THREE ACTRESSES ARE REQUIRED TO PORTRAY PROPERLY ONE ROLE

"The Prince Chap" Heroine as She Grows Up on the Stage.

In many a play the leading actress assumes several characters, but in the great comedy success, "The Prince Chap," is seen the novelty of a role requiring three actresses. The heroine grows up as the action progresses, and only an elastic lady from the museum could contract and expand to fit the requirements.

The tale he tells is about his own love of a "Princess" Alice, far away from his London loft in the city of New York. He makes Alice a princess of this nodding little Claudia, for in his love dreams Alice is a princess to him. And he tells it well, for the actor is that Cyril Scott who deserted from comedy 10 years ago to go into extravaganza and now comes back.

"This is the last week of the Allen stock company at the Lyric and as the feast wine is kept for the last for the best of the season, 'Jens of Bar-Z' is one of the successes of recent years.

AT THE THEATRES

At the Baker This Week.

What theatre-goer can resist the delightful comedy, "The Liars," which the Baker stock company is giving with such glorious success this week—the first of the season? If all the plays to follow are as good as this nothing is left to be desired.

Goodbye Allen Company.

"Doing Well, Thank You."

James R. Donovan has a comedy sketch at the Grand this week which is one of those laughable affairs which make vaudeville so popular. On the bill with him is another great attraction, Al Jolson, with one of the best singing voices ever owned by a comedian.

"Driven From Home."

This week the Star theatre is scarcely large enough to hold the people who wish to see "Driven From Home," played by the French stock company. There are four acts filled with pathos, comedy and excitement. The company is good, as all know who have visited the theatre.

Last of Minstrels Tonight.

The last performance of the famous Georgia negro minstrels will be given tonight at the Hellog. If you enjoy good, old-time minstrelsy, with plenty of music, singing, dancing and fun, don't overlook the Georgians. Popular prices prevail.

"The Prince Chap" Tomorrow.

Beginning tomorrow night and continuing Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights with a special matinee Saturday, the talented young star, Cyril Scott, will present the beautiful comedy drama, "The Prince Chap," at the Hellog. Portland theatre-goers are promised one of the season's treats in this delightful play.

Louis James Sunday Night.

The advance seat sale will open Friday morning at the box office of the Hellog for the engagement of one week, beginning next Sunday night. Two magnificent productions of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Comedy of Errors" will be given.

Chinaman Admitted to Bar.

Portland correspondence San Francisco Chronicle. What is believed to be the first time that a Chinese has been admitted to practice in a federal court occurred Friday, when Seid Back Jr. was accorded that privilege by Judge Calverton in the United States district and circuit courts. The real name of the Chinese is Seid Gan, but he is commonly known as Back, the name of his father. Portland's wealthiest Chinese merchant.

STRONG ANTI-CANTEEN ARGUMENT

By Mrs. L. H. Addison, state president of the W. C. T. U.

In 1904 the W. C. T. U., in order to be thoroughly informed on every phase of the arrangements pro and con in the canteen question, sent out a letter of inquiry to the commandant of every army post in the country. The amount of information obtained was surprising.

The W. C. T. U. had a representative in the Philippines during the war who was an eye witness to conditions in and about the army headquarters. Again, during the Japan-Russian war, one W. C. T. U. missionary was there during the entire time and can give out irrefragable testimony as to the liquor question there. Any one who has read the remarkable statements made by Dr. Anita Mott in behalf of the restoration of the canteen should also read the facts refuting her testimony given by no less an authority than Japanese officials themselves.

We would be glad to place this document in the hands of every one who believes in restoring the liquor to the canteen. Many statements are made and given great publicity with no regard for the refuting statements from undeniably good authorities.

THINKS ROSE CITY BEAUTIFUL PLACE

Bay City Banker Considers Portland One of Best Municipalities in Country.

Charles S. Neal, San Francisco banker and millionaire, has come to Portland on four occasions, not, as he said yesterday at the Oregon hotel, for business reasons, but to visit the city which he considers one of the most beautiful in the country.

"My present visit was to have been a stay of several weeks, but business compels me to leave for San Francisco. I have been away from home since May, or I would stay a few days longer in Portland and see the city."

170 PER DAY

The health departments of both New York and Chicago have sounded the alarm. The growing deaths from kidney disease are appalling—now over 170 per day. These are the census figures. The disease is getting to be a national menace. Every one should watch his kidneys.

