

ACCQUETED WITH RED BOARDS COUNCIL MORE OF BALL PLAYERS FOR ADOLPHSON TRIAL

Man Believed to Be One of Harvey Brown's Assassins Visited Portland Last Week and Police Are Endeavoring to Locate Him.

It is believed by the Portland police that at least one of the dynamiters concerned in the assassination of ex-Sheriff Harvey Brown at Baker City was in Portland last week and spent Thursday night at the rooming house of Mrs. Ida C. Marks on the northeast corner of Seventh and Everett streets.

Two women became alarmed and hastily replaced the article in the basket. The woman supposed to be concerned in the Brown assassination, however, was rather above average height and weight, well dressed in a gray checked suit of clothes, wore a black soft felt hat, and spoke English with an accent.

MAN SO LARGE AUTOMOBILE COULD NOT PASS HIM ON BRIDGE

John B. Yeon, whose big automobile ran down James J. Rilly near the west approach to the Steel bridge on June 16 last, asserts that the fact that Rilly weighed 300 pounds made it impossible to avert an accident, as there was not enough room on the upper deck of the bridge for his big machine and a man of such large dimensions to pass each other.

His 300 pounds of avoirdupois were tossed 16 feet and 3 inches by the impact when he was struck. He declares that two ribs were broken and his right leg crushed. He says that Yeon operated his machine with reckless speed, and that the latter was scorching at the rate of 50 miles an hour when the city ordinance says that 10 miles is the limit.

RUSH ORDER CAUSES ILLNESS FOR AGED MESSENGER "BOY"

He was old and gray but it was necessary that he should work. When the strike among the messenger boys came off it was the old man's opportunity. He had outgrown the usefulness to do anything else. But he could still do the work of a messenger boy, so he thought. So he applied for a job and was hired.

Yesterday the aged messenger was given an envelope marked "rush," in big black letters. With feeble steps he hurried on his way. He arrived at the building, tall and thin, and he was out of breath. The elevator was out of order. "Room 708" was marked on the envelope. So the old man started to climb.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 9.—Fay Magill is directing the selection of the jury that will try her and her husband, Fred Magill, on the charge of inducing the latter's first wife to commit suicide. Attorneys for the defense closely questioned Thomas Miller, a new talesman, and indicated they would accept him. Fay turned to her husband and whispered something and a moment later the attorneys dismissed the negro but the old man managed to carry out his part of the agreement.

On the seventh floor the "boy" was found in a heap. He was unconscious. Liebknecht was the clang of the ambulance gong. The "boy" carried the almost lifeless body to the waiting vehicle. A message to 708 had been delivered on time.

State Land Board Rejects Set of Laws Drawn by State Engineer Lewis for Government of Irrigation Projects.

It seems to me that there was a great deal of effort on the part of the council in passing resolution advising that this case be allowed to rest pending an appeal before the supreme court of the habeas corpus case against Zimmerman. The common council should attend to its own business and let this court proceed with its own affairs.

As a result of a hearing given by the state land board to representatives of the Deschutes Irrigation & Power company yesterday at Salem, the board suspended a set of special rules that had been drawn by State Engineer Lewis and adopted at a meeting of the board just prior to Governor Chamberlain's departure for Memphis.

Judge Gantenben said that if he could be certain that the supreme court would hand down its decision within seven months he would delay the trial of the pending case, involving as it does the same issues. At the same time he said he was certain that the higher court will not be able to act within that length of time.

The Deschutes Irrigation & Power company is now the only irrigation project in Oregon. It has been organized and its future success can be impeded or encouraged according to the policy adopted by the state authorities toward irrigation.
