

BENNETT SAYS PLANT TREES

Irrigon Editor Avers They Are Veritable Means of Grace.

TREELESS HOMES ARE A VERY POOR SORT

Culture of Peoples of Arbores and Non-Arbores Sections Contrasted—Umatilla and Morrow Have Viticultural Future.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Sept. 25.—One of the most striking addresses of the many that have been delivered during the progress of the Umatilla-Morrow fair was that of Addison Bennett, editor of the Irrigon Irrigator, on Morrow county day, yesterday, on tree planting. He predicted that the future of the sections of Umatilla and Morrow counties nearly adjacent to the Columbia river would be conditioned by the vineyardist. He compared the treeless, vineless, flowerless wheat belt with well arbores regions, asserting that a contrast in the degree of culture of the inhabitants was not only marked but inevitable, and that a corresponding difference in actual selling values of properties was as certainly to be noted. Mr. Bennett said:

"If we thought heaven had no trees we would not want to go there, for we can picture no place nearer perfection which has not sunshine and shade, and shade is just as essential in a perfect climate, as sunshine.

"We of eastern Oregon feel and know that we have as fine a climate as God ever gave to any of his recalcitrant children. We have a wealth of sunshine. You may not know it, but we have in the course of the year more sunshine than the so-called sunny California; more hours, because we are farther north and during the growing season the sun hangs longer with us. It is for that reason that Robert Sleicher has said that our land along the Columbia river, in Morrow and Umatilla counties, will in time become the finest grape producing section in the United States. Who is Robert Sleicher? He is the grape expert of Lewiston, Idaho, and the agricultural department recognizes him as one of the foremost viticulturists in the world, and to him we owe homage for giving us several varieties of new grapes, notably the Black Hamburg. Mr. Sleicher visited Irrigon a couple of years ago and spent a week there, and it was his opinion that we could raise as fine grapes as any place in the world. And the grapes, above all other fruits of the vine, needs a wealth of sunshine to bring it to maturity, to sweeten it, to give it that rare ambrosial flavor which is the glory of the perfect grape.

"Sunshine! We have a taste of it almost every day in the whole year and it will come to be one of our chief assets as the decades roll around. "Like a true Oregonian I forget myself when I touch upon the Oregon climate. Pictures come before me, visions arise, and I fancy Oregon as she should be and will be. I see Pendleton a city of many thousands of prosperous, happy, contented people; I see Hesperia a busy market, where each year millions of dollars will change hands for our wool, our sheep and lambs, our cattle and hogs, our wheat and barley. I picture Iona as a city resplendent and beautiful; I see Athena, Freewater, Milton, Umatilla, Echo, Lexington, Irrigon and scores of other cities and towns, with their paved streets, electric lights, many trolley car connections, and filled with a people who enjoy life and participate in the general prosperity.

"I see their long lines of shaded streets, their silver poplars, their oaks and locusts, their maples and walnuts, and long rows and straight and winding avenues of the Lombardy poplar. Interspersed at every hand, in every corner, in every nook and yard, and in closure there will be a wealth of fruit trees—millions of them.

"And it is, after all, these trees that will change our climate, change our country, halt our winds, abate our sand drifts and make our country a heaven.

Treeless Wheat Farms.
"Go out into the wheat belt; notice the untidy shacks, the unkempt grounds surrounding many of the dwellings; note the unpainted domiciles, the battered barns, the untidy yards, the unpainted, unwhitewashed fences and out-buildings; note the lack of tree and shrub and vine. And then come to a place where there are a few trees, where there is a dooryard, where the fence is whitewashed and the house painted. Compare this with the other places, and then thank God that there are those who are actually making homes, actually changing the face of the country, actually living after the fashion that God intended his children should live.

"Not long ago I took a tour through an adjoining county and I noted the unthrift of many of the settlers. I found as a rule they were but awaiting a buyer, that they might sell out and move on to cumber the ground in some other locality. I found the young men and young women from these so-called homes preferred the saloon, the store, a place as a servant in a restaurant or store, or even as a day laborer, to their homes. Around these places there was no semblance of anything beautiful and the house was the same within.

The Home Where Trees Grow.
"And then I came to another home, one recognized a long way off by a few vines and trees and flowers. The fence was whitewashed, the house was painted, dainty curtains fluttered in the windows and an organ sat in the parlor and silverware graced the table. I noticed the young people remained on the farm. They were helping father and mother make a real home, and perhaps some of their time, much of their time, was put in carrying water to irrigate the trees and vines and shrubs and flowers and lawn.

