

PLANS COMPLETED FOR CITY'S GREATEST PARADE

Labor Celebration Tomorrow Biggest Event of Its Kind Ever Held in Multnomah County—Clarence Darrow Expected to Arrive Some Time Today.

Labor Day Parade.

Labor day procession will move at 10 a. m. sharp tomorrow, and no place will be reserved for any assignment arriving after that hour. Grand Marshal Reed advises all divisions to be ready and in their places to fall into general line by the latest at 9:30 a. m.

Head of column will form at Seventh and Burnside, and the line of march will be Burnside to Third street, along that thoroughfare to Taylor, over the latter to Sixth street, thence to Burnside street, along the latter to Seventh, thence to Ankeny, along the latter to Sixth, and from the latter to Alder, the whole to disband at Alder and Seventh streets, with instructions to marchers and floats to keep moving westward along Alder street.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 men will be in line, and the parade should take about one hour to pass a given spot.

Figuratively speaking the leaders having charge of the big parade and general Labor day celebration scheduled for tomorrow threw away the keys to headquarters at 264 1/2 Alder street yesterday afternoon until day after tomorrow. A final meeting of the general committee was held yesterday afternoon, and everything necessary for the holding of the largest and most successful demonstration in the history of labor in Multnomah county was finally arranged.

"Nothing has been left undone," is the way Grand Marshal Reed put it last evening. "We have certainly had our hands pretty full for the past several weeks, but I think the public will agree with me after tomorrow that we did everything strictly according to Hoyle."

First interest of course will attach to the monster parade in the forenoon, and that was one of the hardest propositions with which the committee had to contend. That it succeeded most thoroughly is illustrated by the number of unions that will take part. Out of a total organization in Portland of 60 unions $5 will be represented in tomorrow's parade, and the slight possibility of its being out only is impossible for any members to participate.

How Men Will March.

Unions will march in the following order after formation at the corner of Seventh and Burnside streets:

First division, headed by Tomlinson's band—Plasterers, forming on south side of Burnside street, opposite plasterers; laborers to follow plasterers from north side of Burnside street, opposite plasterers; bricklayers from south side of Burnside street, opposite bricklayers; masons, from north side of Burnside street, opposite masons; marble-workers, from south side of Burnside street, opposite marble-workers; sheet-metal-workers, from north side of Burnside street, opposite sheet-metal-workers.

Second division, headed by Prasse's band No. 1—Painters, from west side of Ninth street, head at Burnside; bridge and structural ironworkers, from east side of Ninth street, opposite plumbers; electrical workers, from west side of Ninth street, head at Couch; linemen, from east side of Ninth street, opposite electrical workers; painters and decorators, from west side of Ninth street, head at Davis street; sign-painters, from east side of Ninth street, opposite the painters; bricklayers, from west side of Ninth street, opposite carpenters; single-weavers, from east side of Ninth street, opposite bricklayers; tailors, from west side of Ninth street, opposite single-weavers; cooks and waiters, from east side of West Park street, south from Stark street, opposite single-weavers; cooks and waiters, from east side of West Park street, south from Stark street, opposite single-weavers; cooks and waiters, from east side of West Park street, south from Stark street, opposite single-weavers.

Fourth division, headed by Prasse's band No. 2—Longshoremen No. 265, from west side of Park street, north from Burnside, head at Burnside; No. 264, from east side of Park street, opposite No. 265; grainhandlers, from west side of Park street, head at Couch; shipwrights and caulkers, from east side of Park street, opposite grainhandlers; freight handlers, from west side of Park street, head at Davis street.

Fifth division, headed by St. Johns City band—Team drivers, from west side of Eighth street, head at Burnside; boiler-makers, from west side of Eighth street, head at Couch; machinists, from east side of Eighth street, opposite team drivers; blacksmiths, from west side of Eighth street, opposite boiler-makers; steam engineers, from west side of Eighth street, head at Davis street.

Sixth division, headed by State band—Telegraphers, from west side of Seventh street, north from Burnside; messenger boys, from east side of Seventh street, opposite telegraphers; leather workers, from west side of Seventh street, north from Couch; carpet-layers, from east side of Seventh street, opposite leather workers; garment-workers, from east side of Seventh street, north from Burnside; clear-makers, from west side of Seventh street, opposite garment-workers; bartenders, from west side of Seventh street, south of Ankeny.

