Scion of Wealthy Family is Missing From Troop He Joined Because Girl Jilted Him While He Was at Harvard University.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Deadwood, S. D., Sept. 28.—Joining the army three years ago to forget the pretty southern girl who jilted him for another, Louis E. Mingsdorf, scion of a wealthy French family of Atlanta, Georgia, is being looked for everywhere by the United States military authorities on the charge of desertion. Mingsdorf was a member of troop E, Sixth cavalry, which was recently ordered to the Philippines.
Mingsdorf graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and then went to Harvard, where he led a steady life. He had become engaged to Miss Jessie Mallory, a beautiful young woman of Savannah, Georgia. During his second year at Harvard, Miss Mallory, without notice, married another young man and went to live at Mobile. When Mingsdorf learned his sweetheart's faithlessness, he suddenly left Cambridge and when next heard from was serving as a trooper.
His parents offered to buy his release if he would return home or to college and complete his education, but he declared he preferred a steady life in the far east and hoped that some stray Filipino bullet might end his unhappy existence.
A short time ago the young man re-enlisted and looked forward to leaving for the Philippines with pleasure. Ten days before the troop was to sail, an old friend of Mingsdorf from Atlanta arrived in Deadwood and recognized the student soldier. This man referred to Mingsdorf's shattered romance and the young soldier promptly turned upon his heel and left and has not been seen since and is now charged with desertion. His former messmates believe he has killed himself in some isolated spot in the Black Hills.

THREE KILLED BY STREETCARS

At Mission and Third streets, killed: Arthur Cullen, Western Union messenger, aged 15 years, badly crushed and leg mangled.
On the San Bruno road, killed: An unidentified man.

Negligence and mismanagement on the part of the United Railroads officials and carelessness upon the part of inexperienced carmen resulted tonight in a streetcar accident at Mission and Third streets. One man is dead, another is expected to die and two other men and two boys are seriously injured. All are crushed and torn in body and limb. An open switch and a green student motorman were responsible for the accident.

TAILOR'S STORY IS FROM WHOLE CLOTH

Jonason Says Patrolman Wanless Grafted Him But Recants Before Chief.

Humiliated over his arrest for riding a bicycle without a light, H. Jonason, a tailor of 187 Fourth street, sought to secure revenge by circulating a story that the arresting officer had endeavored to "graft" $5 from him and as a result spent a very uncomfortable 15 minutes in Chief Gritzmacher's office yesterday.
The story came to the attention of Captain Bruin several days ago and he decided to make an investigation. From Jonason's brother-in-law he secured a statement to the effect that Patrolman Wanless had taken the tailor up a dark street and tried to force him to pay the sum mentioned.
As the result of this statement, H. Jonason was notified by Chief Gritzmacher yesterday to come to headquarters. Upon being questioned by the head of the police department and Captain Bruin, Jonason was forced to admit that he had made the story out of whole cloth and Patrolman Wanless was vindicated.
Jonason was taken into custody two weeks ago by Patrolman Wanless for falling to have a light on his bicycle. When taken to the station he refused to put up $1 bail demanded, and it was only upon being confronted with the alternative of going to jail that he produced the money, which he forfeited the next morning.

RIVER FLEET REMARKABLE ONE

Governor Chamberlain Member of Interesting Procession Down Mississippi.

COUNTRY'S HISTORY RECORDS NO OTHER

Fleet of Steamers, Carrying President Roosevelt, Senators, Governors, Congressmen and Other Dignitaries.