"Did the owner of that place wish to sell? No. He was satisfied and contented, but whenever a buyer came into the community it was this place he wanted, and offered a good price for it, while the treeless home was passed by with aversion and contempt. "As a matter of pride or plout some trees, for the sake of your sons and daughters, plant a few trees. As a

Millions of Acres of Land in West to Be Thrown Open to Settlers.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 25.—Homes for 35,000 families will be provided in the northwest by Uncle Sam during the next 12 months, when, it is given out, the government will open to settlement 1,910,000 acres of timber, agricultural and mineral land in eastern Washington, northern Idaho, western Montana and South Dakota. The occupation of these lands, situated in eight Indian reservations, will mark the most important period of development since the first railroad invaded the forested valleys and the wild, adventurous heroic days, which will never again have a counterpart in this country. The lottery system has been decided upon in the disposition of these reservation lands, which are located as follows:

Colville, eastern Washington, 1,000,000 acres; Yakima, central Washington, 1,145,000 acres; Coeur d'Alene, northern Idaho, 310,000 acres; Lemhi, central eastern Idaho, 600,000 acres; Blackfoot, southern Idaho, 600,000 acres; Flathead, western Montana, 1,000,000 acres; Rosebud and Lower Brule, South Dakota, 891,450 acres.

The Lower Brule reserve, comprising 65,560 acres, will be the first to be opened. The land has been appraised and the regulations issued for its disposal. Home-seekers have until October 7 to file applications for lottery tickets in the drawing which will take place at Pierre the following week. Each applicant must go to the Pierre land district and make oath on his ticket that he is entitled to take public land under the homestead laws. If successful in drawing a homestead he must pay the government the appraised value of the land, in annual installments. The value is placed at from $1.25 to $4 an acre.

matter of dollars and cents, as a matter of profit, plant some trees. For your own sake, for the sake of your country, for the benefit of your country, plant a few trees. And above all, for the sake of posterity, plant trees. You may not be able to do much for those who are to come after you; you may not be able to erect a monument or donate a library or build a fountain or endow a hospital, but you can plant a tree, and it will outlive library, monument, fountain and hospital, and will for generations to come give comfort and cheer, and perhaps nourishment and life to many who will rise to call you blessed.

PARISIAN PROMENADE.

Thousands of People Stand Close On Three Hours, Watching the Moving Splendor.

Last evening the Eastern Outfitting company had the audience and they certainly put up a good show. As a feature of their fall opening, they had arranged in general, very artistically, a promenade of living models—women dressed in imported gowns for every occasion—evening, the street, costumes for dinner, automobile, carriage riding, etc., showing, most effectively and in a most original way, the fall and winter styles in general costume and all the smaller accessories of woman's toilette. Thousands of people filled the streets, many standing for nearly three hours, while the moving procession of gay splendor passed through the long avenues of windows.

Mr. Shemanski is certainly original in his display conceptions. The idea was carried out with perfect taste and without a hitch in the constant coming and going of costumed models. The windows were elegantly hung in rich dark drapes, making a suitable background, and one that detracted not at all from the rich gowns of the women. The "show" was certainly worth making considerable effort to see, and it is understood that an even more elaborate performance in every respect is billed for tonight. Everett's Military band furnished music during the entire evening.

FAMOUS OLD FRIGATE SARATOGA TO BE SOLD

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 25.—The famous old frigate Saratoga, now at the League Island navy yard and which was stricken from the active list of vessels of the navy a short time ago, was put up for sale at public auction today. The vessel is one of the most famous of the old American men-of-war. She was constructed at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, and launched on July 28, 1812. In the years that followed she made a name for herself in the suppression of the slave traffic and in the Mexican war, and had among her commanders such famous sailors as Farragut, Shubrick and Tatnall. She was named to commemorate the name of Commodore Perry's famous flagship Saratoga, on which he fought the battle of Lake Erie. She was larger than any ship of her class in existence at the time of her construction.

SECRETARY ROOT GOES TO MEXICO

American Will Discuss Central Republics' Affairs With President.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, Sept. 25.—Washington expects results of an important and far-reaching character to follow the visit of Secretary of State Elihu Root to Mexico. Secretary Root, accompanied by his wife and daughter, leaves Washington this afternoon and plans to be gone several weeks. While the visit is ostensibly for the purpose of cementing the good relations between the United States and Mexico, it is understood that other questions, of even deeper significance will be discussed by the American secretary of state and the Mexican president. It is regarded as quite probable that the condition of affairs in Central America will be an important subject of discussion, particularly the plan of President Zelaya of Nicaragua, looking to a union of the five Central American republics into one powerful nation.

Advice from Mexico indicate that the government and people of that republic are making elaborate preparations for the reception and entertainment of the distinguished visitor. The private train of President Diaz will be sent to Laredo to meet Secretary Root and his party and to convey them to the capital. The commission that will meet them at the border is composed of Ignacio Mariscal, the minister of foreign affairs; Governor Guillermo de Landay y Escandón, General Rincon Galario and several others of equal prominence.

The secretary of state and his family will be the guests of President Diaz at Chapultepec castle, which has been renovated and refitted for their accommodation. The Mexican president will give a state dinner in their honor at the national palace. Foreign Minister Mariscal will also banquet them and a state ball is on the program. The unique entertainment of the visit will be furnished by Governor Guillermo de Landay y Escandón, who has arranged for a roping contest at Mexico City, in which the cowboys will show their skill.

Aged Indian Missing.

Pendleton, Or., Sept. 25.—Frank Parr, a half-breed Indian aged 70, has been missing from the Umatilla reservation since August 21, and no trace of him can be had. He went from here to the Yakima country, but cannot be located there nor at The Dalles, where he resides. It is now believed the old man is lost, or is a victim of foul play, as he had some money.
