GENTENNIAL OF QUAKER POST

Month's Preparation in New England for Celebration in Memory of Whittier.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Boston, Mass., Dec. 13.—The celebration of the centennial of the birth of the poet, John G. Whittier, for which a large section of New England has been preparing for months past, was ushered in today with anniversary exercises in the public schools. Scores of celebrations are on the calendar for the next three days, but none will be of greater interest than that in the poet's native town of Amesbury. The meeting will be held in the town hall Monday when a varied program of addresses, recitations from Whittier's poems and readings will be carried out under the direction of the citizens' committee. Governor Guild will deliver the oration of the day. It is expected that addresses will be made also by Clarence Steadman of New York, former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, former Governor John L. Bates and Booker T. Washington.

John Greenleaf Whittier, the "Quaker poet," in honor of whose memory these celebrations are to be held, was born December 17, 1807, in East Haverhill, close by the present town of Amesbury. The house in which he was born, and which he described in "Snow Bound," had been built almost 120 years before his birth by a paternal ancestor named Thomas Whittier, who had come from England and settled in Massachusetts in 1638.

Little Education. Three or four winters at a district school and six months at the Haverhill academy was about all the schooling young Whittier received. When 21 years of age he obtained editorial employment on a paper called the American Manufacturer, published in Boston.

But he had worked there but a short time when he was obliged to return home on account of the failing health of his father. In 1820, for a few months, until his father's death, he edited the Haverhill Gazette. He then for some time edited the New England Review, published at Hartford, Connecticut, where he gained some experience and won many friends. But in a short time his own ill health forced him to again return to his home at Haverhill. He soon published his first book, a poem of New England legendary life, entitled "Moll Pitcher." His scattered poems then amounted to 300. In November, 1831, he gave the world his first anti-slavery verse, "To William Lloyd Garrison." By 1840 books of his poems were household property. Whittier was a household name. School boys could quote his poetry. He was declaimed in the lyceums. From 1847 till 1860, The National Era, a Washington anti-slavery organ, published the greater part of his poetry. With the establishment of the Atlantic Monthly in 1857, the first appearances of Whittier's new poetry were made in New England. "Snow Bound" was printed in the Atlantic, and achieved immediate popularity. After the war Whittier lived at Oak Bluffs, Massachusetts, where he led an extremely quiet existence. He was almost a lifelong invalid. Though born of a sturdy and long-lived stock, he inherited no great robustness of frame, and when he was about 17 years of age he injured his constitution permanently by overwork on his father's farm. He had a weakness of the heart that not only gave him pain, but for many years was a constant menace to his life.

Veneration in New England. In his later life there were several evidences of importance which served to show the veneration in which New England held her poet. As he grew older the schools came to observe his birthday and the Whittier societies held special exercises. On his seventeenth birthday, men and women of letters contributed to the press notable appreciations in verse and prose. And 10 years later the governor and many other prominent citizens went to Danvers and formally congratulated him. The poet had many friends. He numbered among his admirers distinguished men of the highest political rank and the principal literary men and women of his time. Almost every noted author of America might be numbered as having been among his most intimate friends. Lucy Hooper, Gail Hamilton, Grace Greenwood, Sarah Orles Jewett, Lucy Larcom, Louise Chandler Moulton and Elizabeth Stuart Phelps were of the many who honored him with their love and reverence.

Whittier's life was so largely domestic that it had been passed almost wholly in the company of women—first his mother and sister at Haverhill and Amesbury, then his niece at Amesbury and finally his cousins at Oak Knoll. And it was in the house of the daughter of one of his oldest and dearest friends—at Hampton Falls, New Hampshire—that the poet died, September 7, 1892.

Klamath Fire Alarm. (Special Dispatch to the Journal.) Klamath Falls, Or., Dec. 13.—The city council has under consideration the installation of an electric fire alarm system. The equipment would cost the city $1,200, exclusive of hauling charges from the railroad.

DENVER SELECTED CONVENTION CITY

Louisville Was Second in Race but Finally Joined the Coloradans.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Denver has been chosen as the Democratic convention city. On the first ballot Denver received 22 votes, as against 17 for Louisville, 5 for Chicago, and 1 for St. Paul. Before the second ballot was completed Chicago and Louisville withdrew and Denver was selected by acclamation. July 7 was selected as the date for the convention after a very brief discussion.

