The constantly increasing interest in the new books added to the Portland public library has suggested a new plan of bringing them to public attention. Hereafter the books corresponding to the list published in the Sunday Daper will be found in a case specially set aside for them at the end of the blography stack near the door, where they will be on exhibition and open to examination for one week. The following Monday these books will go into circulation and a new group will take their place. This change, it is hoped, will be grateful to the patrons of the library, for it will enable all who use the library to have an equal opportunity to look over the new books. Reserve postals may be procured at the desk and left for the books. These will be filed in the order in which they are received, and the reader notified of his turn. Teachers will please note that books of Christmas recitations and poems may be found sheived on a case at the right of the desk. the new books added to the Portland

Sigh, tender hearts of the nation! Cry, for the pall of the night Has taken its desolate station Where homes have been happy and bright.

Wails have supplanted the laughing— Angulsh instead of the smile— Grief every spirit is quaffing Groans every sunbeam defile.

Have you an eye that can pity?
Have you a hand that can save?
Speak! Is there joy in "That City?"
Say, are there tears in the grave?

Accordingly last night at an open meeting of the Federated Trades alliance steps were taken toward the permanent organization of a local branch of the Aslatic Exclusion league.
C. M. Haybl, a member of the executive committee of the Japanese and Korean Exclusion league of California, outlined the object of the meeting and the 200 people in attendance ratified the appointment of an executive committee the 200 people in attendance ratified the appointment of an executive committee to plan the further organization of the league and make arrangements for a mass meeting at an early date when the project will be officially launched. The meeting was held in Drew hall and was presided over by S. H. Delammeter, president of the Federated Trades council. Mr. Haybl and others made strong addresses setting out the necessity for some exclusive legislation by congress to protect the Pacific coast from the encroachment of coolie labor. At the conclusion of the addresses the chair appointed an executive chair appointed an executive committee composed of Ed Thayer,
