

AMERICAN WOMAN BUYS WARWICK'S LONDON HOME

Warwick House, Which Has Been Purchased by Miss M. H. Dodge.

(By a Staff Correspondent.) London, Nov. 16.—Warwick house, the latest of the homes of the English peerage to fall into the hands of an American, is now being completely renovated and the interior altered to suit the tastes of its owner, Miss M. H. Dodge. She does not intend to move in much before Christmas.

Miss Dodge is one of the wealthiest members of the permanent American colony in London. She is an elderly lady and more or less of an invalid, although not so much so as to keep her indoors all the time. She belongs to the Osborne family of New York. At present she occupies an even larger house than the one she has just purchased. Her home at 25 St. James' Place is a great grey pile about which there is seldom any sign of life. Regularly at 4 o'clock every day a big automobile drive up to the house, the front door is opened by an obsequious butler and Miss Dodge issues forth and is driven rapidly toward Hyde Park. After a prolonged spin about that resort of fashion Miss Dodge returns and re-enters her silent abode.

It has always been a mystery to those not in her confidence just why Miss Dodge should require so large a house. She does very little entertaining, receives few friends, her time being mostly taken up by consultations with her solicitors, her drives in the park and long terms of confinement to her bed. In her house of Warwick House, Miss Dodge ignored the agents and went direct to Lady Warwick. That titled lady's deal with Miss Dodge was the last thing she did before sailing for the United States. The house, although a comparatively small one, has an excellent situation overlooking St. James' Park and abutting on the finest private dwelling in London—Stafford House, the town residence of the Duke and Duchess of Buckingham. Warwick House was the residence of the late Dowager Countess of Warwick during her widowhood. Even she, however, was not a constant occupant for she set it frequently at one time to the Duke of Marlborough and more recently to Colonel Smith-Cuninghame of Caprington. With Lord and Lady Warwick it was never a popular residence. At times it has proved too small for their use, as in 1903 when their only daughter, Lady Marjorie Greville, now Viscountess Helmsham, made her debut in society. Then they occupied the Brook House, a Tweedmouth's big Park Lane mansion. Later Warwick House was rented to the late Marquis of Anglesey and that erratic member of the English peerage made it the scene of many unique entertainments. Of late Warwick House has been leased Lord and Lady Warwick, passing their time at Warwick Castle and Easton Lodge, near Dunmow, in Essex.

This evening in the First Congregational church a notable celebration is to be held in honor of the completion of the first 40 years of the university's existence. The anniversary address will be delivered by Rev. Cornelius Patton of Boston, secretary of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions.

Howard university is the highest institution for the education of the colored race in the world. It takes its name from General O. O. Howard, who was one of the founders, being at the time superintendent of the Freedmen's bureau at Washington. The institution began its career the 15th of November, 1867. Since that date its progress and growth have been continuous and healthful.

During the last college year 41 states and foreign countries were represented. There were 67 students from the British West Indies, seven from British Guiana, four from Africa, four from the Republic of Panama and one each from Santo Domingo, Haiti and South America.

HEYBURN WANTS LAND COURTS

Idaho Senator Has Scheme to Take Power Away From the Administration.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Senator W. B. Heyburn of Idaho purposes to reintroduce his former bill in the Sixtieth congress this December to establish what shall be called "District Land Courts of the United States." His object is to give this special land court the adjudication of all cases involving questions of title to public lands which have been taken under the several laws affecting settlers on the public domain. The court is to be established only in states in which remain unappropriated 2,500,000 acres. In his bill he provides that, in all states in which the unappropriated lands do not equal 2,500,000 acres, the district land court nearest to such lands shall have jurisdiction.

Reduce Expense. Senator Heyburn insists that the method he suggests would reduce the expense of disposing of public land the fact.

The higher court to which appeal should rest, according to Senator Heyburn, would be the appellate land court and his bill makes provision for its establishment. Its sittings to be held in Washington city in April and September each year. The appeals which he would permit would be:

"In any case in which the jurisdiction of the district land court is in issue.

"In any case that involves the construction or application of the constitution or laws of the United States, or in which any act of the executive administrative department of the government is claimed to be in contravention of any law of the United States or of any state or of the rights of any person under the laws of the United States or of any state.

The bill also provides for an appeal from the appellate land court to the federal supreme court in any case wherein the amount or value of the land involved exceeds $5,000 exclusive of the costs and interest.

The full import of this measure is to be found in Section 12, in which it is provided: "That all laws and rules and regulations made pursuant to existing laws providing for an appeal from or review of the decisions of the several land offices by the commissioner of the general land office or by the secretary of the interior of the United States in cases by this act provided to be heard and determined by the land courts be and the same hereby are repealed."

The bill provides for the immediate transfer to the land courts on the date of the enactment of the measure into law of all pending cases.

The real meaning of the Heyburn bill is evident—to divest the executive branch of the federal government of certain powers possessed by it and to give them to the judicial branch, and the advocates of the bill by Senator Heyburn and such other senators as may support it will be largely an echo of the protest voiced at the last session of the congress against executive usurpation.

NEGRO CHAMPIONS PRESIDENT'S IDEA

Brownsville Dismissals Not Result of Race Prejudice, Says Writer.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Washington, Nov. 15.—Because use is being made by opponents of the administration of the Brownsville affair to influence the negro voters against the president and Secretary Taft, A. H. Hill, a prominent negro educator, president of Shorter college, Arkansas, and editor of the Voice, a publication run in the interest of the negro race, has started an inquiry respecting whether or not there is reason why the negroes of the country should resent the action of the president in dismissing three companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry.

Among those to whom he has written on the subject is Ralph W. Tyler, auditor for the navy department in the treasury of the United States.

Tyler's reply is about the clearest statement of the matter from the standpoint of an intelligent negro that has yet been presented. His letter to President Hill is, in part, as follows:

"Dear Sir—I have your esteemed favor of recent date, requesting matter pertaining to the president's side of the Brownsville affair.

"If he has ever differentiated as between white and black, it has been in favor of the blacks. Every utterance of his since becoming the president and before, while yet but a private citizen, has been replete with hope and encouragement for our race.

"What president has ever accorded the race a representation in office even nearly approaching that accorded the race by the present chief executive?"

"What president has ever expressed

If You are Deaf, see the Inventor of the Way Ear Drum

Geo. P. Way, inventor of the Way Ear Drum, is making his second annual visit to this city, and is stopping at the Oregon Hotel. He will be pleased to meet all who are afflicted with defective hearing or deafness. He asks no fee for consultation and advice, and in all cases tells you plainly just what he can do for you. Mr. Way, whose home office is 1372 Majestic Bldg., Detroit, Mich., is visiting the principal cities of the country in order to meet personally those who are deaf, and will stay in Portland until Saturday night next. Mr. Way, who is an electrical engineer by profession, was himself deaf for 25 years and it was to relieve his own trouble that he devoted his genius and skill to solving the problem of an artificial aid to hearing. His theory that the human ear is only a delicate piece of mechanism has been proven true, and it is interesting to see Mr. Way remove from his ears the little devices he invented, and without which he is as badly off as those who are daily consulting him for defective hearing. All who are deaf should visit Mr. Way while he is in the city, as his success with the Way Ear Drums in relieving deafness is unquestionable.

Take the Elevator and the attendant will show you to Mr. Way's parlors.
