

TEN BASHFUL ONES SING SCORES UNKNOWN "I WOULD BE SENATOR" LETTER WRITERS

Vacant Seats at Salem Smile Enticingly at Numerous Aspirants Who Feel in Duty Bound to Represent the People—Machine Said to Have Turned Up Toes.

State senatorial aspirants are springing up these days like the fabled monsters from the dragon's teeth. On every hand new names are being brought out and booms and boomlets are being inflated to soar in the political breeze. Already there are more than enough candidates for nomination at the hands of the Republican party to fill all the vacant places and then leave some over for good measure.

Up to the present time E. B. Colwell, Dr. Emmett Drake, John Gill, Dr. E. G. Clark, H. B. Bookman, Chris Bell, John B. Coffey, John Driscoll, F. E. Beach and H. Russell Albee have come out of the cocoon of desire and bloomed into the brilliant chrysalis of expectation. All of them want to wear the toga in the senatorial hall at Salem when the next legislature convenes and all of them are planning to go out after that garment with might and main.

Some of these gentlemen are well known in political circles in Multnomah county and some hope to be. E. B. Colwell manufactured statures up at Salem during the session of 1905. Dr. Drake is known as a local politician. John Gill is president of the Union Republican club which hopes to bind the state together into one solid political family strong enough to dictate the political destiny of the commonwealth. Dr. Clark is better known in professional than in political life and Mr. Bookman has foregathered more with the critics of the law than with its manufacturers. Chris Bell is also an attorney. John B. Coffey was one of the big chieftains at the last session and cracked the whip in the lower house as a reward for having engineered Frank Davey into the speaker's chair. John Driscoll was the faithful friend and follower of Mr. Coffey, playing a sort of political David to Coffey's Jonathan. F. E. Beach is well known in the business life of the city and so is Mr. Albee. In the last session of the legislature Multnomah county had five senators. It also had a senator jointly with Columbia and Washington counties and another jointly with Clackamas. In the next session the county will be entitled to six senators. It will also have one jointly with Columbia and Clackamas.

The list of those who represented the county either wholly or in part at the last session were C. W. Hodson, joint with Columbia and Washington, A. A. Bailey, joint with Clackamas, and Dan J. Malarkey, F. P. Mays, Sigmund Siegel, C. W. Nottingham and S. C. Beach from Multnomah alone. Out of this number Hodson, Malarkey, Mays, Siegel and Nottingham retire through the expiration of their terms of office.

A. A. Bailey, as the joint senator from Clackamas and Multnomah, retains his office for another term, having been elected in 1906. S. C. Beach is the only one of the straight delegation who holds over. It becomes necessary, therefore, to elect five senators from Multnomah county in June next to fill the vacant places formed by the expirations of office and to provide for the one new senatorship established by the redistricting of the state at the last session of the legislature.

As yet no definite plan of campaign has been formed for the selection of these senators, though it is apparent that the political leaders are sharpening their pencils to fix up a slate. The machine is dead, so it is said, but nevertheless the machinists are looking over the available material with a view of "inducing" desirable candidates to enter the race. And the candidates are coming, like the Campbells of the old time-song.

Dr. Brougher Scorches Cowards Who Send About Anonymous Warnings.

SPEAKS OF ONE HE RECEIVED

Pastor Gets Skull and Cross Bones Document But Writer Forgets to Sign Name—Minister Flays Sender of the Letter.

At the White Temple last night Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher told of an anonymous letter which he had received telling him that if he did not stop preaching the kind of sermons that he delivered October 6, he would be given "the same medicine that Harvey Brown received." The gruesome epistle was made more urgent by decorations of the double cross and two skulls.

In the sermon referred to Dr. Brougher urged speedy punishment for the assassins of Brown and to all blackmailers and slanderers. In his remarks last night Dr. Brougher said: "Whenever our enemies write an anonymous letter they attempt by threats to frighten us away from doing our duty. These sneaking cowards who write anonymous letters probably haven't brains enough to comprehend that no threat that they could possibly make in an anonymous letter would swerve a brave man a half's breadth from the path of duty. No man of any character would permit such an anonymous sneed to annoy him for one moment. Supposing a man in a fit of anger goes mad and foams at the mouth and calls you all the vile names known to the human tongue; that doesn't hurt you if they are not so—He doesn't hurt anybody but himself. If you keep your temper and keep sweet, he has absolutely failed to do anything but reveal his own diabolical nature and corrupt heart. There are not many people in this world who understand what it means to die for principle. Of course it is a greater thing to live and suffer for principle than it is to die just once for principle. If there ever was a time when Christians needed their backbone strengthened, their faith inspired and their courage increased, this is the day. All the threats and attacks, anonymous or otherwise, that the devil and his forces may make upon you should never turn you from the path of duty one moment."

