WARDEN REPORTS ON HATCHERIES

Nature Has Piled Obstacles to Complete Success of Operations.

DESPITE THIS, TAKE FAIRLY SATISFACTORY

Experiment Station on Clackamas Below Casadero Dam a Complete Success—Spawns Collected Generally of Earliest and Finest.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Sept. 5.—Hatchery operations are reviewed in the August report of Master Fish Warden Van Dusen to the state board of fish commissioners under the heads, Columbia river and coast streams. Of the former he says:

"The Clackamas river experimental station below the dam at Casadero is a contented condition throughout the entire season and we are now successful in collecting a fine lot of spawn. They are without doubt, all from the very earliest variety of spring Chinook when the water was in the river during April and early May, for we have watched the situation very closely and have had them in sight within a couple of miles of the dam since the first of June, and for two months we have had them between racks. We began taking spawn August 4, but in no great quantity, for only a few of the salmon became mature so early. The principal work in this line began August 20 and since then a fair supply of spawn has been taken every day. From recent reports they have collected nearly a million and a half of spawn and have had it on hand between racks that should give them two or three millions more.

"The Salmon river hatchery, we have collected 300,000 spawn; and at the McKenzie river hatchery about 400,000 with prospects good for a fair supply at each station before the season is over. The salmon from which this spawn is being taken are also from the very earliest variety of spring Chinook and have been in the Columbia since April and May.

Snake River Operations. "From our Snake river stations reports are that Ontario on account of extreme quantity of water this year we were fully a month late in getting in our stop racks and did not get them complete and strung until August 22. What effect this will have on the station cannot be determined at this time. At the Wallawa station, which is a tributary of the Snake river, we have in the permanent hatchery dam across the Wallawa river that was put in last fall and are now in shape there to stop and hold the fish that we may desire, whether it be early or late, excepting during severe freshets, when they will pass over the dam. This station is about 650 miles from the mouth of the Columbia and the salmon did not begin to show up there this season until early in August. As a general thing, the salmon that seek this stream to spawn do not mature until September, and on the main Snake river at Ontario not until October.

Coast Streams. "On the Umpqua river we were compelled to take up the work this season at the lower station near Gille on account of the freshets last winter, carrying away so many of the hatchery troughs and doing such damage generally to the upper river station that it became impossible to get equipped again sufficiently to do satisfactory work there. The Gille station we got up at the usual rack, and the salmon stopped May 27, and have succeeded in getting the station fairly well equipped for the season's work. The work of collecting spawn began August 31, and from the number of salmon corralled between racks we should be enabled to get the usual supply of spawn for that river. These salmon are also of the very earliest variety of spring Chinook and of the very best quality. "At all of the other coast hatcheries we are getting ready for the season's take of eggs, which will comprise the taking of spawn from the Chinook and silverside varieties of salmon, and we hope to be in good shape this season for the taking and handling of a full supply of spawn at each of the stations.

New Station on the Alsea. "After a thorough investigation of the Alsea river, I have concluded to establish an experimental station on the main river at the mouth of Rock creek, which is situated about 14 miles above the head of tide, and will endeavor to get it equipped sufficiently for this season's take of eggs. This new work will be under the immediate supervision of Carl Rice of Mapleton, who has been an employe at the Siuslaw river hatchery during the past two or three years. The new work for the Coquille river will be carried on again this season on the north fork a few miles over the divide from the south Coos river hatchery, and will be under charge of Frank W. Smith, superintendent of the south Coos river hatchery, who will have general supervision over the two stations. This (Coquille) station will be completely equipped this season and an extra effort will be made to get a full supply of the silverside salmon spawn.

Fiscal Statement. The receipts of the wardens' office for the month were as follows: First district—Fines, $26.89; sales of confiscated fish, $21.85; licenses issued, $55; total, $143.64.

Second district—Licenses, $1,376.50. Grand total, $1,520.14. Accounts against the department approved and presented to the board for payment amount to $2,041.84, as follows: Against hatchery fund, district No. 1, $1,496.17; against special appropriation, constructing Columbia river hatcheries, $136.84; against special appropriation, operating and maintaining coast hatcheries, $381.85; against special appropriations, expenses master fish warden, $44.98. Total, $2,041.84.

