infected rat must be kept up as long as the Asiatic colonies and other places of a like character are allowed to exist in American cities. Filled with dirt and offal, unaanitary, honeycombed with dark cellars and dark passageways, the ordinary Asiatic quarter of the Pacific coast city, is, in Dr. Matson's opinion, a paradise for the rats and as a consequence, the natural source for the plague to take its start.

"The bubonic plague is primarily a disease of rats," he asserts, "and rarely attaches itself to human beings until after it has raged among the rodents.

"In Chinese cities the coming of the plague is generally foreshadowed by heaps of dead rats lying in debris holes and neglected corners in the streets. When the Asiatic quarters are made asnitary, as we understand the word in these days, and the Asiatic inhabitants are compelled to live according to the standards of cieaniliness adopted by native Americans, then the danger spot will have been removed and it will only be necessary to introduce a few regulations to admost certainly insure any city against the plague.

delivered by Dr. B. E. S. Ely Jr. in the Calvary Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The speaker took for his text the second verse of John III: "Beloved I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as the soul prospereth." In treating his subject Dr. Ely said in part as fol-

"Until the Asiatic sections of every city on the Pacific coast are thoroughly modernized in sanitary conveniences and the inhabitants made to live according to standards of cleanliness set by Americans, the coast will never be free of the danger of an incursion of the bubonic piague. If this result cannot be obtained by any other method than stringent exclusion of the Chinese, Hindus, Koreans and Japanese, then I do not believe that exclusion is too high a price to pay."

This is the conclusion of Dr. Ralph Matson, state biologist of Oregon and a recognized authority on tropical dis-good. That is the order of the true prosperity.

"And this latter has its marks. John uses Gaius as an illustration and indicates three of them. The first is welcome of the truth. Gaius had laid hold of the truth as it is in Jesus, and that with an open mind, a wnole heart, a firm grasp. A would-be religious leader congratulated his readers not long ago that the day is not far off when one who would be a Christian will no longer be compelled first of all to think and make confession, as John, or Paul, or even Jesus thought and made confession.

Third Sign of Prosperity.

"Beecher used to talk about 'circular Christians.' Are we so walking according to the truth that instead of simply describing the same old circle we are going forward whithersoever the light and love of God leads? As somebody put it, is there in our walk 'the pliput it, is there in our walk 'the pliput it, is there in our walk 'the pliput it, is the pliput it, is the progress as well as the pligrim's

"The True Prosperity and Its Marks" was the subject of an interesting address

"But mark. John does not say to Gaius. T pray that you may be prospered spiritually as you are temporally.' He puts it the other way: T pray that you may be prospered temporally.' He makes the spiritual the measure according to which the temporal is to be desired. He puts the spiritual before and above the temporal.

"The best we can wish one another for the New Year is not 'May you be successful, and good as you are successful,' but may you first of all be good, and then successful as you are good.' That is the order of the true prosperity.

The Real Prosperity.

"Gaius, in his work, was humble. He was not like a certain other man who belonged to the same church, Diotrephes by name, and who wanted to be the whole thing, do all the 'bossing,' and get all the glory. Gaius was willing to take even the lowliest place among the master's toilers. They who, like him welcome the truth into a hospitable mind, heart and conscience, who walk according to the truth in dally practice and progress toward perfection, who work for the truth and the extension of its influence, faithfully, lovingly, worthily, devotedly, and humbly—they have that higher prosperity which is to be the measure of the lower, and which gives it reality and value."

CHRISTMAS EVERY DAY.

Dr. McGlade Tells of God's Kingdom and Its Adaptations.

and Its Adaptations.

It was Dyke's celebrated Christmas sermon, in which the central thought is that Christmas might be observed every day in the year, furnished the theme for the morning sermon of Dr. McGlade at the Mignah Presbyterian church yes terday, Dr. McGlade chose for his text Mark 1:15, "The kingdom of God is at hand."