EASY TO TEAR DOWN. But Destroyer of Faith Should Point Out Some Alternative.

Rev. Benjamin Young, the new pastor of the Taylor Street Methodist church, denounced the methods of the critic of religion in a sermon on "The Difficulties of 'Diabolical' Visions" yesterday morning. He declared that the infidel has an easy task in his effort to destroy, because it is easy to tear down, but that he fails to offer a solution of the great problem of existence.

Mr. Young used many illustrations in the experience of men in explaining his point. "Do you believe that the table had a maker, but the sun had none?" he asked. "Do you believe that the wax flower on your stand was made, but that the rose in the garden just came by chance?"

The speaker demanded that the destroyer of faith point out some alternative. Instead of blindly seeking to blot out the solution that is offered him through God, he urged the seeker of faith comes, the doubter should ask whether something better or more reasonable is before him. The alternative idea of nothingness fails to help to an understanding of the deeper things of life. On the other hand, the work of tearing down does not require wisdom. Many a wise man has been puzzled by the interrogations of a fool.

In his sermon last night Mr. Young talked effectively of "dreamers" from the familiar text of the saying of the sons of Jacob when their brother Joseph approached them.

RELIGION GOOD SECURITY. Influence of Church Same Standard as Government Bond.

"Church as a Gift-Edged Investment" was the subject used by Rev. James D. Corby at the Universalist Church of Good Things on East Eighth street yesterday morning. Mr. Corby took as his theme the business mania of the age and drew from it lessons on his text, which was Luke xii:48. He said in part:

"What the government bond is to the investing world, the standard and assurance of reliable income, that and far more the Christian church is to those who would invest their influence and extending its influence for centuries and after all these years, it is safe to say, is here to stay. The church is a cooperative concern; the rich and the poor meet together and recognize the good God as the father of all. The church is the school of morals. Jesus took 12 men and taught them the law of social sympathy and service. He said, men are in darkness, you can enlighten them; they are oppressed, you can relieve them as they carry their burdens; they are wandering from the path, you can lead them to the paths of peace. It was a new and profitable investment for all these men."

NEW PASTOR SPEAKS. Rev. J. W. McDougall Given Warm Welcome at Mount Tabor.

The auditorium of the Mount Tabor Methodist Episcopal church was filled both yesterday morning and evening to hear the first two sermons of Rev. J. W. McDougall, the newly appointed minister to that church. Dr. McDougall arrived in Portland on Thursday last from his farm home at Albany.

Dr. McDougall closed for his text Luke xiii:46. "And Jesus said: 'Somebody hath touched me, for I perceive that virtue has gone out of me.'" The speaker discussed the demands and difficulties in the pathway of everyone, and said these must be met with fairness and confidence. He held that business, honesty, social purity and home cleanliness were the three great requirements of the citizen.

At the conclusion of the sermon forward to meet their new pastor. He is considered one of the leading Methodist ministers of the state and the Mount Tabor congregation is elated at his having been sent to that church.

NAVY IS CALLING FOR RECRUITS

Government Party Will Open New Office in Portland This Month.

In order to secure recruits for the United States navy, Ensign John Rodgers, Midshipman N. H. White and Dr. Henry A. Dunn will open a recruiting office in the postoffice building Thursday, remaining in Portland until October 25.

The party is traveling through Oregon and Washington recruiting men for the navy and have already visited Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia and Chehalis, where they have secured many men anxious to serve their country and take advantage of the opportunity to travel and see the world.

The work of the naval officers is divided into three parts. First comes Turret Captain Boyd, a petty officer, who has charge of the advertising end of the work. He travels two days ahead of the main party and attends to the publicity department.

Boyd is followed by Midshipman White and A. Green, who form the information bureau of the party. Any person curious regarding the navy, or who has a desire to join its ranks, can find out all the data and information concerning this branch of the country's fighting department from them. They are followed by Ensign Rodgers and Dr. Dunn, who attend the recruits.

Several hundred men are needed for the immediate present and strong efforts will be made to secure a large number in the Rose City. With the new rules of the navy department, enlisted men secure many advantages and considerations not hitherto accorded them. They retire at the end of 30 years service with the rank of chief petty officer, providing their conduct has been good, and a standing pay of $50 a month.
