FEATHER TITLE MAY BE TIED UP

Attell Insists on Weight Conditions Which Moran Will Refuse to Meet.

WINNER OF NEXT BOUT BONAFIDE CHAMPION

Hebrew Champion Intends to Drive Shrewd Business Bargain and Visions of Unsold Wealth Only Will Affect Him—Flynn Perks Up a Bit

By W. W. Naughton.
San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 4.—Although the impression prevails that the promoters will have a device of a time getting Abe Attell and Owen Moran together again, it is to be hoped that the matter of a return engagement between the two little crackjacks will not be allowed to remain long in abeyance.

It would never do to have a world's championship title so tied up that no single individual could take pride in it or turn it to profitable account, and such would be the condition of affairs if Abe and Owen, deadlocked on the question of terms for another bout.

Attell says he will sign up for another tussle with the Britisher, but will insist on a weight clause similar to the one in the last articles of agreement or 125 pounds ring-side and right here is the principal stumbling block. Moran, as all the world now knows, had to work right up to weighing time and then came a failure by the count for, says he will never attempt 125 pounds again.

Moran Is Blameless.

Considering the heroic measures he had to resort to to protect his forfeit—measures which were a failure by the way—no one will blame him for holding out for a little more poundage before signing articles with Attell for a second time.

An old prize ring adage reads: "A match well made is a match half won," and in this time honored warning of the world's prize ring, commanding all a champion's prestige and privileges. Moran's friends seem to think that Attell is showing a lack of spirit in not tearing around and demanding another meeting on any old terms.

They claim that Attell lost prestige in the last fight, and if you ask them how they will remind you that the native son ranked so high in public opinion before the bout that he was an overvalued commodity, though, by a long shot. In addition to entertaining suspicions that he is the boss featherweight, he believes he holds the balance for shrewd match-making and he cannot be talked into changing his attitude.

Attell Is Cautious.

"I won the championship of America at 125 pounds ring-side, and the man who takes the credit away from me must not weigh any more than that says Abe. They seem to be ring-side weighing around here, so I am willing to make it 125 a couple of hours before, but you won't catch me agreeing to any arrangement that will bring my opponent into the ring weighing over 125."

Thus the matter stands, and until the match makers have unsettled the twin world's champions with visions of the untold wealth that will pour into the box office at the next meeting, neither side will begin to waver. That there will be another fight eventually seems inevitable, however.

COLUMBIAS ARE SURE OF PENNANT

Crack Soccer Team of City Football League Practically the Champions.

By defeating the unlucky Hornets 4 goals to 2 at the baseball grounds yesterday afternoon the Columbias made almost certain what is to be champion of the association football city league.

Yesterday's narrow defeat put the Hornets out of the running, while if the Crescents win all their remaining games they will have only a tie with the Columbias to contend for. The latter have still two games in which to clinch their position.

POULTRY SHOW TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Men at Work Arranging Rooms for Comfort of Man and Fowl.

Next Wednesday, January 8, the State Poultry association's annual exhibition will be held at East Alder street and Grand avenue to be continued until the following Wednesday. The show promises to be the occasion of a general outpouring of fine fowl fanciers.

At present the entries are not all in but from those that have arrived and others yet to come, the indications are that this will be the best show in the quality of birds that has ever been held in the northwest.

Many blue-blooded specimens, whose ancestry can be traced back over 50 generations, will compete for the beautiful trophies offered. At this time of the year they are arrayed in their most beautiful plumage and will present a picture long to be remembered. An hour or more spent in the show room will be a treat that should not be missed.

Imported Birds Shown.

Prize winners at Madison Square, New York, and considered the finest in their class in the world, awards that have recently been imported from England at an enormous expense and birds that have cost their owners $100 each in the United States will be here shown.

About $1,000 in cash and silver cups, incubators and poultry supplies in general will be given in prizes.

Four judges have been secured to place the awards. F. Fenwick and E. Carlisle, two Portland fanciers who are well known for their honesty and ability, will judge many of the varieties, while W. J. Headlee of Everett, Washington, whose experience in the show room extends to the east will be on hand to place the blue-ribbon on some of the high steppers.

DUGDALE HANDED WARMEST JOLLY

Seattle's Fat Manager Can Buy Beavers for Small Sum of $8,000,000.

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—Other than the framing of the schedule nothing of importance was attempted at the meeting of the Coast League magnates this morning. It was decided finally to open the season on April 4 and close on November 11.

