THE NEGRO'S INFLUENCE ON SOUTHERN TEMPERANCE

By Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh.

The New Year reception given by the Central W. C. T. U. at their headquarters was a most enjoyable event. The rooms were crowded almost the entire afternoon. They were beautifully decorated with Oregon grape, sword ferns, roses and Narcissus. Mrs. Alexander Peak, who usually has this in charge, gave way to the young women members of the union. The decoration and program was under the direction of Miss Dorothea Clinton, the secretary of the union. She was assisted by Misses Eleanor Clinton, Ruth and Gertrude Stone. The program consisted of songs and readings, Misses Clinton, Stone, Hammerstein and Phoegstra assisting.

Miss Clinton prefaced the program with a very graceful talk in which she spoke of the plan for the organization of the young women into a Y. W. C. T. U. Mrs. Unruh expressed the appreciation of the union for the treat the young women had given them, and introduced Mrs. Roper of the Seamen's Friend society, who in turn in a very interesting talk introduced Mr. Phillips, who sang two beautiful home songs. Several new members were received.

Mothers' Meeting.

The program at the next regular meeting will be a "mothers' meeting." The mothers' meeting department is one of the most interesting of the many that are being carried on by the Central union. The W. C. T. U. does not claim to have originated the mothers' meetings, as they are older than the Christian era, but they may easily lay claim to be the mother of the modern mothers' meetings. In fact, the W. C. T. U. has for years been teaching the real "science of motherhood" and thousands of young mothers have had cause to call the organization blessed because of the help they have received from these meetings that has made them better and wiser mothers.

No branch of our work receives more attention in the national convention and the best helps and literature is provided for this department. Miss Willard used to say that the greatest work was to give the child the chance to be well born, and acting upon that belief, the W. C. T. U. is using its utmost endeavor to arouse not only women but men as well to something of an understanding of the sacredness of parenthood. Naturally the larger part of our work in this line is with women and no organization has done more to give the home a consecrated motherhood.

Plans are being laid to hold these meetings in various parts of the city. Any person interested in this line of work and desiring help will please write Mrs. Margaret Houston at the headquarters for literature or for help to hold mothers' meetings in any part of the city. If the mothers of Portland were as well informed in regard to the dangers to their boys and girls as a mother ought to be, the rooms would be crowded on next Wednesday to get help and to offer to cooperate to bring about a better state of things.

In an address by Miss Anna Shaw at the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Nashville there was no more forceful passage than this: "Men say oh if you women would only keep your children safe at home; if you would keep your children off the streets and stay at home from the conventions everything would be all right."

Talk to women about keeping the children off the streets! What can a man be thinking about to stand out on the street and looking over across it see the door of his own house open and one of his own children come out, and then stand there "shooing" him back, saying, "Go back; go back to your mother's home; don't dare to come out on your father's streets, for if you do you are lost. And if you are lost it is not your father's fault; it is your mother's for letting you out." Such things as these make us wish to have some fathers' meetings.

More Dignity Than Council.

At the present time about the only ones we have are those held by the city "Dads" in the city council chamber. This leads me to say that while our mothers' meetings are interesting, they are pervaded by more of dignity, than the daily papers picture for the fathers' meetings of the city of Portland. And I am wondering if the W. C. T. U. or the suffrage society should have just one meeting, with such epithets and compliments exchanged, as we are led to believe have stirred the air in these deliberative bodies in several sessions recently, what the opponents of equal suffrage would say.

Methinks I can hear the grave dissertations on the excitability of the female temperament, and the insuperable obstacle this would interpose to the cool consideration of important questions. I have been privileged to attend several women's meetings of strenuous character, where there were strong minds on either side of some exceedingly important matter, where "Greek met Greek" in forensic battle, and never no never! have I found women so gifted with expletives as are these city "Dads."

The very grave question presents itself to my mind whether or not it is for the best interests of our city to send women to the city council that we may have assurance that the grave matters that deserve the serious consideration of our lawmakers should be placed in the hands of less emotional persons than at present. Is it safe, think you, to put the interests of our fair city in the hands of such an excitable body? Seriously, could any body of women give us a more emotional meeting than some we have heard reported?

Prohibition in the South.

It may be of interest to the readers of The Journal to read the new version of "Marching Through Georgia" that the residents of that state are singing with gusto at this time.

Bring the good old bugle, boys! We'll have a grand new song;
Sing it as we mean to sing it eighty millions strong;
Sing it as we love to sing it, while we march along;
  Rum shops are marching from Georgia!

Hurrah! Hurrah! They lead the jubilee!
Hurrah! Hurrah! Our land shall soon be free!
Hear the Dixie chorus from Atlanta to
  the sea,
  While they are marching from Georgia!

Oklahoma answered when she heard the joyful sound;
Kansas took new courage, while old
  Maine felt sure her ground;
All the south awakens and the north
  will soon come round,
  Swelling the new march from Georgia!