The speaker took issue with the oftrepeated statement that the church has outlived its usefulness and that evangelical truth has become worn out. "There never will be any age," said he, "when the kingdom of God will not be found perfectly adapted to it. The problems of our day are new problems; or old problems in new form. The kingdom of God is modern and will continue to be modern in the respective centuries. to be modern in the respective centuries. There is no change in what we call hu-There is no change in what we call human nature. As long as sin is in the world sinners will need to be pointed to the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world. As long as man suffers he will need a comforter, and as long as the sad procession wends its way to God's acre, human hearts will need to trust him who is the resurrection and the line."

Christians.' Are we so waiking according to the truth that instead of simply describing the same old circle we are going forward whithersoever the light and love of God leads? As somebody put it, is there in our walk 'the pillgrim's practiced?"

The third sign of the true prosperity is working for the truth. John spoke of Galus as a 'fellow-worker for the truth.' As such he was characterized by faithfulness. Such a one works, not to be seen of men; not by flits and starts; but under the influence of conscience, with resolute perseverance and loyalty, oblivious alike to praise or blame.

"As a worker, Gaius was marked by the spirit and bearing of love. Some people are faithful in their Christian work, but they make it hot for those who have to work with them; so hard are they on the impulsive, the fiftul; so unsympathetic towards us who are they on the impulsive, the fiftul; so unsympathetic towards us who are deeply wounded by criticism and dependent upon the stimulus of a little pendent upon the stimulus

RELIGION FOR MEN.

World Needs More Men to Create Sentiment for Betterment.

"Religion for Men" was the topic of the sermon given by Rabbi Wise at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. In his sermon the speaker contended that religion was not something for the betterment of women alone, but that it was for men and was manly. In support of his contention Dr. Wise pointed out that in all the history of religion preached by men it was for the strengthening and uplifting of men, and through its strength and power became something to be sought and charished something to be sought and cherished

The need of the world, the speaker said, was men who would better themselves and make themselves stronger. The religion that counts is the religion that creates a sentiment for betterment. Real religion is too hard for the women of today, the speaker contended, but he added that when Mrs. Duniway was successful in bringing equal suffrage over the country, then religion would be for

Steel Works Will Pay $100 to Discoverer of Silica Pit.

Who knows where there is a deposit of white slike sand in the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho or California? Through the Portland Commercial club the Columbia Steel works of Portland has offered a prize of $100 to the discoverer, and agrees to take 100 tons of the sand each month at $6 per ton. Silica sand is necessary in the manufacture of steel. It is at present a crying need in the steel industry on the Pacific coast. The steel-working plants of Portland are importing their silies sand from Minnesota at heavy expense for transportation. The discoverer of a for transportation. The discoverer of a large deposit of silica sand in the Pacific northwest would not only protit financially, but would cover himself with glory and his name would take a win giory and his name would take a place among the honored names of the northwest's industrial heroes. The needed sand is usually of a color almost clear white. It must meet cer-tain requirements. The exact wording of the Columbia Steel works' offer is as follows: follows:

"We will take 100 tons each month of silica sand, 98 per cent pure silica and free from iron oxides, delivered at Portland at not to exceed $5 per ton, and we will pay $100 in cash to the discoverer."

Frequently it has been reported that discoveries of pure silica sand had been made in Oregon, but thus far there was invariably something lacking in quality or quantity. The community that "makes good" in this instance will have a greater source of revenue than from gold or copper mines, lumber mills or other factories.

The demand is wide and very heavy. It embraces every itonworking industry on the Pacific coast from California to Alaska and is constantly growing greater.

Alaska and is constantly growing greater.

In the immediate future there will be immense development in the Pacific coast iron trade. Agents of the steel trust have for the last year been seriously considering the question of establishing iron and steel industries on a very large scale near Portland, the center of the famous iron or region of the lower Columbia river. They are constantly seeking the various raw materials that are requisite to the complete process of iron and steel working, and process of iron and steel working, a silica sand is one of these materials.