BAREFOOT BOY LAW VERY GREAT BURDEN

Agricultural Counties of Washington Making Campaign to Secure Its Repeal.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Olympia, Wash., Sept. 5.—The fact has developed at the sessions of the state board of equalization that the agricultural counties of the state propose to unite in a demand for the repeal of the so-called "barefoot boy" law. They will go before the school code commission, which is now working on a code to be submitted to the next legislature, and endeavor to convince the commission that the present school law should be changed. They charge that it favors the populated centers at the expense of the agricultural and other sparsely settled sections. County Treasurer Deets of Lincoln county, who appeared before the state board of equalization, said that his county would be glad to surrender its school lands to its estate in exchange for relief from the present school tax burdens. He said that last year Lincoln county paid out $30,000 more school money than it received, under the present law, which gives each school child the same allowance per annum in state school money. Some districts in his county, he said, were obliged to close their schools entirely for lack of funds, while in other parts of the state the allowance under the law gives the districts more money than their requirements demand.

ROSEBURG KICKS ON AWFUL MAIL SERVICE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Roseburg, Or., Sept. 5.—The continued poor mail service here is causing much ordinary comment. The regular passenger train, No. 15, south-bound from Portland, carries only the mail here until that time or later, and consequently is affecting the whole county, as well as Coos Bay. All the mail for Coos Bay goes in from here by stage, and the three hours' delay makes it nearly a day and night lost, since it formerly went through in from 14 to 18 hours. Several times of late the mail for this place has been carried through and then brought back by No. 13, which has been made a regular passenger train. Such conditions cannot be accounted for. The people are becoming very anxious to see something done, and whether it is carelessness or mere neglect, they will ask the government to have it looked after at once.

NEW INDEMNITY LANDS TO OPEN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Olympia, Wash., Sept. 5.—The executive office is in receipt from the department of the interior of approved list No. 21 of school land indemnity selections, embracing 19,235.40 acres, in Yakima and Kittitas counties. This land is returned to the state in lieu of sections 16 and 36 in those townships that have been included in Indian and forest reservations, and which have been deemed to settlers. The list was approved August 5.

CLOSING CONCERT WAS WELL ATTENDED

Fred Butler in Splendid Voice Last Night at White Temple Farewell.

Fred Butler's closing concert at the White Temple last night was well attended and enjoyable. He was in excellent voice and gave his varied program with skill. His sense of humor added a genial pleasantry, and in these lighter bits he kept his audience happy, while his dramatic training and capacity were also "very demonstrative." In the "Armer's Song" from Robin Hood, which he gave as an encore, playing his own accompaniment, the full resonance of his voice were given scope, and this selection was enthusiastically received. In the "Pilgrim Song" by Tchaikowsky and "The Drum Major" from "The Cadet" Mr. Butler was particularly good.

Mrs. Sylvia McGuire gave a number of readings and proved an able entertainer. Her dialect selection, "A Plantation Story," was done with grace and humor and earned a recall to which she responded by giving a choice bit of New England village life. Waldemar Lind, violinist, played well, proving himself equal to the task in the difficult "Taranelli" by Wieniawski and the moving Traumerl of Schumann, which he gave as an encore to his first selection. The full program was a great success and the minor concerts and the dainty Farfalla by Saurer. The program was well arranged, not too difficult for the popular audience, yet full of good things. Portland people regret the departure of Mr. Butler, whose sympathetic singing has made him a great favorite. It was hinted last night that he may return next summer.

COLONEL HALFORD IS RETIRED FROM ARMY

(Journal Special Service.) Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Colonel Elijah W. Halford, deputy paymaster general of the United States army and formerly private secretary to President Benjamin Harrison, was placed on the retired list yesterday, having reached the age limit for active service. Colonel Halford has served in the army since January 10, 1893, his appointment to the pay grade having been one of the last official acts of President Harrison. Colonel Halford is a native of England, and while a child came to the United States and located at Indianapolis, where he was employed as a printer and a newspaper writer. In 1889 he was appointed private secretary to President Harrison. In 1888 he was a delegate to the Republican national convention, and served on the committee which drafted the platform upon which Harrison was elected. In 1888 he was disbursing officer of the Bering Sea Arbitration commission, which met in Paris. He has recently been stationed in the department of California.