The general committee having charge of the great parade and monster demonstration later in the day at the Lewis and Clark fair grounds is made up of 20 prominent labor leaders. They are: W. H. Fitzgerald, chairman; J. J. West, secretary; G. W. Wurtz, treasurer; H. L. Stanton, T. D. Richardson, C. R. Crocker, Harry Gurr, L. D. Reed, H. W. Drew, J. W. Wells, J. R. Cassidy, O. Henry, J. W. Warner, G. Smith, Bert Merriman, J. Saul, J. D. Crockett, E. L. Ledgwick, D. F. Shaffer, J. W.

Thus, everything points to not alone the greatest but the best labor celebration ever attempted in the Pacific northwest. The former was the general and Building Trades Alliance. It is conservatively estimated by those in charge of sports and entertainments that not less than 15,000 to 20,000 people will pass the turnstiles at the fair grounds and into Athletic park after 11 o'clock tomorrow and until midnight Monday.

Ten ticket sellers and as many guarding the various gates to both places will be on duty and as the general admission is only 25 cents it is figured that everybody will get their money's worth. Of course the side attractions of the temporary midway and dancing will cost extra but as one member of the committee put it yesterday, "You can dance your head off for an additional quarter."

List of Speakers.

Perhaps most important of the events at the fair grounds in the afternoon will be the addresses which will be delivered by foreign and local leaders of the nation. Foremost of them all of course, from a labor standpoint will be Clarence S. Darrow, who lately defended William D. Haywood.

Mr. Darrow wrote the general committee several days ago that unless pressing business detained him he would surely be in Portland to deliver the principal address of the day. He wrote from Chicago explaining that he was shortly to leave for Boston and had intended to be in Portland not later than this evening unless detained on pressing matters. In that event he promised to notify the local committee several days in advance. As no word has been received from Mr. Darrow since he accepted the invitation it is expected that he will be on hand as promised.

Mayor Lane will make a few remarks and welcome those in attendance. Other speakers of the afternoon will be Attorney W. R. McGarry, Seneca Fouts, W. H. Fitzgerald and Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher.

Sandwiched in between the speech-making will be vocal and instrumental selections by Miss W. L. Harwas and W. H. Drew. The former will sing and the latter will play on the violin. Prior to the general exercises which will begin promptly at 1 p. m., Tomlinson's band will render a short concert program.

The speechmaking and concert features will be held in the Oriental building, and seats have been arranged to accommodate 6,000 people. The seats in question are those which were stored after the fair closed and are owned by a circus that exhibited on the grounds at that time.

After the exercises are over the building will be quickly cleared and the balance of the afternoon and evening will be given over in the Oriental building to dancing. Tomlinson's orchestra and band will discourse dance music for the occasion.

It is figured out by those having the affair in hand that between $5,000 and $8,000 will be taken in at the gate and from the various concessions. The total amount may even run in excess of that sum. But whatever it is the leaders hope that it will be large enough so that there will be no deficit for the year with which to give a demonstration absolutely free. Whatever the surplus is after paying the various attractions engaged to go into a general fund controlled by both branches of the unions and placed aside for holding next year's celebration.

Would Entertain Royally.

"It is our desire," said Grand Marshal Reed, "to give the laboring people an absolutely free show next year. If we can do it we hope to do it in years to come. We have done our best to make the affair successful this year, and I think we will get the crowds. I feel that we deserve them and every body has treated us royally. Of course our attractions will cost us a good deal, but we will get the crowds. I will make some money on the affair."

In the afternoon one of the principal features will be a athletic event. There will be two games of baseball. One will be between teams representing branches of the organizations and the other will be between the Trunks and Brewers of the Tri-City league. Both exhibitions will be on the diamond of the baseball park adjoining the fair grounds which has been rented for the day. An entrance has been cut through to the fair grounds from the park, and the price of general admission to the grounds includes a seat for each ball game.

One of the features of the afternoon will be a balloon ascension, and it has been arranged to drop a live turkey from quite a height. However, the Oregon Humane society will have officers on hand, and that feature of the exhibition may be abandoned.