Judge W. W. McCredie: If satisfactory to you, make Coast League an offer for Portland territory and it same is reasonable, Northwestern League will pay price for you. (Signed) D. E. Dugdale, manager Seattle baseball team.

The Coast League magnates look upon Dugdale's wire as merely a feeler, as it is thought the northern manager expects a return bid for the Seattle franchise, more than he expects Fordland to secede from the coast organization.

If the latter is really the case and Dugdale wants to break into the Coast League again, President Ewing would jump at the chance of annexing the northern town. Room would then be made for Venice in the south and a six club organization effected.

The following telegram was sent to Dugdale:

"You can have Portland for $8,000,000. (Signed) Coast Leaguers."

KEENE TURNS FROM SYSONBY TO COLIN

Millionaire Turfman from Last Transfers His Affection From Dead Racer.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
New York, Jan. 4.—With the close of the racing year of 1907 there is no doubt in the minds of every lover of the thoroughbred that the champion racer shown during the past season was Colin, the clever 2-year-old, uncovered by James R. Keene, the vice chairman of the Jockey club.

During his short career Colin started 12 times and was returned a victor in every race. This record is one short of the grandeur of Colin, who won 13 consecutive races. Colin won in purses the fabulous sum of $138,773. Domino, the grandeur of Colin, holds the record of 2-year-old winners, gathering in over $180,000 during his first season. Notwithstanding that the latest record of Colin, who won 13 consecutive races, it is conceded by the thousands that saw him in action that he outshines his predecessors as a racing machine.

No Sign of Effort.

Colin runs without the least sign of effort. Coming down the stretch striding along like a frictionless piece of machinery, he thrilled the heart of every real admirer of horseflesh, for they realized that they were gazing upon a genuine thoroughbred.

Colin has not hung up any new records. This was due to the fact that he was never extended in a real race. Sysonby was supposed to be the greatest 2-year-old that America ever saw, but after Colin had displayed his great ability it was acknowledged, even by the warmest admirers of the late wonder, that Colin overshadowed Sysonby in every respect. James R. Keene was the last interested person to transfer his affections from Sysonby to Colin, and as he was the man who had bet these two wonders in the American turf, his decision must be considered as final.

Wagner Is Not Too Mean.

That the Seattle association has expected daily that Butterworth would come through with the cup seems to be the case, hence the delay and excuses made to Wagner. The latter does not believe that McAllister intended to hold the cup. He always wanted McAllister in Seattle explaining why he could not accept the cup and saying that he did not believe he was more persistent in his demands than the circumstances warranted.

Wagner wrote J. P. Norman, secretary of the advisory board, describing in detail the cup sent him by the Seattle Kennel club and placing everything in his hands. He always wanted McAllister in Seattle explaining why he could not accept the cup and saying that he did not believe he was more persistent in his demands than the circumstances warranted.

WAGNER SENDS PHONY CUP HOME

Portland Dog Fancier Refuses to Accept Substitute Trophy From Seattle.

ADVISORY BOARD NOW IN CHARGE OF AFFAIR

Exhibitor Says Makeshift Award Was Most Disreputable Utensil Ever Shipped Into Portland, and Criticizes the Dog Show.

F. W. Wagner, who is experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining possession of a silver trophy won at the Seattle dog show last May by his pointer pup, Chief Sam, received a substitute for the cup last week but returned it the next day. Mr. Wagner at the same time informed Secretary Charles McAllister of the Seattle Kennel club that he had left the entire matter with the advisory board in San Francisco and future settlements would have to be made through that body.

"It was the most disreputable looking utensil ever shipped into Portland," explained Wagner, when asked to describe the substitute trophy. "Once upon a time the cup had been nickel plated, evidently. But the nickel plate had been very poorly applied and was peeling off in large pieces. In addition to its scabby appearance it was horridly hot. It looked as if it might have hung over a fireplace or been near a hot stove for a year or two. It could not be used for a year or two, it was so hot."

Wagner does not blame Mr. McAllister so much as he does Butterworth & Son, the donors. However, the Seattle Dog Fanciers' association, under whose auspices the dog show was held, is responsible for the award and if Butterworth & Son never bought it good, according to custom. Butterworth & Son, according to Wagner, had expected to win the trophy with their own dog and never intended, evidently, to buy a cup at all.

That the Seattle association has expected daily that Butterworth would come through with the cup seems to be the case, hence the delay and excuses made to Wagner. The latter does not believe that McAllister intended to hold the cup. He always wanted McAllister in Seattle explaining why he could not accept the cup and saying that he did not believe he was more persistent in his demands than the circumstances warranted.
