TODAY'S MARKETS

Dealers Do Not Know Where They Stand or Whether There Will Be Demand.

Latest market features:
Strawberries in market again.
Peach supplies are glutted.
Spring chickens are depressed.
Grape market shot to pieces.
Hop situation badly mixed.
Some still cutting butter.
Eggs are firm; cheese duller.

So mixed is the hop situation at this time that even the oldest cealers do not know just where they stand. The extent of the hops to be placed upon the market is not known by anyone. Every day shows some yards abandoned, while at the same time growers who first decided not to pick suddenly changed their minds. Lice and vermin with mould are, however, playing havoc everywhere in the state. Only a few yards are entirely free from some disturbance, and it is not likely that over 30,000 bales of first class hops will be harvested in the state this season. This information comes from a most reliable dealer—one who if anything, would be on the buyers' side of the fence. Mop Situation Is Badly Mixed.

Good Mops Deserted.

J. A. Jones, who usually harvests about 300 bales from his yards near Newberg, was in the city yesterday, and stated that he would not likely pick his hops, as he could scarcely afford to waste his time harvesting a crop that would scarcely pay for the help employed at this stage of the market. According to the local trade, the yard of Mr. Jones is one of the best in the state, being entirely free from mould or lice.

Rîley Cooper of Independence states that the mould is starting in the yards around Independence. According to Mr. Cooper, he will not pick any of his crop that will act grade best quality, all mouldy or vermin affected hops being cast aside because of the low prices.

Herman Uhlmann, perhaps one of the most conservative of the local trade, expressed the opinion this moraling that about 30,000 bales of choice hops would sell at quite fair figures—probably about 12 and 14c later in the year—but that most of the hope grown in the about 12 and 14c later in the year—but that most of the hops grown in the state would go begging for buyers this season, unless there was a radical change in the situation. "I have seen seasons very similar to this." he says. "when hops were very low, but made a slight recovery later, and then again sold at $2 a bale. There's no telling, however, what will happen in the hop market."

Ernest Wells, representative of E. Clement Horst, states there is no business in the market. According to Mr. Wells, all of the Horst hops are being

Strawberries in Market Again.

One of the finest crates of strawberries seen at this time of the year along Front street came in today. It was grown by Miss M. J. Rupert at Oak Grove. Stocks were of the Clark seeding variety, and were sold to a Spokane firm at 25c a pound, or $5 a crate. Just after the crate was sold a local firm offered 50c a pound for the stocks, so fancy was the quality.

The grape market is busted wide open. One firm alone has on hand three tons of black grapes sent here on consignment from Stockton, California. The shipper-of the stock is unknown to the receivers, thus showing that supplies are so great that growers are sending them broadcast to niuctuations.)

The Function of the Artist.

By Richard Wagner (1813-1883).

To raise the strangely potent language of the orchestra to such a height that at every instant it may plainly manifest to feeling the unspeakable of the dramatic situation—to do this, as we have already said, the musician inspired by the poet's aim has not to haply practice self-restraint; no, he has seen closely identified with to sharpen his inventiveness to the point of discovering the most varied orchestral idioms, to meet the necessity he feels of a pertinent, a most determinate expression.

By Richard Wagner (1813-1883).

The steamer Charles R. Spencer went on the drydock this morning for a general overhauling and will not leave for the Cascades tomorrow. The machinery as well as the hull will be overhauled, but nevertheless the boat will be ready to depart for Hood River at 7 o'clock Monday morning. The Spencer was taken off the run between Portland and The Dalles about two weeks ago and The Dalles about two weeks ago and now makes Hood River her up-river terminal. Captain Spencer says Hood River is growing rapidly and is just the right distance from Portland for a daily round trip by his steamer.

BLAME NO ONE.

Inspectors Exonerate Pilot Snow Who Steered City of Panama.

Messrs. Edwards and Fuller, Inspectors of hulls and boilers, have exonerated pilot Willis C. Snow from blame in the matter of the collision between the steamers City of Panama and Alliance the morning of August 12, when the Panama crashed into the Alliance at the mouth of the Willamette river.

river.
This decision exonerates everybody because if anyone was to blame it was because if anyone was to blame it was Pilot Snow who had charge of the City of Panama. The Alliance, in charge of Pilot Turner, had grounded on the river bank late the preceding night in trying to make the bend while the dredge Portland was occupying considerable space in the channel, and soon after daylight the following morning Pilot Snow tried to take the City of Panama through the same place. His vessel, too, was caught in the cross current and she turned her nose in the same direction as the Alliance. The result was that the City of Panama cut a deep gash in the Alliance's stern and result was that the City of Panama cut a deep gash in the Alliance's stern and crowded her further up the bank.

The Alliance was subsequently floated but the repairs were not completed until yesterday and she will sail for Coos Bay tonight for the first time since the accident occurred. F. P. Baumgartner, ageat for the Alliance, has libeled the City of Panama for $25,000, but it is a question whether or not the decision will have any bearing on the libel, since the Alliance people will likely show that the City of Panama should have kept away under all ama should have kept away under all circumstances when it was seen that the Alliance was fast in the mud.

At dessert the conversation became general and drifted from one topic to another, and finally celebrated robberies were discussed. The English woman listened with great interest and their volunteered to tell of an experience of her own.

"Just before starting on this trip," she commenced, "my father and I returned to London after a year's absence and in a few days we went down to our country seat.

The Kalomo was put into quarantine because of coming from San Francisco, where a couple of cases of bubonic plague came to light several weeks ago. This prompted the quarantine department to take extraordinary precautions against a spread of the disease, and hence every craft coming from San Francisco is subjected to funigation.

The Kalomo was funigated at the weeks when numerous sensational robberies took place in our neighborhood and were reported to the local police. They worked very hard, but every clue was exhausted and no light was thrown on the robberies.