FAIRBANKS BANK IS CLOSED TEMPORARILY

(United Press Leased Wire.) Fairbanks, Alaska, Dec. 13.—The Fairbanks Banking company failed to open yesterday. Captain Burnette is president of the bank. The bank is solvent, but was forced to close on account of the scarcity of currency. It will reopen upon the arrival of Casler's Wood, there is no rose without its thorn. One of the results of the merger of the cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny into one municipality is the necessity of changing the names of banks and churches in the two cities, wherever such names are identical. The churches will be obliged to change their names to a greater extent than the banks, and of the churches the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian denominations are most affected. This is because these two denominations use numbers in their names to a greater extent than other denominations.

CHURCHES AND BANKS MUST CHANGE NAMES

(United Press Leased Wire.) Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 13.—Some of the advocates of the Greater Pittsburg project, which is now about to become an accomplished fact, have found that there is no rose without its thorn. One of the results of the merger of the cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny into one municipality is the necessity of changing the names of banks and churches in the two cities, wherever such names are identical. The churches will be obliged to change their names to a greater extent than the banks, and of the churches the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian denominations are most affected. This is because these two denominations use numbers in their names to a greater extent than other denominations.

CURES WINTER COUGH

J. E. Gover, 101 N. Main street, Ottawa, Kansas, writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever the cough troubles her, two or three doses stop the cough, and she is able to be up and well." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by all druggists.

SUES JEWELER FOR TALKING ABOUT WIFE

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., Dec. 13.—Charging defamation of character, W. W. Harder and Alice Harder have instituted suit against Percy Davis, a local jeweler, asking a total of $35,000 damages for certain remarks which Davis is alleged to have made reflecting on Mrs. Harder's honesty while the latter was employed as saleswoman in the jewelry store.

Young Business Woman of Portland Plans Year of Leisure on Money Her Good Judgment Earned

While many business people, and especially those who have lost positions during the past few weeks, are feeling dubious as to the future, others are finding this their greatest harvest time, and planning to realize the dreams of their lives. One young woman who followed her woman's intuition rather than the advice of her men friends, is revealing in $1,000 that has fallen into her lap. "Just like finding money," she expressed it. A year ago the opportunity was offered to buy stock, at 25 cents a share, in a Chicago industry just starting. She invested, and last week received word that the stock had reached par. A chance came to sell part of it, and now she has $1,000 for which she has not toiled, and which she means to enjoy after her own fashion. "It's the first money I ever had in my life that I didn't work hard for," she said today, "and I'm going to have a whole year of doing as I like with it." How many women there are in the world—and men too—who have never enjoyed a dollar that they did not exchange hard toil to possess; long hours in the office or store, service in the most exacting order, no wonder they hold tightly to the precious coins that are gained so dearly. And it is just this disposition to hold onto every cent, to hoard, dollar by dollar, that keeps them in the grinding, drudging position they are in. The savings bank will never return them the full earnings of their money, and hoarding about the house it invites robbery and disaster. The way of men who make money is the only way for the woman with a little surplus, and that is to choose a safe, sound investment, one with every prospect of rapid returns, backed by men of known integrity and business acumen; in other words, follow the method of the young business woman above mentioned. Put your money where it will make more money; and while doing so, choose the place where it will make the very most possible. To illustrate, a few dollars invested in cattle on the prairie, will yield you good results by the hundreds; put into a potato patch, will soon pay for the ground secured; and in the Chicago industry just started, put into Oregon apples, and bring you nice returns in time; but put into Oregon gold, it will bring you in turn gold for sale, through all the apples and cattle and business you could raise with this amount to invest, and then leave you a handsome sum; in fact, Oregon gold is the great industry of Oregon today, and the investors in this stock will soon or later be in the position of the young business woman who said it was "just like finding money." Yesterday's dispatches from Baker county report that "from $4 to $6 pounds of pure gold deposited every 30 days in the Citizens' National Bank and the record during these times of demand for actual money. It is these fabulously rich Baker county areas that will be dredged for gold by the Oregon company, and if the quoted results represent what other mining methods of extraction have developed, the imagination can supply the returns from dredging, which leaves not a particle of gold in the gravel. The Western Exploration & Dredging company, backed by Oregon's strongest men, controls Oregon's richest areas, and is offering a small amount of stock for sale, through Mr. F. M. Satchelor, secretary and general manager, at 215 Couch building.

Clerk Kills Himself. (United Press Leased Wire.) Victoria, B. C., Dec. 13.—Alfred Francis, clerk of the St. Francis hotel, committed suicide late yesterday afternoon by shooting himself with a revolver. Dependence as a result of continued illness was the cause.