Kidney trouble is not only curable the first few weeks, but often gets well of itself. After it has become chronic (fastens) all known medicines were futile. This was the situation up to the discovery of Fultona's Renal Compound. It is new in this profoundly important particular—it is the first thing yet discovered that is effective as well as before. Hence, it is curing the most fatal forms of kidney disease and it is the only thing in the world that is.

If you have kidney trouble, don't take chances, but start right. No one knows whether it has been developing a long time or has come on suddenly; hence, the only safe plan is to take the only thing known that will control it in either event.

"There is no doubt whatever about Fultona having discovered a specific for these diseases. The reason is in possession of facts that enables it to state this authoritatively."—Oakland, Cal., Daily Herald.

This compound is superseding kidney medicines. People with kidney trouble now have their opportunity. At druggists.

country for sound, conservative commercial policies that will make her one of the great cities of the country. I like Portland. I have been here four times and never visited was for any purpose save to spend several days in one of the finest cities in the country.

"I am glad to know Portland is progressing so rapidly. Every time I come here I am surprised at the wonderful strides that have been made. But the growth is not of the mushroom kind. All the buildings and improvements are typical of the city—sound and conservative, yet progressive.

"If I ever want to make an investment in any city, I want to make it in Portland. I am just about to go with a young man to look at some lots which he is thinking of purchasing. I have not seen them but I have told him that I do not think he could make a better investment than in Portland real estate."

Mr. Neal has been in Portland since last Wednesday. He will leave today for the Bay City, where his commercial interests are centered, although he resides at Alameda.

The above words rang out in the Blue ship saloon about 8:30 p. m. on June 10, 1904.

They were spoken by Peashooter Perkins, a cowboy, whose father had lived an exemplary life for 15 years, thereby gaining five years off his sentence, and had then gone west, where he was first an actor, later becoming an undertaker and glass-empter in a cafe.

Jack Saunders, the man to whom the above words were addressed, was a giant in stature, doubled his fists and shot all four at Peashooter's, so called because he could shoot all the peas out of a pod at 60 paces, measured by a walking fly.

Peashooter ducked, and a merciless mit collided with Daley Diller, who had just stepped in from teaching school to see what all the row was about.

"Curse you, Jack Saunders!" hissed Peashooter; "you dare to strike a woman!"

"It was all a m-m-mistake," sobbed Saunders, drawing his gun.

Peashooter received the bullet in his brain. Saunders could hit any object, however small.

"Is there any last wish?" murmured Daley, who was getting in from teaching school to see what all the row was about.

It was an effort for him to speak, but the fast-falling cowboy did so.

"B-bring me," he whispered, "the f-f-ines of b-beer I left on the c-counter; it ain't half f-f-finished."

Great Britain's Smallest House.

From the World Wide Magazine. The quaint old town of Conway, North Wales, boasts possession of the smallest house in Great Britain. This quaint house consists of only two rooms, one above the other, each of which is just two yards square.

The place is more than 300 years old and is in every respect a curious dwelling in every way. The upstairs room, which is reached by mounting a tiny ladder, has in it a four-foot bed and a wash-

AT THE STOCK THEATRES

The Lyric.

"Jens of the Bar-Z" is the bill which the Allen stock company is presenting at the Lyric for the week. Through it the company will add to its popularity, for the production is a good one and seems well suited to the members of the company. The play, as the title would indicate, is staged in cattleland and deals with the western life of the range in the western way and spirit. The theme follows that of the "Virginian" in many respects and gives ample opportunity for the character to show their capabilities in acting.

The two leading roles are taken by Verna Felton and Ralph Belmont, who represent Jens and the rough rider hero respectively. In the interpretation of her part Miss Felton makes a true western girl of herself, full of the dash and warm-hearted independent spirit of the plains. Mr. Belmont in his work leads the life of a cowboy and a gentleman most acceptably and to the entire satisfaction of the audience.

Forest Seabury, as is usual, brings a laugh with him and this week as the "port lariat" has plenty of chance to cheer the audience and drive away the blues. Mrs. Allen, as the housekeeper of the cattle ranch, H. L. Morton, as a Mexican, G. L. Walling and Irving Kennedy, as cowpunchers, all make hits with the patrons of the house.

AT THE VAUDEVILLE THEATRES

The Grand.

It has been said that there is nothing new under the drop lights of a vaudeville stage and this is perhaps to a great extent true. The Grand, however, has gathered together an assembly of specialties for the present week that dishes up vaudeville fun in a new way and makes it interesting from the outset to the biocope. It can be honestly
