—The opening day of the fifteenth National Irrigation congress, which convenes in this city beginning next Monday, will be a memorable event in the history of California. The great feature of the program will be the speech of Vice-President Fairbanks. Mr. Fairbanks is intensely interested in the work and purposes of the congress. He never appears to better advantage as a platform speaker of great force and keen logic than when discussing the problems to which the irrigation congress addresses itself. The presence and participation of the vice-president at the opening proceedings of the coming session adds distinct interest and importance to the occasion. Mr. Fairbanks' speech will be a notable effort.

Among the addresses of response by visiting delegations will be those of several governors of states. It is expected that at least six governors will be present and take part in this feature of the inauguration of the great convention. One of the most important speeches of the opening day will be that of Hon. George E. Chamberlain, governor of Oregon. Governor Chamberlain is president of the National Irrigation congress. Both by reason of his position and his eminent qualifications as a public speaker and one thoroughly familiar with every phase of the irrigation movement, his address will be among the most valuable and significant deliverances of the convention.

The immense attendance of prominent and influential men from every section of the United States will make the opening of the convention one of the most notable events in the line of national conventions. When it is remembered that all delegates to the congress are obliged to bear their own expenses without hope of subverting any private end or ambition, the high character of the men and the disinterestedness of their motives are apparent. It serves also to differentiate this from other national conventions of a similar kind.

national conventions of a similar kind.

A great feature of the opening day program will be the rendition of the "Irrigation Ode," a composition of unique merit, by the great Mormon tabernacle choir of 200 trained voices. The crowds, the prominence of leading participants, the big scale on which everything is planned, will make Monday next one of the greatest days in the annals of the Golden state.

Yes, at Ten o'Clock Saturday Night

I'm through—I'm sorry, too, for the store has been packed and jammed with eager buyers for the last three weeks, yet there is so much on hand that I hardly know how to dispose of it. Wish I had another week or two, but I haven't. Next week I leave for California, and then your rare chance will be gone. Will you meet me Saturday for the last time this season? I can't begin to tell you all I have in mind to do for you. But I'm telling you a few things here. Other bargains? Yes, and hundreds! We haven't had time to look and prepare fully, but the "jig is up," and we must stop. The only disappointed folks in Portland are those who haven't been "in" on this stunt. Good-bye, then—but come in Saturday—it will be great.

Yours ever cordially,