Governor George E. Chamberlain, who left Portland Thursday evening for Keokuk, Iowa, will be one of a delegation of 25 governors of western states who will escort President Roosevelt down the Mississippi river to Memphis to attend the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterways convention October 5 and 6. Governor Chamberlain will participate in what will undoubtedly be the most remarkable steambot procession ever floated. It will consist of a dozen Mississippi steamboats, and will proceed from Keokuk to St. Louis, thence to Memphis, Tennessee.
Great preparations are being made to entertain the visitors at cities along the river. The convention at Memphis will, it is expected, number 2,000 men, all intensely interested in furthering construction of a navigable waterway from the Mississippi river to the Great Lakes and completing a deep channel from the Gulf of Mexico to Lake Superior.
The procession of steamboats will be formed at Keokuk by Major Montgomery Meigs, and will be headed by the government lightship steamer Lilly, carrying the president and his immediate staff, preceded by two police vessels to clear the channel. The boats following will contain members of the rivers and harbors committee, congressmen and senators, members of the official staff of the rivers and harbors congress, governors of 25 western states, and other notables and dignitaries of local importance.
The procession will steam from Keokuk to St. Louis, about 155 miles, and there the merchants of that city, with the steamer Spread Eagle, will greet the visitors. The St. Louis delegation will be headed by James E. Smith, president of the St. Louis Business Men's league. After refreshments and music, and a proper reception in the city, the entire aggregation will steam to Memphis to participate in the waterways convention.
The plan of this remarkable procession has been laid out with a view to emphasizing the importance of waterways improvements and to bring to the attention of the entire country the fact that canalization and deepening of rivers and harbors is preeminently the people's measure of relief from transportation abuses, the best method of facilitating freight, and the surest way of dispensing with car shortages, terminal congestions and railroad domination of the country's business and agricultural interests.

FULTON AND CAKE SPEAK

Government Ownership of Railroads Brings About Debate at Umatilla-Morrow Fair and Both Men Express Opinions.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Sept. 28.—A clash, short but sharp and well defined, between Senator Fulton and Judge H. M. Cake of Portland, was the feature of "political day" at the Umatilla-Morrow district fair this afternoon. Oregon's senior senator, after discussing briefly the necessity of intelligent and prompt action in opening the Columbia river as the sure way to secure relief to shippers of the northwest from unjust exactions from the railroad companies reiterated his belief in the doctrine that the great transportation companies of the United States will never be controlled in a satisfactory manner until a constitutional amendment gives congress absolute power of legislation upon the question.
Fulton maintained that the idea of allowing several states of the union to attempt to regulate railway lines that extend from one end of the country to the other is absurd and puerile.
Judge Cake only spoke five minutes, but not a fraction of one of them was wasted. Without mincing words he marched boldly to attack and declared that he was unalterably opposed to Senator Fulton's proposition to turn over the management of the transportation lines to the general government. He firmly contended that people locally, that is those of the states, should never surrender to the national government the power that they now possessed to regulate these and kindred affairs.
With much eloquence he demanded that the railroad companies should be brought under strict obedience to the laws of the states, and that all public officials be held to a strict account upon these and all other public questions. This last declaration caused many to think that he was giving Fulton a very dig because of his vote upon the La Follette amendments at the last session of congress.

KELLOGG AFTER E. H. HARRIMAN

Prosecutor Broaches Subject of Again Taking Up Magnate's Case.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—The president, the attorney-general and E. B. Kellogg, counsel for the government in the Standard Oil case, conferred today at the White House. None of the parties to the conference made a statement as to its purpose. It is understood, however, that Mr. Kellogg broached the subject again of taking up the case against E. H. Harriman.
Mr. Kellogg has been consistent and persistent on the trial of Mr. Harriman, but it has been postponed several times.