Hurrah! Hurrah! We'll vote the jubilee!
Hurrah! Hurrah! Columbia shall be free!
Swell the Dixie chorus from the mountains to the sea,
America is proud to follow Georgia!

The "Southern Star," in printing this new song, comments: "There will be a new procession from 'Atlanta to the sea,' but it will leave happy homes in its wake."

Negro and Temperance.

The discussion of the causes that have led to the rapid growth of prohibition in the south has been of interest to me. Though I am a northern woman by birth and am loyal to the north, yet I love the south and have traveled extensively there studying conditions. It is almost universally thought that the negro population in the south has forced the prohibition issue upon them.

There is not a particle of truth in this oftrepeated statement. Temperance victories in the southern states can be attributed to just one thing, and that is the southern man's reverence for women. It is true that he has voted for prohibition to protect women from the drunken negro, but the negro is no more menace to the woman of the south than is the drunken white man to the woman of the north.

Indeed, I am safe in saying that the unspeakable crime, that the banishment of saloons from the south is expected, to lessen, is not so common in the south, with all of the negro population, as it is in the north.

I think that no one conversant with facts will deny that the bad white man can give lessons in vice to the black man of the south.

The southern man has decided that the protection of the women is of more importance than the revenue from the saloons; that is the conclusion of the whole matter. There are signs that lead us to believe that the northern man has begun to think out this problem along these lines. The thanks of the womanhood of the nation is the due of the brave and chivalrous man of the south in taking the initiative, so to speak, in this modern revival of prohibition legislation.

Food for Northern Thought.

I would not be understood to mean that the northern man does not revere women. They have not in large numbers yet received the "arrest of thought" along this line, that is all. When the western man wakes up to the fact that the honor of his daughter and the safety of his wife is at the mercy of the saloon as much in the north as in the south, the only difference being in the one case it is the bad black man and in the other the bad white man, the saloons will pass away like frost before the heat of the sun. God speed the awakening.

The state W. C. T. U. president, Mrs. Henrietta Brown of Albany, will be in the city for several days in the near future and the women are planning for that event. The general officers will hold meetings when the work for the remainder of the year will be outlined and receptions will be held.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Uruh will hold an institute in Canby on January 10. When "the Mother's Mission" will be one of the principal subjects for discussion. Mrs. Weber, the talented corresponding secretary of Canby union, is planning for an occasion of special interest at that time.

Miss Minchin, the young president of Yamhill county W. C. T. U., has been in the city for some days.

SOCIETY

Saturday evening, January 18, is the date of Mrs. Sylvia McGuire's reading. Many of those who have heard her in recital will be glad of the pleasure promised by her beautiful lecture, "Echoes From Dixie."

The following names of patrons and patronesses gives assurance of a brilliant success:

EVENTS OF THE WEEK

The Tuesday Afternoon club celebrated its club day, New Year's eve, with a progressive dinner in honor of the husbands of the members.

The first course was served at the home of Mrs. A. B. Manley. Covers were laid for 36. The large dining hall was beautifully decorated with holly, roses and ferns. The club colors, violet and white, were carried out in the favors; escorts were chosen by means of slips of paper, and after considerable merriment the party proceeded to Mrs. L. M. Davis' residence where the next course was served.

The tables were beautifully decorated with hawthorne berries, Oregon grape and ferns. The place cards contained quotations from "Ring Out Wild Bells." Escorts to the next place were selected by duplicate quotations.

Thence the party proceeded to the home of Mrs. G. C. Eshelman where the last course was served. This course, consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee, was served from a table beautifully decorated with lilies of the valley, Oregon grape, and candelabra. Here again, partners were chosen by means of numbers on slips of paper. During the progress of this course Mrs. Mary Scott Myers read the selection, "The Death of the Old Year."

Many toasts were given to the success of the club for the new year. Games were indulged in until the old year passed and the new was ushered in.

Mrs. J. Paus gave a New Year's party at her pretty home, 839 Kelly street. The rooms were prettily decorated with red crepe paper streamers, holly and red bells. Cards were played and refreshments served until a late hour, when amid much shooting and tooting of horns and greetings for the New Year the crowd left for their homes. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Meyhrun, Mr. and Mrs. S. Regner, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Weygandt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paus, F. Schreiber, T. Whitesside, Miss C. Wallman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fritz, Mr. and Mrs. C. Scholl of Salem, Margaret Paus, Fred Fritz and Margaret Scholl of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Frink very pleasantly entertained their friends Monday evening in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary. The rooms were decorated with ferns, ivy and mistletoe. Miss Ida Freeman and Mrs. Harry Rowe received, at the door. After a solo by Elbert Thompson, the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. Ella Jones.

