The report comes from Buffalo, New York, that Charles B. Avery, a former resident of Portland, who was stricken last March with creeping paralysis, is dead at his father's home. Young Avery was a coffee salesman in this city. He contracted a severe cold, from which paralysis resulted. His father came on from Buffalo and hurried back with his son, that his mother might see him before death came, as the doctors feared the young man could not live to reach his New York home. After his arrival in Buffalo he rallied and it was thought that he might eventually recover. Mr. Avery was very popular in Portland and had a large circle of friends who will regret to hear of his death.

Live Electric Signs.

Not daunted by any impending financial stringency two progressive Portland young men, well experienced in the making and sale of electric signs, have resigned from their former positions and organized the Portland Electric Sign works. M. D. Bromberger and C. A. Stenman, realizing that they could build a better electric sign for less money than the larger concerns, and feeling that there is daily growing a larger demand for electric signs, are now in business for themselves at 44 Second street, near Ash. The incorporators of the company are C. A. Stenman, M. D. Bromberger and L. Ainsworth Smith.

BEWITCHING MISS OF EIGHT NOT LESS DIGNIFIED THAN ONE OF 28

She was a lady. Her carriage showed it and her street demeanor proved it. From the tip of the wind-tossed feather in her dainty hat to the patent leather point of her thin shoe, breeding and cultured refinement made itself manifest.

As she walked down the street the gracefulness of her poise and the fetching dignity of her bearing told that throughout the eight years of her abiding in this globe-trotting world her twinkling feet had trod the rosined path of plenty and of pleasure.

Out from his frame of furs her face peeped, watching and dainty, but with a cold patrician reserve. While she picked her way daintily about the rain-filled puddles and observed her way among the crowds on the sidewalks, she held her little wine-colored umbrella aloft as easily with one hand as she gathered her skirts about her with grown-up feminine dexterity with the other.

She came up Morrison street, buffeted by the gale and men, snuggled into their coat collars to escape the wind and rain, smiling after her as she tripped along.

At Fifth and Boreas, roaring unimpeded down the hill, grasped the little lady, whirling her about, tugging at her umbrella and filling out her little skirt until it fluttered about her like a wounded partridge.

A white-haired passer-by noted her evident distress and turned back to assist her. As he turned the little lady's umbrella came down and her head went up with a cold and haughty stare. Her blue eyes blazed with anger as she gathered her skirts about her.

"Wubber you bewite," she hissed at him, indignantly, as she marched away.

FREE "WANT ADS" FOR THE ASKING

Journal Offers Help Without Pay to Those Seeking Situations.

Get a job for the asking.

This is what The Journal will endeavor to do for every man or woman who is out of work.

The Journal holds the key to the situation—a situation for you. All you have to do is to ask.

Good men are scarce; always in demand. Employers are continually on the lookout for men they can trust and who they know are willing to work.

Owing to the unusual conditions now existing, not only here but everywhere, The Journal management has decided to run "Situation" ads three times without any pay or remuneration whatever. If you do not get employment by the first three insertions the advertisement will be run again for three issues, upon notice from you.

The Journal is offering this free advertising to men and women who want work simply because it wants to help the people—the people are The Journal's friends and the paper wants to prove its friendship for an appreciative public.