HANDLING IRISH HOME AFFAIRS

Present System Not as Perfect as Desired by the People.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Dublin, Sept. 28.—Ireland is going through an epidemic of freak strikes just now. A few days ago all the newsboys of Derry struck and refused to handle any of the papers. It is not clear what they wanted but while the strike lasted they had a royal time overturning wagons and making bonfires of the offending journals. The constabulary were quite helpless in dealing with the active and enterprising little fellows who seemed to swarm into the streets as soon as the policeman's back was turned. They tired of the strike in a few days and returned to work as suddenly as they left it. It is stated that parental persuasion of the good old-fashioned kind had a good deal to do with breaking the strike.
Another freak strike was that of the 24 grave diggers employed at Glasnevin cemetery, where Mr. Parnell is buried. The grave diggers were receiving $4.25 a week and they wanted more. They also objected to a rule forbidding them to accept tips from mourners and several funerals were delayed. Non-union grave diggers were brought in but the strikers tumbled several of them into open graves and placed boards weighted with stones over the graves. The strikers' intention in a damp, dark and uncomforable grave was generally sufficient to convince the non-unionist of the justice of the strikers' cause.
Another freak strike was that of the paupers near Glenties, in County Donegal. The inmates of the workhouse were employed in breaking stones for "road material" and groups of them may be seen sitting by the roadside on heaps of stones. Money was given them a little while ago, but they were not allowed to walk too far from the workhouse to their work, and the police and the workhouse master supply them with a car. They also declared that the stone recently introduced was harder than that to which they were accustomed, but they were willing to waive that complaint if they were supplied with an extra allowance of tobacco. They got the tobacco but they still have to walk to their work.

Ireland's Troubles

Nothing, perhaps, indicates the true condition of the people of Ireland better than the alarming statistics which have just been published by the various committees of management of lunatic asylums. An analysis of the figures compiled in these reports shows that roughly one person in every 170 in Ireland is a certified lunatic, while similar reports just issued with regard to the United Kingdom show that the proportion is only 1 in every 232 persons in those countries. It must be borne in mind, too, in considering these figures that while in England and Wales practically every person who is insane is confined in an institution of some kind, in Ireland the peasant clings to his feeble-minded relatives and often conceals them in his cottage to prevent their removal to an asylum. It is likely, therefore, that the true proportion of lunacy in Ireland is even greater than the figures indicate.
The chief cause assigned for lunacy in the reports are worry, poverty and old age. The young and strong are emigrating in thousands, leaving the old and feeble behind. The battle of life at home. Many of these naturally susceptible to the hard conditions of life and many others, less fortunate, survive as mental wrecks. It must be remembered, too, that a large number of persons who break down under the stress of life in America and the colonies are sent home by their relatives and go to swell the statistics of Irish insanity.

Recruiting Constabulary

The work of recruiting for the royal Irish constabulary is being pushed on with feverish haste and is taken as an indication that the authorities are planning a campaign of stern repression of all national agitation during the winter. More than 500 men have been enrolled during the last month and there is no sign of any slackening up in the activity of the recruiting officers. The country is being scoured for suitable men, who are being urged to join and the officers are promising them that there will soon be legislation to increase the pay and privileges of the royal Irish constabulary. The Phoenix Park constabulary depot is so congested that the authorities have had to take over one of the military barracks to accommodate the new recruits. In the meantime the cost of the constabulary establishments is steadily growing. The total cost in 1906 was $6,497,065 and in 1906 it had risen to $6,556,190. It is expected that it will come very close to the $7,000,000 mark this year.
 Belfast is now busy reconstructing the sort of the late disturbance there. What the loss to business has been no one will ever be able to tell, and it is expected that the effects in this direction will

BILL SQUIRES GOING BACK TO AUSTRALIA

British Prize Fighter Will Sail for His Island Home This Week.

(Pacific Coast Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Sept. 28.—"Joshie" Bill Squires is going back to Australia. He made this fact known tonight when he put in an appearance in the city following his fight with Jack (Twin) Sullivan before the Colma Athletic club this afternoon.
Squires lasted 19 rounds, but was outclassed from the start, although he had 20 pounds advantage in weight over Sullivan, the latter landed at will and at no stage did the Australian display any pugilistic ability other than a desire to rough and to punch in clinches. He clinched freely, but was in distress before the tenth round was reached. The Australian sails for home next week.
Josephus Daniels, Democratic national committeeman from North Carolina, is strong in his preference for Bryan as the standard bearer for the Democracy in 1908.
