CUNNINGHAM IS CAUGHT IN TRAP

Man Accused of Forgery Breaks Down When Discovers His Wife Is Ill.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—While detectives are closing their net about W. Livingston Cunningham, alias George O'Neil, alias George Lewis, charged with embezzlement, the prisoner's wife, formerly Alma Norman, a singer known on two continents, lies seriously ill in her apartment. Cunningham denied yesterday having been married to the singer but when told that the woman was seriously ill he broke down. Detectives claim that more than a dozen witnesses have positively identified Cunningham as the man who forged the name of Contractor T. A. Ashbridge to a bill of sale for a team of mules and a pair of horses. Cunningham when he was arrested at the Alexandria hotel where he was known as George Lewis a mining man, denied that he had ever assumed the alias of O'Neil. Later he admitted he had been known as O'Neil. Mrs. Cunningham told detectives yesterday that her husband was the son of a wealthy English family of New York and was the sole heir to an estate valued at a million dollars. The pretty singer, who was at one time connected with the Marine band at Washington, D. C., told the police that she married Cunningham at his father's home in New York two years ago. At that time Cunningham was a pitcher for the Cincinnati ball team. For a number of months they traveled through the country, she says, going to Washington from New York and then to Seattle. Cunningham said today: "It is all a mistake. I am not a married man. I am an engineer from Rhyolite, Nevada, and have lived at the Alexandria hotel for two months. The police have made a mistake in my identity. That is all there is to the trouble." Recess in Ford Trial. (United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Nov. 1.—On account of legal holiday, the Ford trial again went over today. Those who change from other shoes to Hanan's never change back. A Hanan customer is a persistent customer. Rosenthal's Seventh and Washington sts.

BISHOP SCADDING SCANDALIZES QUAKER CITY WITH INDIAN POSTERS

Staid and sleepy Philadelphia is rubbing its eyes and pinching itself because of the sensation given it by Bishop Scadding of Oregon who has been attending the convention of the Episcopal church at Richmond, Virginia, and on his way back to Portland has stopped off in the City of Brotherly love to show them how the church does things in the west. Flaring posters are not encouraged in Philadelphia. So when the town woke up the other morning to see itself plastered from one end to another with vividly colored and startlingly like people of Philadelphia in what state some of the natives of Oregon were and how necessary it was for the people of the east to help the missionary branch of the church he had numerous large and frightful posters made in colors, depicting a few native Oregonians in their barbaric simplicity. At first look the posters had the effect of a brave tearing down the street to scalp the first victim that came to hand. Closer inspection, however, revealed the fact that the Indian was merely asking those on the street to come and hear Bishop Scadding talk about him and his needs. It is said that the western advertising paid well and that when the bishop returns to Portland he will have in his wallet a very goodly balance to be devoted to the work of untamawaking the Oregon Indians. One difference between a Hanan shoe and others is that the Hanan's fit better all over than others do in spots. Sold at Rosenthal's, Seventh and Washington.

JOHN W. WILLIAMS BURIED AT EUGENE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., Nov. 1.—John W. Williams, an Oregon pioneer, who died at Portland, October 29, was buried in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Eugene yesterday. He was born in New York in 1821, and came across the plains in 1843, settling at Corvallis. Later he moved to Eugene, where he spent many years. He married Miss Lenora Dutton. He was the founder of the lodge of the Odd Fellows at Corvallis, and was prominent in the order. He was also a grand warder and was very prominent in the order. He was also a daughter, Mrs. F. O. Taylor at Eugene.
