TODAY'S MARKETS

Portland Wheat Market Is Still Best on the Pacific Coast-Values Are at 84c for Club and 86c for Bluestem.

Values Along Front Street o northwest. The potatoes were the Lowest in Years-Unfavorable Weather.

Produce market features: Turkeys lowest in years. Chicken market is slower. Cucumbers from Los Angeles. Cucumbers from 1.08 Angles.
Medium grade apples selling.
Car sweet potatoes arrived.
Huckleberries in larger supply.
Good grape supplies.
Many sales of hops.
Wheat trade quite fair.
No export flour trade.

Turkeys Lowest in Years. The lowest prices in years have been reached by the local turkey market. This condition is due to two causes—the financial situation and the enormous supplies that have been shipped to this market. Along the street today sales were made at tricks ranging from to this market. Along the street today sales were made at prices ranging from 16 to 18c for best quality of dressed birds while live ones were sold down to 14@15c a pound. Had it not been for the very heavy shipments made to the outside at these low prices values would have been still lower. Even at the low figures ruling the trade is not disposed to hurry its purchases. Weather conditions are against a better price for the reason that turkeys will not keep as well as during the recent years. keep as well as during the recent years when it was colder.

The chicken market has been affected by the accumulations of turkeys and seales are smaller. While no change is noted in chicken values today the market is weaker and will likely beligher.

Eggs are firm for local ranch with nominal arrivals. Eastern quoted fair and unchanged.

Muckleberries in Larger Supply.

Euckleberries in Larger Supply.

Larger supplies of huckleberries are shown in the local market. Most of the stocks come from Puget Sound. Quality is mixed, some being very good and others poor. The price rules between 7 and 9c a pound.

Another car of sweet potatoes arrived from the south this morning. Market firm at 2½c.

Ordinary potatoes are just holding their own with no buying for the south. Some consignments are being sent to San Francisco by local representatives of California firms. Onion trads is light but fairly steady here. No outside business reported. side business reported.

Hothouse cucumbers are arriving in larger supply from Los Angeles. Prices range close to $2 abox.

Green peas are also coming from California. Packed in hampers and sell at 12c a pound.

at 12c a pound. For the Thanksgiving trade there are quite fair supplies of grapes in market today, but trade in this line is good. Prices from $1.50 to $1.75 a crate.

Many Sales of Hops.

ers-Portland Market Is Still Best.

There is quite a fair volume of buying in the local wheat market. During the past few days millers have been good purchasers for their own account, and values have been well maintained here walues have been well maintained here. While some concession in price is asked by small millers on the sound, local people are paying the full market.

The Portland Flouring Mills company has been a good purchaser of wheat of late. "We purchased some 75,000 bushels of club and I uestem the last few days around 84 and 86c a bushel. That does not look like we have quit buying," says Theodore B. Wilcox, president of the Portland Flouring Mills company, and the largest operator on company, and the largest operator on the west coast.

With the constant declining values elsewhere it is cuite likely that local values will soon be lowered, because this market has been paying much too large a premium over other centers this year.

Operations in wheat will likely be curtailed in the near future, because of the general lack of oriental flour business, and the entire disappearance of export wheat trade anywhere on the Pacific coast since the financial situation became so muddled. Millstuffs are firmer as a result of the smaller milling opera-tions, demand being better than supplies at current values.

Mr. McGarry said, in part: "The event which we commemorate tonight is one of those tragic events in history which influences the human race either for good or evil. As an incident it is not different from thousands of others which have darkened the political relations of England and freiand during centuries of unrelenting persecution.

"It was only 40 years ago yesterday that Allen, Larkin, Condon and O'Brien were executed on the scaffold of an English prison. They were members of the Fenlan society, who had quietly and in the exercise of their lawful rights entered the city of Manchester upon purposes absolutely innocent of any criminal liability. While thus engaged two of their leaders, Kelly and Deasy were arrested without complaint, hurled into prison and there detained in flagrant violation of every recognized principle of criminal law. They were denied the privilege of bail and starved in a gloomy dungeon under the pretext that some unknown or time had in the standard in a gloomy dungeon under the pretext that some unknown or time had in a gloomy dungeon under the pre-text that some unknown crime had been committed some time, somewhere, and that if they would not confess and end their days in prison, the bail denied them in England, the good Lord would grant it to them in Kingdom Come."

> BARK WAVERTREE LOSES ONE OF CREW

> Windiammers Arrive Under Charter to Carry Wheat to Europe-The French Bark Brings Large Cement

Deaths of three sailors at sea and one at Astoria were reported here this morning, when the British barks Wavertree and Duchalburn arrived in the harbor. Three of the tars belonged to the Duchalburn and one to the Wavertree.

The Duchalburn came here from Santa off the bar, but it was light compared with the storms with which she battled on the way out from Europe to Santa Rosalia. On that voyage Edward Mellberg was swept overboard and August Willberg died from consumption. William Joseph contracted the disease on the way and expired shortly after the ship had dropped anchor in the bay off

James Baker was the name of the sailor who died on the Wavertree. He met death by falling into the hold when a few days out from Tocopilla, whence the bark came here in 54 days. Baker lived three days after the accident. He hailed from Hailfax.

The Wavertree was hauled to the Eastern & Western Lumber company's wharf this morning, where she will be lined before beginning to load wheat for Europe. The Duchalburn dropped anchor in the stream, as did also the French bark Thiers, which arrived up with 17,500 barrels of cement from Newcastle, England. The Thiers and Duchalcastle, England. The Thiers and Duchal-burn will load wheat for Europe.