It has been suggested to the committee in charge of sports that instead of taking up a live turkey a card giving the finder of a turkey might answer the purpose just as well. The latter could be dropped from the balloon just as well as a live bird.

Say Bird Will Soar.

"That bird will sail the air as sure as fate, Humane society or no society," said a member of the committee. "We know just where we stand and we are not going to be stopped. The law is on our side. They can't hang us and the worst they can do is to arrest us."

The balloon ascension is scheduled to take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. One of the night features of most importance will be the sending off of fire-works to a height of 50 feet above ground in the hands of a slack walker of reputation. Another feature will be a "slide for life" contest.

Every musical organization in the city available has been engaged and the committee was obliged to press into service outside bands and musicians for the occasion.

The committee is very thankful to Mayor Lane for permission to bill the town in an adequate manner to attract attention to the events of the day and everything taken into consideration there does not seem to be the slightest thing at this writing to mar the day's festivities and even the weatherman agrees to furnish a good brand of weather.

"Bad, good or indifferent weather conditions cut no ice with our day of entertainment," said Mr. Reed. "We are all ready for the big celebration and she's coming off just as advertised."

Special arrangements have been made to have a number of handsome floats in the big parade. Some of the vehicles will require as many as 12 horses to propel them. One of the handsomest in line will be that of the Teamsters union. Cigar-makers will be rather dignified and plan to ride in automobiles. Bartenders have decided to ride in tallies and carriages have been engaged for garment-workers. Perhaps one of the best turnouts will be the plasterers who will march dressed uniformly in white duck suits.

Those Who Will Close.

The Retail Grocers' association decided to close stores tomorrow wherever practical. Most of the stores will be closed all day but in outlying sections they will remain open half a day. Employers will be given a chance at some portion of the day to attend the festivities.

Aside from this the following merchants have agreed to close their places of business all day tomorrow:

It's a strenuous time and the whole world seems at sixes and sevens—Carpets don't fit, it's hard to get the old stove disconnected and set up again—and there are so many new furnishings needed to add to the already alarming expense

The gentle folk of Spotless Town, In great surprise from up and down, Came running on a morning fair. For shouts of laughter filled the square, And there a Monarch Range they saw, While doubling up with loud guffaw A black man laughed in noisy glee, "Oh, lawdy, lawdy, look at me! I see myself in there," laughed Sam Just like another son of Ham.

DEPOT AT TACOMA TO BEAT SEATTLE'S

Northern Pacific Proposes To Spend Four Hundred Thousand With the Upper Sound City.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 31.—The Northern Pacific Railway company last night submitted plans to the city council for a passenger depot to cost in the neighborhood of $400,000. It will be located on Pacific avenue between Fifteenth and Twenty-first streets. The railroad company intends to expend approximately $2,000,000 in necessary buildings and land purchases. The total floor space will be greater than that of the new Seattle depot, the proposed Tacoma structure containing 49,591 square feet to $1,402 square feet of the latter.

KATHERINE ANNOUNCEMENT.

Lots in That Addition Being Filled Up Rapidly by Investors and Others.

The Curtis company is offering lots in the Katherine addition, northeast of Mount Tabor, at from $250 to $300 each, as per announcement in today's Journal. Those seeking sites for building or for investment should peruse the large ad and get full particulars about the tract. With Bull Run water, graded streets and a ten-minute car service, Katherine lots will probably be in great demand. The Curtis company office, 309 Abington building, will be kept open evenings and Sundays for the convenience of those who cannot call during the day.

Improvements in Brentwood.

A. C. Churchill & Co. are making great improvements at Brentwood, their addition on the Mount Scott line, clearing streets, leveling and laying water mains. Brentwood is subdivided into one quarter-acre tracts and many families are tenting there now. Several houses are erected and others are contemplated, the scarcity of lumber preventing some from building immediately. Activity is beginning to show itself in this section, as it is in all directions.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Pendleton, Ore., Aug. 31.—During the entire week the local wheat market has been sluggish, and today was not so brisk as last Saturday. The price of Club wheat is still 70 cents, and is selling neither buyers nor sellers liking any interest. Growers are waiting for better prices.