PORTLAND MEN BUY IDAHO PLACER MINE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Camp Florence, Ida., Sept. 5.—There is greater activity in the Camp Florence district at the present time than for many years. S. H. Moon, a pioneer of this district, has just closed the sale of one of the biggest placer propositions in the state. The price has not been made public, but it will amount to many thousands of dollars. A greater part of this property is virgin ground practically unexplored. In samples taken from it are much richer in gold than anything else ever found in the Florence district. The tract comprises nearly 6,000 acres and extends from Florence to the mouth of Mill creek. Many valuable nuggets have been picked up. Recently a nugget was found worth $2.60, and many have been found the size of wheat grains. The property was purchased by Portland men, who, it is said, will work it with a big force and begin at an early date. Many quartz mines in the district are taking out ore that is milling $19 to $25 a ton. The Last Chance mine has a large force at work putting in piping and getting new pumps in shape to give a good water supply.

Sheep King Sells Ranch. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Baker City, Or., Sept. 5.—Colonel W. G. Ayres, the sheep king of Baker county, has sold his famous 200-acre ranch in the Durkee valley to F. C. Oxman of Chicago, for $25,000. The ranch is considered the best improved in Baker county.

ST. JOHNS SHOWS GREAT GROWTH

Booklet Issued by Commercial Bodies of City for Advertising Purposes.

DETERMINED EFFORT TO BUILD CITY UP

Handsome Illustrations Add to Completeness of Data, Showing Exactly What "Gateway to Portland Harbor" Has Accomplished.

"St. Johns, the Gateway to Portland Harbor," is the title of a magnificent booklet, neatly compiled and complete in every detail, just received for distribution by the St. Johns Commercial Club. It is a superb effort in the advertising line and a credit to the enterprise of St. Johns' commercial bodies who were instrumental in securing funds for its publication. The marvelous growth of the city during the last three years is given a prominent place, followed with the natural advantages of the city for a factory town. It is described as being situated between the forks of the two mightiest rivers in all the west with more navigable river water frontage than any other city of its size in the United States. It also states that five continental railroads have direct connection with the city of St. Johns—the Oregon Railway & Navigation company and the Southern Pacific by means of the new belt line now in the progress of construction, and the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads by means of the Portland & Seattle road being built almost through the city. In describing the remarkable growth of the city the pamphlet states the advantage the peninsula offers as being to have been overlooked by the great captains of industry and homesteaders until recent years; as recent as three years ago there were not more than 400 people residing in the limits of St. Johns; the limited number of its industries were scarcely noticed; its assessed valuation was less than $200,000 and the payroll did not exceed $500 a month. Now St. Johns has a population of 4,000 people; its assessed valuation is nearly $2,500,000 and its principal industries consist of two sawmills, two shipbuilding plants, the port of Portland drydocks, the Marine Iron Works, one flouring mill, one woolen mill, one machine shop, one veneering and basket factory, one excelsior factory, two planing mills and one cigar factory, all of which find a ready market for their products, and the payroll of these industries aggregate between $65,000 and $70,000 a month. Also many gigantic concerns such as Switzer & Weyerhauser Timber company, the West Coast Lumber company have purchased large tracts of land in and about St. Johns and have already broken ground for the establishment of large plants exceeding in size and efficiency those of any other part of the west.

The pamphlet is profusely illustrated with views of the industries named, residences, schools and public buildings, the most notable of which is a new hall costing $12,000 just completed, with street scenes and scenes of industrial progress and railroad buildings on the peninsula and views of the harbor. In fact it contains everything the attractive city can show to prospective investors.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL CHILDREN NUMBERED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Olympia, Wash., Sept. 5.—A compilation of the school census of the state prepared by Frank C. Morse, secretary of the state tax commission, from records in the state superintendent's office shows a total of 235,952 children of school age on June 1, an increase of 26,141 over 1906, or nearly 1 per cent. Franklin county, with approximately 1,000 school children, shows the greatest percentage of increase, amounting to 18.95 per cent. The census taker of Douglas county found 350 less children
