TODAY'S MARKETS Only the Best Quality Hops Will Find Any Sort of Demand This Season in Oregon, Say the Leading Dealers.

Outside Creameries Over-September Option Closed Toloaded and Willing to Accept Reduction.

Latest market features: Butter supplies offered lower. Some peaches sell low. Trying to unload eastern eggs. Chittim situation is mixed.

Great scarcity of dressed meats.

Grapes are selling well.

Export flour advanced 10c.

Oats and barley firmer.

Small offerings of hay. Only best hops are wanted. Bell peppers come rather fast. Weather helps melon sale.

Offer Butter at Beduction. The true state of the creamery butter tuation can be easily judged when it shown that practically three quarters is shown that practically three quarters of the make of butter in Oregon at this time is being offered at lower values. Outside creamerles report that since the rains their production has increased fully a quarter—some say a third. Along Front street the price is considerably weaker and the best product is selling and is being freely offered at $2½c a pound or 65c a square. The leading brands of outside creamery usually sell at the same figures as do the best city manufacture, but so great are the supplies that the former believe they will not be able to unload and keeps the channel of trade clear if they hold for the higher figure. This may later on influence the price of city creamery. No change in the latter today, however. Consumption Greatly Decreased.

Will cost much to reed the animal.

At the present high price of butter there has been a marked decrease in consumption. At 70c a square the retail cost of butter is 80c, thus putting the price up to such a figure that many families cannot afford to eat butter at all, and many others will not use half as much as formerly. It is noted that since the recent advance in the price of creamery there has been a great deal creamery there has been a great deal more inquiry for the cheaper grades, which are usually neglected except by the very cheapest restaurants. A larger amount of imitation butter and oleomargarine is likewise being consumed on account of the high price of the real creamery article.

Potato orders are coming slowly from Arizona, because of the easier price in California, due to the larger offerings there. Present price seems to be about the limit for southwestern

Onion growers are beginning to offer Onion growers are beginning to oner small lots again on the local market. Outside of home demand there is little doing as yet. Price about unchanged. Sale of watermelons and cantaloupes is helped by the late warm weather and prices are holding steady.

Dressed meats of all kinds are still very scarce in the Front street markets.

MATURED POTATOES ARE HARD TO FIND

"While one or two dealers are taking chances on Arizona potato shipments, I am of the opinion that stocks are not sufficiently matured to ship that long distance into a hot country and the shippers are therefore liable to make heavy losses. For strictly fancy matured potatoes there is some business offering from the southwest but stocks must be just so. This demand has just appeared and will not continue if growers here get an idea that the market should advance and therefore hold back the purchases while California does all the business."-Billy Dryer of Dryer, Bollam & Co.

The higher price of oats will affect all cereal food manufactures because heretofore the business has been tremendous because of the very low prices. Unless the Standard Oil company makes a further advance in the price of gasoline it will be cheaper to run a chug-chug wagon than own a horse, for with oats at the present figure it will cost much to feed the animal.

In order to unload some of their surplus supplies of cheap eastern eggs, some of the handlers are quoting local eggs several cents higher than the actual market, a sale of a single case probably being made to some dealer who is not up on market values. For fancy eastern eggs there is a legitimate demand at good values, but holders of cheap quality invariably boost the price of the local product so they can induce the trade to take some of the former at a reduction from the price local goods are actually moving at. Along Front street today eggs are actually selling at 27c a dozen with an occasional sale a fraction higher than this amount.

For fancy hens the demand is fully up to the supplies along produce row, but springs are still neglected.

Chittim Situation Is Mixed.

The chittim bark situation is very badly mixed again. While there are reports of 7c a pound being paid, here this season, top offers being at 6½c, and this only in car lots. For small lot; the general price is 6c, f, o. b. Portland. According to late eastern journals of trade, there is very little doing in the chittim bark market there. Some small sales are reported that would admit of 6c and 6 ½c a pound being paid here. On account of the recent stories of heavy advances in the price, holders of old chittim are doing very well, because the advanced prices have caused first holders to wait a while before letting go, the hope being that prices would move still higher.

Brief Notes of the Trade.

Peach market is in bad shape for poor quality. Some six-tier stock from Mosier is hard to move at any price. Last night a local firm sold 253 boxes to hawkers at 20c a box. Market for fancy stock remains in fine shape, best stock in pink wrappers selling between 30c and $1. General price remains around 75c and 85c.

Bell peppers are in much larger supply. Small sizes down to 5c, with large ones at $c.

Huckleberries are coming very fast from Puget sound points. Quality better than usual with sales at 9c and 10c a pound.

Grape market is in fine shape, although lower prices are named on Concords because of the great increase in supplies.

Potato orders are coming slowly west quotation $3.90 a barrel—the highis set price for that grade in 10 years or more. For . is season it beats the rectord of all time in the Portland market.

Today's advance fully confirms the recent prediction in this paper that the market would not stand at the former advance of 10 cents, but would go higher.
To make this condition several things combined. First there was the great shortage of flour in the orient. Second, local supplies of old wheat were practically exhausted, so the new cropentered practically a bare market. This later caused millers to pay more money for their wheat than they expected.
Third, the European markets were very eager for wheat thean they expected.
Third, the European markets were very
eager for wheat then they expected.
Third, the European markets were very
eager for wheat then they expected.
Third, the European markets were very eager for wheat the price of flour up, and even at the present record-breaking figures the demand for flour for early delivery is fully twice as great as millers can supply. This latter condition is due entirely to the fact that wheatgrowers are not disposed to ret go their holdings until they get good and ready—the present being that they are not ready and will not be good from a grain buyer's standpoint of view.

The local wheat market is firmer, though values are remaining at former levels, and there is a tendency to pay a fractional premium over these figures for immediate delivery.

The west quotation as the profit of the

While the opening was higher there was some pressure after the start and the price dropped below yesterday's close. With the higher cables from Liverpool the market recovered and made its recovering gain.

A wire to a brokerage house comes from Minnespolis with the following: "This northwest wheat crop is another 1888 but the trade doesn't know it yet. Some of our best elevator people are getting confirmation of this by every mail now. Two thirds of North Dakota is frest bitten.

Fishermen Demand Fair Pay. Aberdeen, Wash., Sept. 6.—The war between the fishermen and the packers and cannerymen is still waging. Secretary Rosenberg is here to see that the fishermen age their rights. It is reported that some of the fishermen are storing their boats and getting other work rather than continue at a calling that yields them on the average but $1.50 a day. They say they do not intend to have any trouble if they can help it, but if they are to work, they demand a living wage.

TYPEWRITER COVER

. 100 Can Be Readily Folded, Occupying Small Space.

One of the indispensable requisities of the typewriter is the cover, as it is absolutely necessary to prevent dust entering the delicate mechanism. These covers are genrally cumbersome and unsightly affairs, occupying as much space as the typewriter itself. A West Virginia inventor, noticing how unsatisfactory these covers were, got to work on the problem and devised the collapsible cover shown in the illustration. This cover is made of a fiexible material, accordios plaited. It is split across the top, and when removed from the typewriter can be folded to be perfectly flat. One of the advantages of Slater came into about $30,000 four years ago, upon the death of his father, whom he claims was an ex-governor of Indiana. He dissipated the fortune in riotous living, and throughout southern California was known as a "good fellow." When he had managed to spend his last thousand, Slater placed $7.50 on deposit in the Los Angeles Loan & Savings bank in July, 1906.