Rev. F. O. Bonebrake officiated, when the vows were renewed that were made in the same room 10 years before. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the old-time charivari. The guests were delightfully entertained with an informal program, games, music on the piano and phonograph, and a reading by Harry Rowe. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Tongland, Mrs. O. M. Frink and Mrs. Elbert Thompson. The invited guests were Clyde Boles of Mill City, Horace Underhill and family of Summit, Oregon, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Bonebrake, Mr. and Mrs. Evars, Mr. and Mrs. Nils Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boles, Arthur Boles, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clark celebrated their wooden anniversary at their home Monday night. The house was beautifully decorated with Oregon grape and ferns. The evening was spent with music and games. Burnt wood booklets with a design of house was passed on a wooden tray by little Miss Jennie Clark. Each guest was requested to draw the house in a burnt wood book to be kept by Mr. and Mrs. Clark as a souvenir. W. A. Gill won the prize, a burnt wood handkerchief box.

Mrs. Clark wore her wedding dress. Refreshments were served at 11 o'clock, and the guests marched to the dining room to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march. Here wooden dishes were used exclusively. The wedding cake had the same decoration as used five years ago. Mr. Clark cut the wedding cake and Mrs. Clark the bride's cake. Among the guests were the bridesmaid and best man. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gill, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hatton, Mr and Mrs. L. E. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Beldin, C. Meyers, R. Smith, Mrs. I. L. Clark, Mrs. E. V. Robinson, Mrs. E. Smith, Miss Jennie Clark and Masters Floyd Clark and Clarence Cole.

A photograph of the guests was taken by Mr. Gill.

A most pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Frances Brownlee, East Twentieth and Taylor streets in honor of her 17th birthday. Many of her friends were in attendance to wish her happiness.

A Cure for Misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces," says R. M. James, of Louellen, S. C. "It's called Electric Bitters, and comes in 50-cent bottles. It breaks up a case of chills or a bilious attack in almost no time; and it puts yellow jaundice clean out of commission." This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints and the misery of lame back. Sold under guarantee at Skidmore Drug Co.'s drug store.

WEDDINGS

At the home of the bride's parents, ex-Senator and Mrs. C. A. Cogswell, 434 Holladay avenue, Miss Marie Cogswell and Walter E. Gelinsky were united in marriage Friday evening by Rev. E. S. Muckley. The ceremony was performed under a canopy of smilax, white roses and carnations surrounded by exotics. Festoons were suspended from the walls in suitable places. The mantles were decorated with palms, ferns and flowering plants. The bride looked charming in white crepe de chine trimmed with hand embroidered insertion edged with pearls. She carried a beautiful bouquet of Bride roses and was attended by her sister, Miss Marjorie, who was daintily gowned in pink crepe de chine, and carried carnations to match. PENALTY FOR THEATRE

Promise of a Harvard Man of 1826 Who Saw a Play.

From the New York Sun.

In January, 1826, George W. Warren of Charlestown, Massachusetts, was going to enter Harvard college. He prevailed upon his father, Isaac Warren, to let him go to the theatre on the evening of January 25, 1826. As a result of this the annals of Harvard contain the following:

Know All Men by These Presents:

That, Whereas, Isaac Warren, Esq., in the town of Charlestown, of the county of Middlesex and commonwealth of Massachusetts, has favored George W. Warren, his lawful son and heir, in letting him go to the theatre Wednesday evening, January 25, 1826. I, the said George W. Warren, do hereby promise that for four years (which being my collegiate life) I, the said George, will preserve a steady and upright conduct, and that I will store my mind with useful reading for the whole said four years, during which time I am obligated by this bond to the said Isaac Warren.

It is to be hoped that the show was as good as all that.

Great Underground Ballroom.

From the London Chronicle.

The underground ballroom at Welbeck, where their majesties of Spain graced the debut of the duke and duchess of Portland's only daughter, has none of the gloomy characteristics of a cellar. By day as well as by night it is perfectly lighted, being designed and built by the old duke as a picture gallery. It is lighted entirely from above, the flat, wonderfully decorated roof being pierced by 27 big octagonal skylights built up of prisms and recessed from view. The light falling thus is softened by passing through rich crimson silk. The 48 exquisite glass chandeliers which illuminate the room by night were an object of the mysterious duke's particular care; many sets after being specially made were ruthlessly rejected before his taste was pleased.

One notable feature in the room is the marble bust of the "invisible prince"—as his tenants called him—who constructed the apartment by the simple process of excavating a quarter of an acre of ground, lining the clay banks with a double wall, sandwiched with asphalt to exclude damp, spanning it with iron beams weighing over 20 tons each and resting on arches to form the roof.

It is quite flat and level with the garden above, so that one walks over a beautifully turfed lawn, little dreaming that below this sylvan spot is the splendid chamber 160 feet long and 64 feet wide, which has been described by competent judges as the most notable and amazing private room in Europe.

The Proud Young Father.

A clever witticism was attributed the other day in Washington to
