

DRUNKARD ENACTS FEARFUL TRIPLE TRAGEDY BECAUSE WIFE REFUSED TO LIVE WITH HIM

CHARLES BAILEY

MRS. KATE BAILEY

Maddened by his wife's refusal to live with him longer, Charles Bailey, while intoxicated, shot and fatally wounded his wife at 6:30 o'clock last night, fired two bullets into the body of his 13-year-old stepdaughter, Rhoda Bradley, killing her instantly, then turned the revolver upon himself and ended his own life.

The triple tragedy occurred in the single room occupied by Mrs. Bailey and her daughter in the cottage at 226 Grant street and all three of the bodies were lying on the floor within a few feet of each other when the police arrived and broke open the door. Mrs. Bailey was taken in an unconscious condition to St. Vincent's hospital. Mrs. Bailey had been supporting herself and daughter by working in the Union laundry since separating from her husband last fall. Bailey continued to annoy her, even after she had left him, and a month ago, upon recovering from a brutal beating and choking, she rented the front room in the Grant street cottage. The rear apartment is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McCauley, and the latter's mother, Mrs. T. C. Phelps.

Bayley Left in Rage. A week ago Bailey came to the house and tried to effect a settlement of difficulties with his wife. But she told him that she would never live with him again and commanded him never to come to see either her or the daughter. Bailey left in a rage, muttering threats, and the woman anticipated trouble when he again put in an appearance at meal-time last night.

Bayley had reached the house a few minutes before Mrs. Bailey returned from her work. Taking the little girl by the hand he started down Grant street toward Second and had reached the corner when the wife arrived home. Looking down the street she saw the two together and beckoned for Little Rhoda to come back. Then she went into the house and into the McCauley apartment.

"I wish you would keep on the watch, Charles is here drunk and there may be trouble," saying she went out again onto the street and down to the corner, where she waited for her husband. The three returned to the house together, Bailey being the last to enter the front room.

Even as he turned the gatepost at the end of the front walk, murder was in his mind. For Mrs. McCauley, looking out the window, saw his hand reach back to his hip pocket, where a revolver was concealed.

But she did not think the man contemplated crime and sat down to the news waiting for her. A moment afterward she heard Mrs. Bailey and the little girl scream and she rushed down the hall to their assistance, thinking Bailey was again beating the two. Just as she reached the door and was about to open it the successive shots from Bailey's revolver rang out and Mrs. McCauley, too frightened to enter the room, rushed on out to the street, where she screamed for help.

Begged for Her Life. Mrs. Phelps had also risen from the table with Mrs. McCauley. As the latter ran out to the street, Mrs. Phelps opened the door into the room where the tragedy was being enacted.

On the floor to her right lay Mrs. Bailey, covered with blood. Little Rhoda, still unarmed, cowered behind the stove to her left and begged pitifully to her father not to shoot. Bailey himself stood in the center of the room flourishing the smoking weapon.

"Get out of here, quick!" he yelled at Mrs. Phelps as she opened the door. "Get out of here, or I'll shoot you, too. I own every inch in this room. Get out!"

Fearful lest the drunken brute would carry out his threats Mrs. Phelps quickly withdrew, and she had scarcely more than gained the hall again when several more shots were fired. These were the ones which ended the lives of the little girl and her maddened stepfather.

The man had emptied all the chambers of his weapon at his headless wife and daughter, and while the neighbors were gathering in front of the house he deliberately reloaded the revolver and turned the gun on himself.

In Auto to Hospital. Mrs. McCauley had gone to a neighboring grocery store and from there the police had been summoned. With the arrival of the latter a stretcher was made, a passing automobile, driven by E. M. Norcross, brought into play and the injured woman conveyed to St. Vincent's hospital.

The bodies of Bailey and Rhoda Bradley were taken by Coroner Finley to his undertaking rooms. No inquest will be held on either. Mrs. Bailey was 37 years of age and married Bailey three years ago. She was born in Portland and her mother, Mrs. H. J. Bevis, lives in Sellwood. Prior to her marriage to Bailey she was the wife of John Bradley, and beside the murdered child three other children were born to her by her first husband. They are William, aged 17; Gerald, aged 14, and Florence, aged 7, who is living with the grandmother. The two boys live with their father at Goble. Bradley was divorced from his wife four years ago, owing to family trouble.

Mrs. Bailey also has three brothers and four sisters living. They are: L. H. Sam and H. J. Bevis of Portland; Mrs. Mary Taylor of Dufur, Mrs. Mabel English of Deer Island and Mrs. Annie Nichols and Mrs. Jennie Nichols, both of whom live in this city.

An Albany Teacher Cured.

Miss Jennie E. Bouton, a teacher, living at 45 Second street, Albany, N. Y., says: "Confinement in the school room brought on anemia. Any exertion made me short of breath and I had to stop at nearly every step on going up stairs. I had no color in my cheeks or lips and my ears were transparent. I had dull headaches and faint spells. I had a doctor but received no real benefit until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They cured me and I have never been ill since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Cure anemia and all anemic conditions because they actually make new blood. They are not a cure-all. They do this one thing and they do it well—they make blood.

CHILD KILLED UNDER WHEELS OF WAGON

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 6.—The three-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Jackson was killed today by being run over with a wagon. The child and his five-year-old brother asked a man with a load of sand for a ride. He refused and they followed and attempted to climb on the load. The younger boy's foot slipped and he fell under the wagon wheel, which passed the full length of his body, killing him instantly. The driver did not notice the children until he felt the wagon run over something yielding. He took the body to a hydrant and was endeavoring to effect resuscitation when the mother found them. The driver was profoundly grieved and did all he could to help the mother and child.

Wonderful Strike in Indiana Copper Mine

Ledge Four Feet Wide of 30 Per Cent Ore on Four Hundred Level.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Baker City, Or., Sept. 6.—Copper ore running from 20 to 30 per cent, in a ledge four feet wide has been uncovered in the 400 foot level of the Indiana mine, near Medical Springs in Union county, according to reliable authority. This is the greatest strike in the copper belt and it is reported that the ore shows every indication of holding out indefinitely.

For the past two years the Indiana has been considered a property of unquestioned merit but the discovery of the immense deposit of high grade ore on the 400 foot level places it in the list of the world's leaders.

Manager J. W. Messner refuses to discuss the strike but from other sources it is learned that the ore body is immense.
