

TWO CLUBS LOCK ARMS

Admen Guests of East Side Business Organization at Rousing Good Fellowship and Boosting Banquet—Bigelow New President.

Nearly 200 business men with their guests assembled last night at the quarters of the East Side Business Men's club in the Healy building, East Morrison and Grand avenue. The occasion was the annual meeting of the business men's association. The members of the Portland Ad club were the Invited guests of the east side association. Two orchestras furnished music besides the glee club from the East Side High school. There were juggling and sleight of hand work by James Duff and a three-round ring battle between Professor Fred Ely and Charles Bush of the East Side Athletic club. Rev. George H. Van Waters delivered an optimistic address on the future of Portland and the east side in particular. He predicted that in 10 years the population of Portland would be 400,000 and that the government census of 1920 would find Portland above the 500,000 mark. He said Portland's position was predestined to make her the most prosperous city on the coast. Stirring addresses were made by C. N. Black, C. C. Chapman, Bury I. Daseant and E. J. Ladd. Mr. Chapman gave some ideas how best to advertise the east side. Mr. Black was enthusiastic and advocated a number of specific changes and advances. He urged the east side business men to have Sandy

The Late Dr. Shady, one of New York's Most Successful Practitioners, Advised Getting Warm and Using a Cathartic at Once in Cases of Grip.

The first thing to do in an attack of the grip is to get warm, and be sure to move the bowels freely, preferably with Hood's Pills. Generally speaking, if these simple directions are quickly followed, not more than a day or two need be lost.

If the attack is severe time will be saved by remaining in bed two or three days. Be careful to avoid a relapse. The grip is invariably followed by weakness. It lowers the health tone and poisons the blood, hence the remedy clearly indicated is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite, aids digestion, neutralizes the poison in the blood, which it purifies and revitalizes, thereby giving renewed strength and ambition. No other medicine will produce such quick and permanent results. No other is so economical. One hundred doses one dollar. It is wise to get a bottle and begin taking now.

road changed to Ross City avenue; to get a new Harriman depot; to get elevated roadways near the river, tunnels under the river for cars; to develop an east side rose; to get the circuits and part of the route for the rose festival parade.

H. A. Calef, retiring president, called the meeting to order and the first order of business was the election of officers for the new year. C. A. Bigelow was chosen president by acclamation. Mr. Calef refusing to have his name considered for reelection. Mr. Bigelow has been secretary of the East Side Business Men's club since its organization and is one of the most enthusiastic and ardent of the club's workers.

Mr. Bigelow is succeeded in the secretaryship by Walter Jackson of George Dilworth & Co. W. S. Love was elected vice-president and E. E. Fulton was chosen treasurer to succeed Dr. C. H. Rafferty. Mr. Calef who retires from the presidency is one of the most capable of the east side business men and has given during the past year a great deal of his time to the different interests of the organization.

BANK LOOT COMPLETE

Since the clerks of the bank knew nothing of their absence it is taken for granted that Burkhardt, or some one under his instructions, removed the leaves in order to hide what his personal account might have shown at the time the bank went to pieces.

Trust Company's Washbub.
This same "suspense" account shows in glaring manner the operations of a mushroom holding company operated under the appropriate title of the "Gold Bug Syndicate." This syndicate was formed for the purpose of taking over gold mines which had been bonded in large amounts. T. T. Burkhardt was the president of the corporation, John E. Aitchison the secretary and T. Thorburn Ross represented the bank in its operations with the syndicate and took over the deeds of trust.

In the deal this syndicate needed money and twice secured it to the tune of $20,000 at one time and $45,000 at another. The money needed was taken out of the "suspense" account jackpot and given to the syndicate.

The "suspense" account might be called the financial washbub of the Title Guaranty & Trust company's inner circle. Into it was dumped all manner of large items which were afterwards taken out to suit the purpose and convenience of the officials who needed money for their deals.

Tap Tubes Overdrawn.
Apparently the account was balanced once a year by some hook or crook of enhanced value and other financial ways of a frenzied character. On June last it was brought to a balance at the end of the fiscal year, but when the bank went on the rocks it showed a deficit of some $20,000, showing that the demands of the inner circle had run ahead of the facilities for sweetening the pot that had existed for the past few months immediately prior.

Perhaps no discovery that has yet been made by the investigators has thrown more light on the devious paths of the officials than those which have come to light through the unearthing of the "suspense" account.

The work of the investigators has practically been completed and within a short time, perhaps by the end of the present week or the middle of the next, the work will have been closed and the mass of evidence shown by it compiled ready for the district attorney's office in its prosecution of the officials who wrecked the bank.

The aggregate membership of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen is now 30,451, distributed among 455 local branches. The organization has nearly $30,000 cash in its treasury.

MALARKEY GETS BOOKS

According to Attorney Dan Malarkey the Lyons boys realized this winter that the Newhalls were making an effort to oust them from the bank. At the time they had taken stock of each subscriber to $5,000 worth of the stock, giving the bank five notes of $1,000 each, payable one at the end of each year until 1911, when all would be paid up. They have each, according to Mr. Malarkey paid the first notes of $1,000 each and have paid $500 apiece as interest on the other notes. They offered to withdraw from the bank if Mr. Newhall would pay them what they considered a fair amount for their interest in the bank. They claim that he offered to repay them $1,000 each, but would return them no interest paid on the other notes.

When they met for their meeting yesterday morning Mr. Newhall informed them that they would have to leave the bank and discharged them from his service. Attorneys George Stapleton and Dan Malarkey for the two factions tried to smooth matters over but neither side was willing to recede from the position taken.

Meeting Is Adjourned.
At last Mr. Newhall announced that he adjourned the directors' meeting, which was a special one and where therefore the majority of directors had the power, and instead called a meeting of stockholders which would give him the power, inasmuch as he could vote $15,000 out of the $25,000 of capital stock. But the Lyons refused to attend the meeting, so Mr. Newhall and Mr. Stapleton held one in one room and Mr. Malarkey and the two Lyons held another in another room.

At the close of the meetings in which the Lyons faction declared that the $5,000 surplus be divided among the stockholders Newhall entered the room and attempted to take the record book out of Mr. Malarkey's hands.

"Oh, so that's your game, is it?" said the lawyer, and snatching the book away from Mr. Newhall, struck him with it and made his escape from the building.

Immediately Roger Newhall, the son for whom Mr. Newhall is said to have been trying to make a place in the bank, gave chase, with the elder Newhall following as a close third.

Malarkey Proves Fast on Foot.
Down the back steps they ran, while Malarkey, with a lead of about 10 yards, made a magnificent run down Alder street, turning over to Morrison and heading straight as an arrow for the Morrison bridge, with the younger Newhall in hot pursuit, while the bank president, who had lost his wind before he had covered a block, stood on the corner and shouted orders to Malarkey to return with the book.

The lawyer dodged all interference, however, and when the captain tugged safely under his arm reached the bridge and scored his touchdown, while Roger Newhall returned to the bank.

When his father learned that the efforts to stop the star of the Lyons faction had been unavailing, he returned to the directors' meeting.

"I discharge you and order you out of my bank," he said.

"We are a majority of the directors of this bank," he says, "not yours," said the Lyons boys, and they held the fort until they judged that Mr. Malarkey had escaped safely with the records.

Found Action Illegal.
This morning an adjourned meeting of the directors was held at the bank at which both parties were present, and when the Lyons voted, they revoked the $5,000 dividend of yesterday, as it had been found that it was illegal, exceeding the amount of undivided profits that can legally be divided. A dividend of $4,625 was then declared.

Both of the Lyons declare that they are still officers and directors of the bank inasmuch as Mr. Newhall acting alone had no authority to discharge them.

"We expect that at the annual meeting tomorrow H. H. Newhall will appoint his wife, Louise Newhall and his son, Roger Newhall, as directors of the bank," said Mr. Malarkey, "and that they will then outvote us as they have a right to do. But we have declared a dividend, which is all we wanted."

According to Attorney Stapleton, representing the Newhalls, there have been differences of opinion between Mr. Newhall and his directors ever since the panic. The Lyons wished to close up the institution during the holidays and Mr. Newhall who has always taken a great deal of pride in his bank, did not want to do this. Then, too he says that it profits that can legally be divided were declared six months ago and when money was as hard to procure as it is at present.

Mr. Malarkey says that his clients are willing to defer the payment of the dividend for a year and take Mr. Newhall's note for the amount but they must insist on a recognition of the act of the directorate in declaring such dividend.

There is no question as to the financial standing of the bank, as although not a large institution, it is regarded as being one of the soundest in the state. The disagreement which has arisen between the directors can have no effect on the stability of the institution and merely hinges on the position the Lyons will occupy in the future. J. A. Lyons was at work in the institution today but his brother left at the close of the director's meeting.

PRESIDENT DAY

Telephone company that is now extending its lines is tied up in this bank, and is retarding extensions and improvements needed. As we represent the telephone company, we are naturally as deeply interested as any depositor in seeing a solution of the present situation. It will be a positive sacrifice by myself and the German-American bank to take over the Oregon Trust & Savings bank and pay all its creditors and depositors, but any reorganization of the bank is impossible without our cooperation, and we are willing to do anything within reason to straighten out the tangle."

Day applied this morning to District Attorney John Manning for a warrant for the arrest of W. H. Moore, on a charge of criminal libel. Up to noon no warrant had been issued.

HARDEN FOUND GUILTY OF LIBEL

German Editor Sentenced to Four Months in Prison for Making Expose.

(Vulst Press Leased Wire.)

Berlin, Jan. 3.—Editor Harden, whose printed charges against the Knights of the Round Table created a profound sensation in the German empire principally because Count Von Moltke was accused of indulging in immoralities, was today found guilty on a charge of libel and sentenced to four months' imprisonment.

In the first hearing in which Harden was called upon by the kaiser to prove his charges the proceedings were brought to an abrupt end by the presiding judge, who declared that the evidence was of such a startling nature that more of it would injure Germany's social condition.

Harden received many congratulations upon the courage he displayed in daring to attack the officials who are so close to the kaiser. As the attack was directed almost exclusively toward Von Moltke, the latter immediately filed suit for libel, declaring that he wanted to be vindicated. The verdict returned today is the result of this trial.

Dance Hall Burns.
