WEATHER REPORT

The barometer is falling this morn-ing along the Washington coast, and there is evidence of a disturbance at sea which will move inland during the next 24 hours and cause general rains in this district. A shallow trough of low pressure overlies the intermountain states and a well-defined disturbance is central near Lake Huron. The bar-ometer is relatively high over the mid-die Mississippi valley. Light to moder-ately heavy rains have fallen in the lake region. Ohio valley and Atlantic states from New York south to Georgia. The temperatures continue above nor-mal in eastern Oregon and Idaho, but in Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota it is cooler than usual. Diservations taken at 5 a.m., Pacific time:
